Hospital Room Rates To Rise
$4 If Malpractice Bill Fails

A significant increase in the room rates of Winchester Hospital will result unless the legislature passes a malpractice insurance bill, says Administrator Reese E. James.

The annual malpractice insurance premium for Winchester Hospital is jumping to $400,000, says James. In 1969 the premium was $2,400.

"Obviously this must be reflected in our charges since the only way to pay for that increase is out of patient revenue," the administrator said.

"This new premium translates into an increase in our room rates of $4 per patient day and future increases in the malpractice insurance premium would again have to be reflected in increases in our patient day charges."

Room rates at Winchester Hospital for normal medical care now average between $70 and $90.

Administrator James said that unless there is strong public support for a bill now in the House on malpractice insurance all hospitals will raise room rates "to offset the incredible increase in the premiums for malpractice insurance."

According to James, the bill will help stabilize or reduce current malpractice insurance rates by:

1. Establishing a medical malpractice tribunal consisting of a superior court justice, a physician and an attorney.

The function of the tribunal would be to determine if there is sufficient probable cause for liability to allow a case to go before a jury.

This screening function could effectively preclude a substantial number of cases from going before a jury for a full trial with the significant savings for the defense of these claims passed on in the form of lower premium rates.

The findings of the tribunal neither imposes a limit on any appropriate awards by a jury nor does it preclude anyone from going to court for a trial by jury if there is merit to the case.

2. Creating a joint underwriting association to guarantee the availability of malpractice insurance for all physicians and hospitals.

All insurance companies writing casualty insurance in Massachusetts would be required to participate.

At present only a limited number of casualty companies are now writing malpractice insurance and they are not taking new business.

3. Creating a board of medical discipline whose function would be to investigate and hold hearings on complaints of unprofessional conduct against physicians.

The board would consist of five physicians and two consumers, all of whom would be appointed by the governor.

Should a physician be found guilty of "unprofessional conduct," as defined in the bill, the board would have the authority to reprimand him or revoke his license to practice medicine in the commonwealth.

4. Requiring the commissioner of insurance to fix and establish all medical malpractice insurance rates.

Under the present system, insurance companies may virtually charge whatever

Town Day '75 Events Begin
Saturday Night With Dancing

Winchester's second annual Town Day festivities will take place this Saturday and Sunday, June 7 and 8, around the Mill Pond in Winchester Center.

The location is one of many changes made in the Town Day format because of the large number of people who participated in Town Day last year.

Another major change is the expansion of Town Day this year to two days. Festivities kick off Saturday evening at 8 with a "Downtown Saturday Night" event which includes entertainment by many groups, square dancing, boating on the pond, refreshments, a sing-a-long and glimpses into Winchester's past.

Special effects, particularly the recreation of a liberty tree by the lighting of 92 lamps on a tree near the water's edge will add to the mood of the evening.

This will be Winchester's first liberty tree. The town has had a liberty pole in various locations at different times in its history. But Winchester has had neither pole nor tree in 80 years. (See "Bicentennial Dispatch" inside this week's Star.)

On Sunday at 4 p.m. boy scouts will carry the pole to the Town Hall, where it will be put in place.

Another first-time event this year will be a "community affirmation service" to officially begin Sunday's activities. This is being planned by the Winchester Ecumenical Association.

Beginning at about noon on the hill between Mill Pond and the rear of the public library, residents will gather for the service.

All are invited to participate and bring breakfast rolls or bread to share with others at the service. Coffee will be provided as well as seating for the elderly.

The sharing aspect is the focal point of the service and of the mood of the entire day. Following the breaking of bread together, the service will continue with songs and readings.

Though this service begins the continuous events of Sunday, Winchester's annual marathon actually is the first event of the day. Runners will take off from the police box in the square at 9:30 (see sports pages for a map showing the three marathon courses).

As last year, a large number of Winchester clubs and organizations have taken responsibility for the varied events scheduled "This participation," says Town Day Committee member Dean Maglaris, "is precisely what Town Day hopes to accomplish."

"We're trying to get neighbors to join neighbors, clubs to join other clubs and, in short, all of Winchester to appreciate each other, to share the good things this town has to offer."

"It's a very simple and old-fashioned goal, this goal of community spirit but it's not always easy to capture. Hopefully Town Day will help people take a step in the right direction."

(Rev. Jack Zoerheide says Town Day gives residents a chance to do something for their neighbors. See page 4.)

More than 30 separate events or displays are scheduled throughout Sunday, in addition to an arts and crafts fair with more than 20 participants.

The range of activities spans from a bake contest and kite flying festival to a children's parade and historical exhibit. Much of the mood of both Saturday evening and Sunday will be set by continuous live musical entertainment.

Again, variety is the key word. Visitors may listen to classical or flamenco guitar music under umbrella tables in Winchester terrace, sip lemonade and hear a folksinger, or keep time with a marching band.

Refreshments will be available both days. The culmination of Sunday will be a family cookout complete with hamburgers, hotdogs, and corn on the cob.

This activity will begin at 4 p.m. in the asphalt area behind Town Hall. A concert by a full band will accompany the cookout.

A list of most of the activities planned for both days will be found on the page of Town Day information on Page 12 of this edition of The Star.

Among the events are boating on the pond, an outdoor cafe, silent movies, a puppet show, paint-it-yourself mural, face painting, a chess challenge with Bill Levering playing 16 games of chess at the same time.

Also planned are athletic events like frisbee, lawn bowling, baseball toss and horseshoes for all age groups, a children's costume parade, a display of fire apparatus and curious automobiles and a spelling bee.

Everyone from Winchester is invited to their Town Day. No invitation is required. No matter what the weather, rain or sun, Town Day '75 will be this weekend.

Contingency plans include moving some events inside Town Hall in case of rain.

Larocco Challenges Grads
To Replace Fear With Hope

"The only important fear 'is the lack of belief and hope," said Winchester High School Principal Vincent E. Larocco as he challenged 410 graduating seniors to provide leadership in the future.

His speech, in the form of an open letter to his son, a high school graduate this year in Reading, was delivered Sunday afternoon at Manchester Field as rain misted over graduates and their families.

Larocco told his son that in the 18 years he's known him "there is something there I like, but I don't believe I really understand you - your thoughts, your real feelings, your aspirations, your cynicism at such an early age. I am perplexed by both your moods and your concerns."

Looking to the future and fears presented in an adult world, Larocco said, "There is the fear that somehow you might not measure up to what you think the world expects of you. However, what the world expects of you is not really important. What is important is what you are capable of and what your expectations are of yourself."

Larocco said he too has fears about the tomorrows, "but it is now your turn to lead. Accept that leadership, keeping in mind the words of William Faulkner."

"I believe that man will not endure, he will prevail. He is immortal, not because he alone among creatures has an inexhaustible voice, but because he has a soul; a spirit capable of compassion, sacrifice and endurance."

He concluded: "Lead me in that fashion and I too shall follow."

This was the 125th class to graduate from the school and the only one to have attended all of their senior years in the three-year old high school building.

Mary O'Connor, class president, gave a welcome. In her remarks, she offered thanks to parents and educators for their guidance, support, patience and skill. She pointed to the uniqueness of each student.

Student council president Andrew deMars gave the senior address. He called on his classmates to beware that their future course of direction "is not based on artificial values."

He pointed to Winchester as an affluent community where residents enjoy material comforts. "This is not wrong, he said, but 'social development and awareness is sometimes more important' than educational facilities."

School Committee member Stephen R. Parkhurst addressed the assembly on Winchester's philosophy of education which gears itself toward freedom of choices and students exercising responsibilities.

Parkhurst, outgoing chairman of the committee, said Winchester students have been given freedom of choices in relation to courses, activities and free time.

"It was important that you made good choices and that you exercised your responsibilities well for there are those who wish to reduce your choices, and therefore the exercise of your responsibilities as young adults."

"The tide of conservatism and repression in regard to education is getting stronger all the time. The pressure is mounting (for) more supervision, more control and therefore reduced freedom of choice, expression and thought."

Parkhurst and Mrs. Austin Broadhurst of the Winchester Scholarship Foundation announced names of scholarship award winners. (Winners are listed in other stories.)

Supt. of Schools William C. McDonald spoke briefly and congratulated the graduates.

Rev. Howard A. Krueger, pastor of the First Baptist Church, gave the invocation and benediction.

Music was provided by the high school band under the direction of Stuart A. Morash. Selections included "Lemon Meringue," "Pomp and Circumstance," and highlights from "Oklahoma."

300-600 Gallons
Of Oil Cleaned Up

Somewhere between 300 to 600 gallons of heating oil spilled from a truck on Main street near the Woburn line last Thursday afternoon.

Cooperation among town departments and the Massachusetts division of water pollution control prevented the oil from contaminating the town's waterways.

Board of Health Director Michael D. Saraco said the clean-up was so smooth it seemed to have been rehearsed.

According to Saraco, an oil truck had just filled up at the Fitzgerald Oil Co. depot on Swanton street last Thursday at 2:30 p.m. and began to drip oil near the BP service station on Main street.

The oil spilled out through a broken valve from the BP station all the way up past Cross street in Woburn.

On hearing the sounds of horns at his truck, the vehicle operator Kevin O'Rourke of O'Rourke Brothers Inc., Woburn, stopped, pulled in a fire alarm box and quickly ripped off his shirt and stuffed it into the valve to keep the oil from flowing out.

The fire alarm is one which automatically has both the Winchester and Woburn Fire Departments responding into action.

The truck, which holds about 2,500 gallons of fuel, is believed to have contained 1,100 gallons at the time the spill began.

The spillage could have been "a lot worse," said Saraco. "It had all spilled, forget it."

Firefighters began washing down some of the oil which caused it to enter storm drains.

Here is where there could have been a serious problem, said Saraco, but due to the quick action of firefighters, under the direction of Fire Chief I. Francis Amico and Capt. Michael Connolly, members of the Park and Highway Dept., and the quick response of the Water Pollution Division under the Department of Natural Resources, precautions were taken to keep the oil from entering the town's major waterways.

"All storm drains and catch basins via gravity flow empty into waterways," said Saraco. And everything north from Lake street empties into Horn Pond Brook.

Because of concern for Winter Pond, Wedge Pond and Horn Pond Brook, Saraco said town departments went into action and using loads of gravel created a dam in the Horn Pond Brook and put up another dam between the Park and Highway Dept. yards.

This kept the oil from moving along the brook and emptying into the larger waterways.

When Robert Cady of the Division of Water Pollution arrived to investigate, he immediately contacted Coastal Services, Inc., of East Boston, a firm frequently employed by the Division to troubleshoot on such occasions.

Friday morning personnel from Coastal set up pillow booms Saraco described this as a "dam made up of objects that look like pillows." The booms absorb the oil while at the same time allowing a free flow of clear water.

Coastal also installed a pillow boom resembling a log behind the Lynch Junior High School playground.

The entire area from the gedge Pond outlet to the drain outlet at Horn Pond Brook is from 1/2 to 3/4 of a mile, said Saraco.

Coastal Services people also set up another barrier at the intersection of Middlesex and Sylvester avenue where water goes under roads and houses.

Workers also hand-picked debris in the water to break up oil pockets "and thus allow continued free flow to the pillow dam," said Saraco.

The Coastal personnel also employed a vacuum pump which "sucked up oil and put it into a storage truck," said Saraco.

The next step was to pump out the catch basins on Upper Main street of oil. This too was deposited into Coastal oil tankers.

By Friday night the major portion of the oil spilled was absorbed by pillow booms or vacuumed into storage tankers.

Then, using town equipment, according to Saraco, catch basins were flushed out with water from fire hoses to make certain any remaining oil could be washed into the brook while the pillows were still intact.

Otherwise, Saraco said, any oil still in the basins would empty into the brook during the next good rainstorm.

On Saturday morning another pillow boom was installed at the Wedge Pond side of Horn Pond Brook. "Any remaining oil which may have gotten by could be caught here," said Saraco.

The only disturbance to Winchester residents, he noted, was on Thursday night. Some residents smelled fuel odors and expressed fear of fire.

Saraco, who spent most of Thursday night on the telephone, said callers were understanding and appeased once they were assured there was no danger.

Saraco said the town will be reimbursed through insurance for labor and gravel used to keep the oil contained in the brook.

He said that because of the cooperation of all town departments, including police who barricaded roads, "a dangerous situation was avoided."

"The situation could have been a very serious one if the oil had gotten into the Aberjona River and Mill Pond. Ducks can't fly once they are covered with oil," he noted.

Firefighters Have Busy Week Battling Many Brush Fires; Also House Fire On Grove St.

There was extensive damage to the second floor of a dwelling at 34 Grove st. due to heavy heat and smoke resulting from a fire there last Thursday morning.

The house is the property of the T. J. Anderson Family.

According to Fire Chief I. Francis Amico, probable cause of the fire was a hand appliance used for pressing pants which apparently was left plugged into an electrical outlet.

The fire was concentrated in the master bedroom on the second floor. There was heavy smoke throughout the house resulting in loss of bedding, furniture and clothing stored in closets.

The fire chief reports there was no water damage and occupants were able to continue to live in the house. The first floor was not damaged.

Firefighters were called to the scene at 10:38 a.m. by a neighbor, Peter Frongillo.

While two pumps, a ladder truck and rescue equipment were used to combat the fire, under the direction of Capt. Michael Connolly, West Side firefighters and apparatus stood by. The recall was sounded at 11:52 a.m.

Firefighter John Farrell, who punctured his foot after stepping on a nail, was taken to Winchester Hospital.

Paul L. Eaton

Paul Lincoln Eaton of 27 Kenwin rd., 83, died June 2.

Funeral service was held yesterday in the chapel of the Norris Funeral Home. Rev. Howard A. Krueger of the First Baptist Church officiated. Burial was in Wildwood Cemetery.

Mr. Eaton was born in Somerville. He was the son of Charles H. and Eva A. (Sheriff) Eaton.

He was a member of the First Baptist, Solely Lodge AF & AM and the Somerville Royal Arch Chapter.

Husband of the late Edith D. (Leland) Eaton who died two weeks ago, he is survived by a nephew, Paul B. Eaton of 40 Englewood rd.

Donations in his memory may be given to the First Baptist Church.

At the time the Anderson home fire was in action, the fire chief was up in the Middlesex Fells woods where he and other firefighters were combatting a brush fire.

The chief told The Star about several calls from residents during the past week of brush fires, which he believes "are set."

Most of the brush fires have been in the Middlesex Fells area off South Border rd.

Another, such as one on Thursday at 7:45 p.m., was behind the Vinson-Owen School. In this instance, firefighters found an empty gasoline can and wood chips on the side of the school.

On Friday there was a brush fire behind a Bellevue avenue home, and on Saturday evening there was another brush fire at Lynch Junior High School.

Also on Saturday, firefighters were called to a house fire on Allen street. All first call fire apparatus responded.

On investigation, firefighters found "a School Department stuffed giraffe," said the chief. The giraffe was supposedly in the Washington School earlier the same day.

After containing the Allen street fire, firefighters checked the Washington School for vandalism and found front doors of the facility ajar. A small pane of glass broken, said the fire chief, and nearby was a broken beer bottle which may have been used to break the door glass.

Inside the school, in Room 5, firefighters found a candle which had burned itself out inside a waste basket.

A fire, which is under investigation by the fire marshal and police because of suspicion of arson, occurred on Sunday at 10 p.m. at 9 Crescent rd.

In this case, when firefighters were called they thought they were going to battle a brush fire. Instead they found a front porch on fire. Damage was limited to the exterior, said Chief Amico.

On Monday at 1:25 p.m., there was a fire in a telephone booth on Swanton street. When firefighters appeared on the scene they found a telephone book burning.

Brush fires continued on Monday. There was one off Canterbury road along railroad tracks, another on Shore road; another on Bellevue avenue off Forest street; and others in the South Border road area.

"We need two good days of rain" to alleviate brush fires, said Chief Amico on Tuesday.

machinery; and on Tuesday they were called to Lincoln School due to a faulty alarm connecting the sprinkler system.

They assisted Woburn firefighters Sunday morning when that town experienced a two alarm fire in a three family dwelling housing six families. And on Monday they assisted the Medford Fire Dept.

Let Athletes Pay For Electricity

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

This is a copy of a letter to the Board of Selectmen:

Gentlemen,

As a taxpayer I am concerned with the use of Ginn Field by various commercial groups for night-time athletic activities.

With the high cost of electric power, along with the need for conservation of electric power generating facilities it would appear to me that it is utterly unreasonable to continue this activity, particularly at the expense of the individual taxpayer.

If separate electric metering facilities could be installed and if the athletic participants would be willing to assume the cost of their activities, fine.

Otherwise, how much more is the individual home owner in Winchester supposed to assume for everyone in sight who needs a "free ride?"

Petition Signatures Wanted For German

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

As parents of high school students who wanted to take beginning German next fall, we were very disappointed to hear that the course is being discontinued.

Ch. 215, Sec. 13 of the General Laws of 1972, requires the high school to offer a course when parents or guardians of 20 eligible students desiring the course sign a petition asking for it.

We would like parents of students wanting beginning German next year to contact Verity Feldmann, 5 Thornberry rd., or Eva Arnold, 6 Herrick st., in order to sign such a petition.

Many Thanked

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

My family wishes to express our sincere gratitude to Chief Amico and members of the Fire Department for their invaluable assistance in our time of need.

The conscious effort to preserve property, courtesy, analytical advice and other kind gestures truly helped our family in a moment of great need.

Cyclist Irritated By Vehicle Drivers

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Arthur MacDonnell narks me a little when he claims, maybe as a chairborne motorist himself, that cyclists fail to observe road regulations whereas most car drivers do observe them.

As a (mostly) law-abiding cyclist, I am frankly appalled, as well as asphyxiated, by the wild stampede of Massachusetts motorists today.

How often do I watch, with a green traffic light staring at me, the continuing stream of cars rushing at across through the red. Or the near manslaughter of turning cars whose drivers resist the impedence of a straight and steady cyclist. Or the sudden whim of a U-turn, or the can't-wait overtaking in a narrow space (in Europe, the rule is to give a cyclist a two meter space).

Of course a number of cyclists, especially youngsters, fail to obey road signs and endanger themselves. But I submit they are following the example of their mechanically charbonne elders: get from A to B as fast as you can, and anyone who hinders your neurotic impulses becomes infectious.

Selfishness becomes infectious. So let the card drivers regain their self control and then we can educate the cyclists. Certain it is that the bicycle is no weapon. So, bicycle for the Bicentennial: to work, and anywhere else within range but, sadly, for our children, be prepared for combat.

Which reminds me, Mr. Mac and Massachusetts, why are you mute for the tricentennial?

Wasn't it in 1675-1676 that the people who gave their name to this state were fighting for their independence against the British? And the British won, and called themselves the Americans? No memorial for the vanquished and vanished Massachusetts?

Letters Must Have Signature, Address

The Winchester Star welcomes letters for its readers column.

The newspaper receives some letters that are unacceptable for publication for a number of reasons.

Letters must be signed and include the writer's address for verification. The Star will omit the address when requested to do so. But all letters must include a signed name and the address.

A word limit of 250 is imposed on all letters to insure space for everyone who wishes to make a point. The newspaper prints letters only of general interest.

Gratitude

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It is with heartfelt thanks that I pen this note for all the beautiful people at the Elks who helped make my "Penny Sale for the Hungry" the huge success that it was.

To begin with, my warmest gratitude to Mr. Roland Twombly of the Elks and the board members who made it possible for me to hold this affair in their beautiful hall.

To Larry Penta, Mr. Lucey and all the wonderful members who came who were so helpful to me that evening, thank you very much.

I am so proud that the Elks and its members are in our town.

I would like to thank the following generous donors also:

Cradock's Apothecary, Topsy Turvy, Woolworth's, Mahoney's Rocky Ledge, First National, Purity Supreme, Star Market, Winslow's Gift Boutique, Nevaire's Gift Shop, A&P, Lechmere's, Donigella Distr., Howard Johnson, SS Pierce, Tante's Beauty Salon, Winchester News, Keane Flowers, Fava's Hair Fashion, Boutz Boutique DeCor, Fred's Beauty Shop, Nelson's Bakery, Winchester Pastry, Hudson Stores, Winchester Star White Iden.

If more people in the world were like those mentioned above, what a wonderful place it would be to live in.

To The Prodigal Son

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Where art thou, John-Michael? Do you hear the sound of a different drummer?

Many times we sat and talked. And I had hoped you'd see The Road you've chosen for yourself.

With Thorns and Brambles. And friends dealt all but the sounds of coins. They who would lead your dreams astray To worthless schemes and peering calls.

To those whose love did rear you. Must your heart be hardened? Do you not foresee the pain?

A Father's hidden tears, his image pride destroyed. A Mother's broken heart, who turns her eyes away. Lest see her son's career ebb and fade away.

Lift up your heart to God, my son. Turn not a deaf ear. Though troubled is your soul, Men have come and gone before you.

Whose prodigal ways lent them pain. But Great Men learn from past mistakes. And Saints the error of their ways. Dream dreams of hope and faith. Stand tall in service to your family.

And thankful. Mom and I are here to help you through the storm.

Summer Theatre Is Something Different

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Summer is an opportune time to do new things, to vary one's lifestyle a bit by getting involved in different experiences and trying them on for size.

This summer, a wonderful experience awaits any Winchester residents who are interested in drama and community theatre and who has always wanted to get involved.

The Winchester Summer Community Theatre and the Town Recreational Department are once again co-sponsoring a play picked especially for this bicentennial year called "Dark of the Moon."

Based on the haunting ballad of "Barbara Allen," it is one of the proven favorites of theater audiences, and a classic of Americana. Folk songs, witches, revival meetings and the imaginative meetings of the Smoky Mountains lend a lively swing and spirit to this fascinating folk play.

Lots of help will be needed to stage the production and all are welcome: painters, carpenters, makeup, publicity, prop and ticket persons, a large cast, lighting and sound technicians, set designers, etc. Don't be bashful, community theater truly offers something for every interest and ability.

The play will be given on July 31 and August 1, 7 and 8. Two special sign-up and role audition meetings will be held at Metcalf Hall, Unitarian Church, on Monday, June 16 and Tuesday, June 17, at 7:30 p.m.

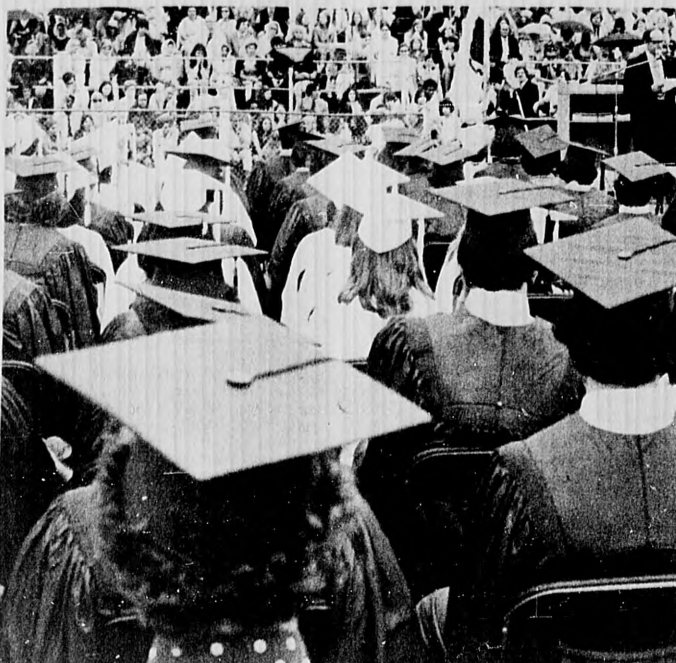

Rehearsals will be held every Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday from June 23 on.

It has been disappointing in the past to see some summer theatre efforts appreciated by only small audiences. This is a community project and our goal is to make "Dark of the Moon" a pleasant experience for everyone.

If you can't be a part of the actual cast or crew, please circle the performance dates on your calendar today and plan to support this worthwhile summer project as a part of a large and enthusiastic audience.

'Lemon Meringue' Is Lively, But Skip Dreary Processional

By Pauline Dishmon

On Sunday I attended the Winchester High School class of 1975 graduation exercises. This was the third consecutive year I've covered the program for the paper.

On hearing I'd be going and knowing no one in my family was in the graduating class, an acquaintance suggested this must be a boring ordeal.

On the contrary, I said, I like graduations. But on the front row and eavesdrop as family members gather. And I particularly enjoy hearing the music of the band.

The band played "Lemon Meringue" as their first selection. If I remember correctly they played this last year. It is a lively happy tune and seems to make the day more beautiful than eyes can tell.

I do wish the band would choose something other than "Pomp and Circumstance" for the processional. To me this music is too depressing for a happy occasion. And when it is raining as was the case Sunday it made the day appear dreary.

I like to attend high school graduations because they remind me of my own, also a time of joy in spite of a heavy downpour right in the middle of the issuing of diplomas.

I recall being drenched out on the football field and running with other graduates and family members into the school auditorium where the exercises were continued.

Actually it was funny to look around at the students whose caps were warped and bending in all directions. My navy blue crepe dress shrunk from the rain and I was embarrassed because the front hem of my dress rose about two inches above my knees. (How times have changed.)

Another highlight of the Winchester graduation is the annual address by Principal Vincent E. Larocco who turns his back to the audience and faces the graduates to whom he is speaking. His talks are moving and this year's was no exception.

Larocco explained that this year his son is a graduate. Feeling somewhat more involved because of this, his speech was in the form of a letter from a parent to a child.

He told his son and the Winchester High School graduates they need not be too concerned with what the world expects of them but more with what they expect of themselves.

A lack of hope, he said, is the real fear they must encounter. To help them in their approach to life, he suggested several things in which to believe. These beliefs are appropriate for all of us no matter what our age may be.

He suggested a belief in God, in all life, in yourself, in others who show love, in the common man, in democracy, in humanity not objects, in humility and courage.

The address by School Committee member Stephen R. Parkhurst was full of challenges for the graduating seniors. If you were not at the graduation be sure to read his speech in its entirety in this week's Star.

A week ago Sunday I went to another graduation. In this case, my brother James G. Blake of Merrimack, N.H., received a BS degree in general science from the University of New Hampshire after attending the college's School of Continuing Studies for nine years.

His wife and two young sons, our parents and other family members and friends are proud of his accomplishment which took a great deal of patience and stamina.

Besides attending classes evenings, he works fulltime as an air traffic controller and instructor at the FAA Center in Nashua where he has received many commendations for outstanding performance. On top of that he did the bulk of the work in the construction of two houses.

Now he plans to go on to get a master's degree in education.

Well done, brother Jim.

Overheard in the ladies' room at the Winchester High School graduation by a graduate: "I've been four times already and I have to go again. I'm so nervous."

A grandmother told The Star the doctor doesn't want her to be in crowds because of her health. But, she said, "I just had to come. My granddaughter is graduating. She is my seventh grandchild to graduate," she said.

I was surprised recently to see a message on a label on my monthly house mortgage payment invoice. It suggested I put my income tax rebate check in a savings account at the bank. Isn't this what the president has asked us not to do?

Well I didn't take the bank's advice. I used mine as a down-payment on a new refrigerator freezer which I badly needed.

The question of what to do with the old refrigerator bothered me somewhat knowing discarded refrigerators and freezers have become the tombs of many children.

I made arrangements to have my old refrigerator carted off when the new one arrived. Inside the new one was a booklet published by the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers suggesting safety precautions.

Supervise child's play. Teach children about the dangers of entrapment in refrigerators, ice boxes or other sealed areas.

Before storing or discarding a refrigerator or freezer, seal it shut, block it open, or remove the doors.

If you find a temporarily stored or discarded box in the neighborhood, make sure it is safe or removed.

As an extra precaution, leave the shelves in the refrigerator.

Victims of refrigerator entrapment are usually children 2-12 years old. The pamphlet says twice as many boys as girls become entrapped. Playmates often are entrapped together.

To a child the abandoned unit becomes a hiding place, a playhouse, or a jail in which to lock up outlaw playmates. A child doesn't know a refrigerator is constructed airtight. He doesn't know the dangers.

It's up to adults to teach safety and be safe ourselves.

Did you read recently where the FDA banned the sale of pet turtles?

The ban covers all live turtles with shells less than four inches in length, as well as turtle turtle eggs.

FDA maintains, "Turtles continue to be a significant carrier of pathogenic organisms, particularly affecting small children."

The turtles, widely sold in dime stores at the rate of about 13 million a year at one time, are carriers of salmonella bacteria.

Turtles used for scientific, educational or exhibition purposes will be exempt from the ban.

Cott "draft-style" diet root beer contains: carbonated water, sodium citrate, cellulose gum, saccharin, glycine, caramel color, oil of sweet birch and other spice oils, vanillin, gum acacia and yucca extract. Yucca! is right.

Santa Clara county supervisors recently decided to abolish their dial-a-ride system because it had become so successful.

The Santa Clara system, the largest of 40 such dial-a-bus systems operating, was considered a model for sprawling communities.

In six months of operation it lured more riders than had been expected and studies showed that twice as many buses and double the original budget would be necessary to make it work properly.

Town Day: A 'Yes' Day To Give To Neighbors

By Rev. Jack Zoerheide

Perhaps Town Day is not quite yet the most important day of the year in Winchester. If not, it has that promise.

Winchester Town Day is a call to us all (in paraphrase of Robert Frost) to give the "gift outright" of ourselves to the land "vaguely realizing."

The great American poet observed in his historic poem that "something we are withholding" makes us weak.

Town Day is the opportunity to feel and celebrate a precious spirit too often withheld "neighborliness." Have we been withholding our natural capacity to be neighborly from this land, this town of our becoming?

Arnold Toynbee worries about the decline of western civilization. He knows a lot about decline everywhere. He writes about "master institutions" which bring civilizations down.

Also he writes about seemingly little things which signify large problems. There are little things happening to us in respect to our capacity to be neighborly that may turn out to be a lot bigger than we now think.

Seemingly little things — like the fact we have to lock everything we own for fear it will be stolen. Lock our car. Lock your house. Lock your garage.

Put your bike out of sight. Engrave your possessions. Don't let your front lawn grass get too high. Thieves will think you're not at home. Oh, for the good old days when hearing of grass was merely a question of status!

Don't leave a newspaper on the steps. Don't open a door to a stranger. When the phone rings and you answer and someone is there but doesn't answer, beware. You may have been speaking to a robber casing your house.

Don't walk alone at night. Keep the shades drawn. Be suspicious of all strangers. Report any unusual occurrence.

Are you sure your telephone isn't bugged? Does the FBI have your name? Are you on the CIA's list?

How big are the many little things which all seem to be saying to us "don't trust anyone anymore"? Are we afraid to be neighborly because we suspect some illborn consequence will result?

If so, is this saying, "Don't love anyone because you will risk pain an unforeseen consequence"? Or is it saying "Don't love your neighbor, you may have to risk you?"

The times make it so easy to turn away from the stranger. So easy to say "no" to someone you don't know.

But saying no to the stranger as we do today through government, attitudes or organizations runs against the grain of a deep-rooted American spirit of generosity.

That's why old-fashioned folk who believe in being neighborly are finding the going tough these days. A rebirth of the neighborly spirit might give us all a lift on the way toward better lives and communities.

The observation has been made that the only times people act neighborly to one another anymore is when there is a famine, national disaster, shooting or the trauma of division and anger in the body politic.

Town Day says that observation is incorrect! Town Day is an opportunity for everyone to give the gift outright of neighborliness to each other, to the town, nation, all men.

Town Day may become the best Yes day on our calendar. The day we say yes to people — ALL people. They know tears and laughter, struggle and achievement, loss and love — just as we do.

In the face of issues which threaten to divide us further, multiply our distrusts, a Yes day is a great day.

Where will a "yes" to a neighbor open human possibilities? Where will a "yes" open a better way, enlighten understanding, create opportunity, build an ideal, uplift faith?

Cheers and high praises for Winchester Town Day! May it be a gift outright of ourselves to the land vaguely realizing. The day we say Yes to our neighbors.

Hit And Run: Hello 'Gentlepersons'

The Board of Selectmen, with four men and one woman, received a letter this week from Building Cmsr William B. MacDonald addressed "Gentlepersons."

Quick now without thinking. Who's the vice-president of the United States?

And if you got that right you can tell us it you really think the Rockefeller Commission was ever going to do anything but exonerate the CIA.

The economy must be getting better. Strikes are becoming more numerous.

Latin I has been reinstated in the curriculum of Winchester High School.

Last day of broadcast for WSHR-FM, the high school radio station, is Friday. School continues until the 18th though.

The name of Lt. Robert Swymer of the Fire Department was omitted in the Memorial Day Parade Committee's thank you letter in last week's Star.

Motorcycles as well as buses, bulldozers, refrigeration units on trucks and garbage truck mashers) are being considered by the EPA for noise control. Hurrah! Hurrah!

The June Reader's Digest contains an article from a book by Muraco School kindergarten teacher Jane Martel, "Smashed Potatoes," recipes written by her pupils.

The Red & Black, WIIS student newspaper, contains a "Farewell to Mr. Kelley" article in which the outgoing hockey coach accuses the School Committee of listening too much to "negative elements within the community."

What some people will do for money department: Mohamed Ali peddling some silly deodorant on television.

If ever there is a revolution in the US it will be caused not by politics but by such inequities as soccer player Pele getting $2 million a year.

Which brings up Margaux Hemingway's $1 million contract to advertise a perfume. And American business can't understand why people are cynical toward it!

High school kids don't appreciate graduations. It's their parents the ceremonies are held for.

Ever notice how some people say Saturday instead of Saturday?

Congratulations to the Park Department! They cut the grass in the middle of Sheffield West on Monday (first time this year).

Portugal has swung from right to left, we are told. But no one in Portugal notices any difference.

The smell of chocolate in Winchester recently made some wonder if an east wind was coming in from Dorchester Lower Mills.

Two signs seen in a Winchester dentist's office: "Closed mouths gather no feet!" "Some people get carried away by the sound of their own voice—but not far enough."

Edward Donnelly, executive secretary to the Board of Selectmen, has applied for the town manager job.

'The Tide Of Conservatism And Repression In Education Getting Stronger'

The following is the full text of the talk Stephen R. Parkhurst, member of the Winchester School Committee, gave Sunday at the graduation of the Class of 1975 of Winchester High School. Mr. Parkhurst titled his talk "Quality of Thought."

The Class of 1975 is the first one which spent all three years in the new high school. As such, it is the first class which has been educated throughout high school under our present philosophy of education, a philosophy which has encouraged you to make your own choices of how to use your free time, inside or outside of school.

Along with this freedom of choices, you were given the responsibility to obtain your own education, and to respect the rights of others in their endeavors in obtaining theirs.

It was important that you made good choices and that you exercised your responsibilities well, for there are those who wish to reduce your choices, and therefore reduce the exercise of your responsibilities as young adults.

The tide of conservatism and repression in regard to education is getting stronger all the time. The pressure is mounting for what psychologists would call a more structured environment, which in plain English means more supervision, more control and therefore reduced freedom of choice, expression and thought.

It is up to the student body to show it can live up to our expectations, to prove our philosophy is the correct one, and in my opinion, you have done this well.

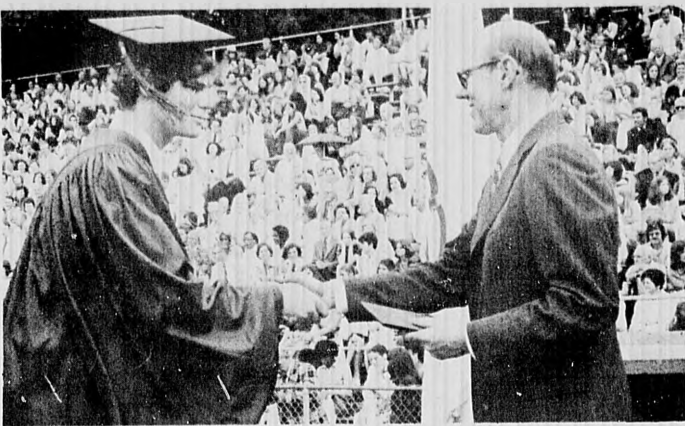

As I did last year, I am going to review some aspects of our philosophy of education, for they bear repeating, and really crystallize what our system of education in Winchester is all about. And I am going to challenge you to think, and to stress the importance of the thought process in your lives.

First, "Through the analysis of the social, economic, and political forces that bring about change, students should develop a basic knowledge of our nation's history and heritage."

Certainly in this, our bicentennial year, you have had a unique opportunity to review the basic principles on which our country was founded, to determine to what extent we are living up to those principles today, and if not, to think through and reach some conclusions on what we are going to do about it.

Second, "Students should be provided with varied opportunities to become informed citizens—citizens critically aware of how our democratic processes have operated in the past and how it operates today—as well as with opportunities to actively engage in that process."

There are plenty of timely examples I could cite at the federal, state and local level. For example, should we have used armed force to free the crew of the Mayaguez, or was this just another case of Yankee adventurism?

WHS graduating senior John Parkhurst receives diploma and handshake from his School Committee father, Stephen R. Parkhurst, during Sunday ceremonies.

Should the governor cut the welfare budget? The state hasn't got the money, but people need help. Should Winchester participate in Melco? Do we have any obligations outside of Winchester?

When do public officials lead, and when should they follow, and who decides? The rhetoric of the philosophy sounds nice, but how do you become informed citizens on issues such as these?

By reading Time? The Globe? The Winchester Star? Watching the news on TV? Listening to your parents? Are any of these sources really objective?

The answer, in my opinion, is they are not, although the gradations of objectivity vary, simply because the media consists of real, live people just like you and me. We all use these sources of information, and we should.

But isn't it easy to tend to read, or listen to, that which we already agree?

If we as educators have accomplished anything, I hope and trust we have taught to think about both sides of an issue, to exercise the discipline of thought to seek out the sources which present the opposite view, so you can draw your own conclusions about what you read and hear.

We are now in what is called the post industrial society, in which, having supposedly mastered the economics of daily living through our productive capacity, our society can look to bigger and better things.

Some hard lessons have been learned in the past years in regard to problems you are all aware of—guns and butter, energy, welfare, inflation and the like.

In my opinion, the central question to be answered over the remainder of this century is who will assume the responsibility for doing the things which need to be done, by which I mean, bigger government, or the private enterprise system?

The attitudes of your generation will influence the decision. Will you look to government or business to solve our problems? Does business have the capacity to do it, or the will? Is business, operated for profit, inherently bad? Or is an increasingly stronger central government, nationalization of industry, or further regulations, the only answer?

Which do you choose, and which will you work for? After all, both institutions are only people. Which will attract the best? Or the worst?

Who wants power for their own ends, and where is it? And most important, have you really thought at all about the question of which forces will govern your lives?

The third philosophy read, "Students should expand their humane dimensions, especially by identifying and cultivating their own spiritual, moral, and ethical values and attitudes."

Cemetery Impressive

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Many residents, I'm sure, were impressed as we were by Wildwood Cemetery's beautifully prepared condition this Memorial Day. The grounds were immaculate throughout from the lovely main gate area to even the newest burial sites.

Winchester can be proud and grateful for the thoughtful effort which has occasioned such attractive public acreage. Special thanks are due Mr. Moran, Mr. Comeau, the staff and this year's high school assistants for their wonderful work at Wildwood.

Wedge Pond Abutters

Plan Clean-Up Day

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

For the past two years the abutters of Wedge Pond have conducted a planned Wedge Pond clean-up day.

This year we are not having a formal clean-up.

Through your newspaper I'd like to urge all users of the pond at Palmer Beach, along the entire shoreline and at Elliott Park, to collect litter and debris.

You who use Wedge Pond are very lucky to have such a lovely body of natural water in the midst of Winchester. Please preserve it.

"I would hope that...you will develop a taste and appreciation for the humanities

--art, music and literature--the true expressions of the creativity of of mankind."

Foundation To Benefit From Music

Is God dead? Is the family, as a sociological unit, which evolved to meet the demands of a by-gone agrarian society, on the way out? Or do the free spirits in a commune have the right answer?

Do the constitutional rights of individuals transcend those of society? Should we eat less meat so our grain can be sent to starving Asians and Africans instead of fattening up our hogs and cattle? Or do you think that's their problem, there are too many of them anyway, and it's all so far away?

Is it bad to be rich? To what extent will you be willing to subsidize the needs of others, under, in double-speak language, what is called the Transfer of Incomes policy?

Do you have the independence of thought to reach your own conclusions on abortion? Will you be prepared to pick the sex of your children in advance? Will you want to? Or will science go too far, and are some things better left alone?

These are a few of the questions you will be called upon to answer in your lifetime, perhaps in the near future, as you develop your own personal values. The answers are perhaps not as important as is the quality of thought by which you arrive at your own conclusions.

Last, I would hope that, as a corollary to philosophy No. 3, you will develop a taste and appreciation for the humanities—art, music and literature—the true expressions of the creativity of mankind. Use your time wisely, class members, and remember, your education has only begun, even if you have now completed a formal part of it.

On behalf of the School Committee, may I wish you every success. It has been a pleasure to have had some small part in helping you on your way.

Thank you.

The Winchester Scholarship Foundation will benefit from a spring music festival on Thursday, June 12 at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

The music department has arranged a program featuring several performing groups whose musical talents have been developed through special rehearsals outside the regular school program.

A chorus of 100 voices representing each of the nine elementary schools will present music of the nine master composers as well as selections by contemporary composers under the direction of elementary music specialists Herman F. Greene, Jeanne London and Mary T. Pierce. Mrs. Susan Suvak will accompany the group.

The Winchester elementary orchestra, which includes students from all elementary schools for the first time this year, will perform works of Fitzwilliam, Mendelssohn, and French composers under the direction of John R. Woodworth.

The junior high school stage band, directed by David M. Kontoff, will perform music in the jazz and rock idiom. Membership in this group is by audition only.

Students and teachers in these groups have all rehearsed regularly after school throughout the year. The enrichment committee of the Community School Association of Winchester is assisting the music department with concert arrangements.

How Safe Is YOUR Drinking Water?

While officials were reacting to the cancer scare, yet another disturbing discovery rippled the waters. Scientists both here and abroad found that chlorine—the odd, reliable disinfectant that for half a century has protected us from waterborne diseases—is in itself suspect. It is thought to react with some of the organic compounds to produce new and potentially carcinogenic agents in the treatment plant itself.

At present, the most promising technique for dealing with organic chemicals is the use of activated carbon. This remarkable purifier—which is burnt-over coal or wood—has long been utilized by bottling companies and other industries to improve the taste and odor of their products. Recently it has been found to be remarkably efficient in trapping and removing organic chemical contaminants.

If a community needs only to add carbon treatment to the old water plant, the costs can be surprisingly little. Gordon Robeck, director of EPA's research laboratory in Cincinnati, estimates that carbon filtration adds no more than two to three cents per 1000 gallons.

Though you can't do much for your water after it comes out of the tap, you can do a lot about it as a political interest in water and, if dislocated, to form better water committees. They should visit local treatment plants, ask to see the latest tests and, if these are withheld, go to the health department or even to the governor, and keep the press informed. "You can make your community give you good water," says Robeck. "After all, you're paying the bill."

Art exhibit in corridor of Lincoln School

Lincoln Parents Assn. Meets

The annual meeting of the Lincoln School parents' association recently in the school auditorium heard retiring president Sally Cusato thank board members and parents for cooperation during the year.

Maureen Mawn, nominating chairman presented a slate of officers for the coming school year: President Mary Perra, first vice-president Betsy Spiller, second vice-president Ursula McMorrow, recording secretary Merri Ciotli, corresponding secretary Mary Brown, treasurer Linda Maylor.

Standing committee chairmen are Lillian Costello, Gretchen Kaeck, Marietta Bruno, Maryann Outwater, Jean DiVincenzo, Noreen Arcari, Shirley Moore, Allen McCarty, Alice Osgood, Lorna Tascakares, Pat Bracken, Janet O'Leary, Barbara Tobiason.

Following the meeting parents toured classrooms for reading and language demonstrations and read stories composed by students. The orange room was decorated with art work and was the scene of slide shown by Principal William A. Warnock of the six grade's trip to Sargent Camp.

The final activity planned by the board will be a family picnic on the school grounds on Wednesday, June 4, from 5 to 7:30. Families may bring picnic suppers or may purchase hot dogs and cold drinks from a chuckwagon.

At 6:30 there will be a physical education demonstration in the gym under the direction of Steve Hood. Grades 1, 2 and 3 will participate.

Time Days Stay Intact After 3-3 Vote, Release

Following a 3-3 vote recently by the School Committee on a recommendation from Supt. of Schools William C. MacDonald to reduce the number of release time days by 10, the number of days will continue next year as this year.

This means there will be a release time day once each week.

According to the Winchester Elementary School Principals' Assn. (Wespa), release days provide opportunity to help children, for staff and team meetings, for core evaluations, child study team meetings, parent conferences, curriculum workshops, inter-school workshops, intramural programs, staff scheduling for report cards and liaison meetings scheduled by the director of curriculum.

Committee members favoring reducing the number of days were members Robert Frank, Mary Pronski and John Noble.

Those who voted to retain the number of days were Catherine Fallon, Stephen Parkhurst and Richard Pharo, chairman.

Release time days are held on Tuesdays except for weeks in which a holiday occurs. During weeks when there are holidays, there is no release day.

Recently Frank asked for an evaluation of the release time days. As a result, MacDonald reported that elementary principals met, recently and recommended the release days be kept in the school calendar primarily for curriculum workshops. However, he said, the principals were not unanimous in his opinion.

MacDonald explained that 14 release time days are negotiated in teacher contracts and must remain in the schedule.

Of the others, which could be reinstituted as instructional days, the principals said they need three at the beginning of school, three at the end and six for report card conferences in between.

In discussion, Frank asked when curriculum workshops might be scheduled if the 10 days were taken away.

Mrs. Martha Grenzback, principal of the Mystic School, said the workshops likely wouldn't happen at all. Other principals at the School Committee meeting agreed.

William Warnock, principal of the Lincoln School, said he feels workshops could be worked into the schedule.

Parkhurst said a release time day each week makes "educational sense," and Mrs. Fallon said she feels the talk of reducing the release time days is "responding to public pressure."

Pre-Kindergarten Program Offered

The Winchester summer school, part of the Lesley-Winchester enrichment course, is offering the kindergarten readiness program for youngsters entering kindergarten this fall. Children will work under kindergarten teachers and graduate interns from Lesley College.

Purpose of the program is to ease the transition from the home environment to the formal school community.

Outdoor games and activities are scheduled.

Although there is exposure to numbers and letters the major thrust of instruction is a better understanding and application of skills already possessed by the child rather than a broad promotion of new knowledge and skills.

The program will get underway Monday, June 30, and continue daily for six weeks through Friday, Aug. 8. Classes run from 8:30 to 11:45. Arrangements may be made for shorter periods if parents or teachers feel this would be more beneficial to the child.

Information and registration forms are available at each of the town's elementary schools.

Committee Hires Ch. 766 Coordinator

The appointment of an educational special needs coordinator came Monday night after three hours of discussion by the School Committee in closed session.

William Dyssinger, coordinator of special education in Bethel, Conn., was named to the $21,000 a year post on a unanimous vote of the School Committee.

Committee member Stephen R. Parkhurst said the board interviewed three "well qualified candidates for this position" on Monday night. None, he said, are from the Winchester school system.

Supt. William C. MacDonald said Dyssinger is the most qualified of the three. "It's a most important position," said MacDonald.

Committee member Catherine R. Fallon said Dyssinger will come to Winchester "with comparable experience in Connecticut."

Dyssinger received a bachelor degree from Muhlenberg College in Allentown, Penn., a master's from University of Hartford and an advanced certificate from Fairfield University, Conn.

He was one of 68 applicants for the Winchester position. Twenty-five were interviewed by Henry Perry or Howard Niblock of the School Department.

The seven leading candidates were interviewed by an ad hoc committee to select a coordinator. The three final candidates were then interviewed by the School Committee.

In other action Monday, the committee turned back to the Finance Committee $10,000 it had set aside for possible payment of counselors and specialists associated with special needs in education. (A story on that matter appears elsewhere in this week's Star.)

The committee also voted, 3-2, to table appointment of coaching positions until next week when Athletic Director William Colella explains salaries for women coaches vis-a-vis men.

The board voted 4-1 to change its policy slightly on kindergarten and first grade enrollments. Dec. 31 is now the "magic day," as Supt. MacDonald put it, on entering kindergarten and first grade.

A child must be five years of age by Dec. 31 to enter kindergarten and six years of age by Dec. 31 to enter first grade.

A sub-committee recommended this date be extended to Feb. 1 under certain conditions: For one, parental request is required; two, permission of the school principal must be obtained and an evaluation by specialists made.

Purpose of the change, MacDonald explained, is to give children who missed the entry deadline a few extra days. "This would avoid early admissions constantly coming to the School Committee for a waiver and recommendations," MacDonald commented.

He said the department expects the family to provide an evaluation by a pediatrician before the department will consider an early admission.

Winchester will assume the cost of separate testing of the child, he said.

The change was opposed by Committee member Mary G. Pronski, who argued that if the department turns down an early admission parents may try and fight the decision.

Mrs. Pronski said that changing the deadline will merely move up the date and some parents of those born shortly after the new deadline will try and get waivers. Chairman Richard L. Pharo said the level of maturity is different today than 15 years ago and admissions deadlines should reflect that.

The board first voted 3-1 in favor of reconsidering its May vote establishing the Dec. 31 cut off date. Since a two-thirds vote is required for reconsideration, as Mrs. Pronski pointed out, Chairman Pharo (who normally doesn't vote) added his name to those favoring the new dates.

The actual vote to change was then 4-1. Committee member Robert S. Frank abstained from both votes.

The committee voted to "freeze" $29,000 in funds resulting from a windfall in cost-of-living contract over-estimations.

A cost-of-living clause is included in salaries for custodians, teachers and principals. The School department had over-estimated by half a point the current cost-of-living increase.

Committee member Parkhurst said the resulting $29,000 windfall should be frozen for possible unforeseen future expenses.

The mood of committee members was not to spend this money for new programs but Committee member Frank said he was unwilling to go along with that.

"Some of the things cut last month [programs] saddened me," Frank said.

Parkhurst said spending the money would put the committee "in a very difficult position" if the board had then to return for a request for money for unforeseen expenses.

An item on reconstruction of the new high school baseball field was tabled until next week for discussion.

Rev. Storer's Topic Sunday, 'Going To Pot'

On Sunday, June 8, Reverend Storer will preach at the 10:30 service at the Winchester Unitarian Church. His topic will be "Going To Pot."

Storer raises the question "is the world going to the dogs and if so what is the individual doing about it?" This is not the time in human history to say nothing cares or nothing matters, or that nobody cares, claims Storer.

Following the morning service, members of the congregation may join in an ecumenical service on the lawn in back of the town library at noon. The Folk Singers and the Sacred Dance Group of the Unitarian Church will participate.

Christian Scientists Hold Worldwide Annual Meeting

This week Christian Scientists from Winchester joined fellow members from all over the world to attend their annual meeting in Boston.

The theme of the week-long meeting was "The Power of God's Word."

Otto Bertsch, incoming chairman of the Christian Science Board of Directors, addressed the members.

He said, "Obedience to God's law illumines individual consciousness and saves the individual from the fearful contemporary picture of vast public and private insulations, against which ordinary men and women too often feel helpless and ineffective."

He said, "The victimizing effects of materialism need to be countered with spiritual power. It is vital," he said, "that we separate the hypnotic claims of material power from the true power that belongs to God."

He continued, "Divine power always acts through spiritual illumination." He suggested all members reaffirm the spiritual power of Christianity calling for new vision to match new challenges.

Scholarship Group To Have Booth

The Winchester Scholarship Foundation will have a booth during Town Day celebrations. The purpose of the booth is to communicate information about the foundation.

Govoni Works

The work of Winchester artist Pauline Govoni was recently on exhibit at the Medford Arts Council show held in Medford.

Mystic Pupils Give Bicentennial Show

Two hundred Mystic School children, from kindergarten to sixth grade, recently presented an original bicentennial program of dances, interviews, songs and scenes.

Richard Reel as the Spirit of '76, identified artifacts, maps, costumes and books as an introduction to events of the past two hundred years in the United States and in Winchester.

The life and times of early Indian residents was presented in a history of the Pawtucket and Tarrantine tribes.

A panel based on the format of To Tell the Truth interrogated three Squaw Sachems to discover which was the most knowledgeable and real ruler of her tribe.

Early education with the Horn Book, writing slates and stern schoolmaster was traced through the three locations and four housings of the Mystic School.

It was noted that in 1852 Winchester ranked second among 353 towns in the amount of money spent for each student.

A neighbor, Mrs. Leslie Olmstead, aged 90, told of the time when the present Mystic School was a field where cows were pastured.

Railroad workers, bringing to life the coming of immigrant laborers, were accompanied by songs.

Cowboy ballads recalled westward expansion.

A Middlesex Canal scene reminded the audience of the canal's usefulness in moving cargo and passengers.

It explained the role of the bank-watchers who patrolled the route, and the bounty hunters who frequented it.

Recent restoration of the canal was commended for historical and ecological significance.

Richard Parkhurst's voice on tape recalled memories of the Brooks Estate, Snyder's Pond, early grocery stores and the general appearance of down town Winchester.

Life and education in the thirties and forties was described by Stephen Parkhurst as he was interviewed by a reporter.

Future hopes for the country and efforts to achieve understanding of all peoples through education, was the children's concluding purpose.

David Sirchis recalled the sacrifices people made for their country. He led the cast and audience in singing the national anthem.

Selectmen Schedule Special TM July 17

July 17 is the date of a special town meeting set Monday night by the Board of Selectmen after meeting with Developer Edward Riess of Wakefield.

Riess, who wants to build an apartment house on the site of the old Bonnell Motors on Main street, has submitted petitions for a special town meeting.

The selectmen discussed possible other articles for the STM but it appeared doubtful whether any might be included in the July STM because of limited time before it starts.

Riess is interested in obtaining a zoning change from the town meeting to allow his apartment building to rise one more story than that permitted by law.

He wants to erect a five-story 73-unit building where the former automobile and showroom garage are located. The apartment would also rise on an adjacent house lot.

The board tried to convince Riess to delay his special town meeting but he said financial commitments and a purchase and sale agreement require him to act quickly.

He said he had been forced to gather the necessary signatures to call a STM because last week when he talked to selectmen the board didn't make a decision on when it would call a STM.

The Planning Board favors July 17.

The selectmen on Monday also met with about two dozen residents of Cross street to discuss an application for a permit to store fuel oil in a truck at 151 Cross st.

The application was from Gerald D. Errico of Keego & Sons, who rents the space to Richard Rogers of Winchester. Rogers parks his oil truck on the property at night.

Residents expressed concern about safety and related matters. Fire Chief I. Francis Amico, who sees no danger in the situation, recommends approval of the application.

The truck has been parked there a year without the owner having received a required permit. Amico said the truck cannot park there until the land owner gets a permit.

Errico said the truck owner is out of state vacationing and can't be reached.

Lawrence T. Smith, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, said the circumstances require "certain discretions."

The board announced it will decide the permit next Monday at 9 p.m.

On another citizen matter, the board voted to install a bright light (conditioned on neighborhood approval) in the Dunster lane area.

Residents there have complained recently of youths drinking and making noise.

The selectmen met with their town manager-search committee and heard lengthy statistics breaking down applicants into categories.

Most of the 80 applicants have more than three years' experience as town managers. The section of the country most represented among the applications is the east—with 47.

The committee, according to member Robert Grenzeback, has broken the 80 applications into three categories of desirability: most desirable, middle, least.

According to committee member Robert Armstrong (as reported by Grenzeback) friction has been found to exist in towns where the selectmen and the town manager maintain their own staffs.

The Board of Selectmen's executive secretary, Edward Donnelly, is now a candidate for the town manager's position. His application was submitted last Wednesday.

A request for a permit to move a house from 7 Maple rd to Forest or Washington streets was held pending reports from the Highway and Engineering departments.

The selectmen still have not acted on redistricting he town as required by law. The town's voting lines must be expanded from six precincts to eight.

June 12 Deadline

As VA Director

June 12 is the deadline to apply at the selectmen's office for the temporary, fulltime position of director of veterans services with the Town of Winchester.

The director of veterans services is responsible for all phases of veterans benefits and veterans service administration.

The person who obtains the position will be expected to perform various other administrative functions as time allows.

The director of veterans services must be a veteran and a high school graduate. Three years in social work, veterans benefits or administrative work is also required.

A college degree in social science or business or public administration is desirable.

Application forms may be obtained in the selectmen's office at the Town Hall.

The committee is also expected to recognize educators who will be retiring.

Under new business, the committee will review a revised job description for the Metro coordinator.

Bigelow Signed By Kansas City Kings, Their No. 1 Basketball Draft Choice

Once Written Off As 'Pretty Good'; Contract Will Run Into Six Figures

by John F. Parrell

The annual draft of players by the National Basketball Association teams would usually draw little more than a passing glance from even the most avid Winchester sports devotee.

It would list the names of various players from such places as Sylacauga, Ala., or Fantasia State Junior College and ten of their tremendous scoring records, their seven foot stature and how many millions they might expect to be offered.

Then comes the usual question, "How come none of our New England boys is ever picked?" If that day ever comes he will no doubt be from Catholic Memorial, Somerville or some big schoolboy basketball power.

Of course, Ronnie Lee, former star at Lexington, will almost certainly be a first round choice when he finishes his studies, but New England draftees in any round are unusual and in the first round almost an impossibility.

The last and only recent one was Terry Driscoll, former Boston College star selected in 1969.

But all this was suddenly changed last week when Bob Bigelow was named number one choice by the Kansas City Kings.

The rangy former Winchester High captain lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Bigelow, at 39 Grove st. He has been playing basketball at the University of Pennsylvania for the past four years and was an important factor in this year's Ivy League championship team.

His younger brother, Sandy, played basketball for Winchester and was captain of the 1973-74 Sachem team.

Bigelow, who now stands 6 feet 7 inches and weighs in at 215 pounds, has been a basketball enthusiast since his early school days. He has played the game with enthusiasm and interest and had had the complete support of his parents.

He has developed gradually and is now playing the best basketball of his career. If he continues this steady improvement he should prove a valuable asset to the Kings.

He played three years at Winchester High under coach Vandy French, who has known him since his earliest days on the basketball court. Bigelow had an outstanding high school record at Winchester High.

He is the all-time scoring leader with 1,900 points. This was compiled mostly over his final two seasons since he suffered a severe attack of the flu which slowed him down over most of his sophomore year.

Twice a member of the Middlesex League all star teams, Bigelow was chosen Boston all scholastic in his junior and senior high school seasons.

Coach French provided the following facts:

Bigelow averaged 19 points per game as a junior when the Sachems went to the semi-finals of the Tech tournament. They eliminated Cathedral and Danvers in cliff hangers before losing to the eventual winner, Hyde Park. Bigelow's per game average in the tourney was 27.6 points.

As a senior he shot 55 percent from the floor and had an 82 percent average from the foul line. His scoring average was 25.2 targeted in 18 rebounds per game.

This was the record that he took to the University of Pennsylvania, where he played under the tutelage of Chuck Daley, former Boston College coach.

With such a background one might expect spectacular scoring figures in college. To the contrary, French points out that Bigelow's senior year was his best when he averaged 12.5 points and roughly eight rebounds per game.

His college years were ones of great development, during which the scoring facet was minimized to the vast improvement in his defensive play.

Bigelow remarked that he will always remember the story told him by French during his junior year in high school. Bigelow had what for him was a low scoring game (under 20 points). He was feeling depressed so the coach took him aside and said that the best game he (coach) ever played was one in which he didn't get a single point.

French had rebounded, stolen the ball, passed off to others and played what he felt was basketball as it should be played. After talking with the cool, level headed and logical thinking Bigelow this could well have been the start of transformation.

During his senior year and in college days Bigelow played a great deal of basketball with the black players in Roxbury. His arch rival and close friend at Lexington was Ronnie Lee. Seeing Bigelow's ability and his temperament, Lee introduced him to the Boston basketball team.

Bigelow learned a great deal in Roxbury.

There were advantages in being a player who utilized not only natural shooting skill and grace but played a heady and intellectual game.

When he started playing on the college courts Winchester sports followers read what few summaries they could find in the Boston papers.

Bigelow was not playing that much and was getting only about five points per game. They saw him play a little on television. Here again he appeared for short periods and didn't do much in scoring. Bigelow was written off as a pretty good high school player, but not really able to do much under college conditions.

The transformation of Bigelow from an offensive to a defensive hoop player was underway. It was long and sometimes painful to sit on the bench and try to expand his single coverage of high school days into team coverage defensively.

There were many discouraging moments. Bigelow is not one to give up easily. He kept plugging and recalls his junior years as the most discouraging point of his basketball career.

But this season, his final one in college, he began to see that what had taken so long to learn was beginning to pay off in terms of making him more effective.

What had been almost misery to learn began to be a major part of the overall team effectiveness. He was pleased, for he felt he had now arrived as a complete team player.

Bob Bigelow

He was not scoring consistently in double figures, but he was contributing 100 per cent to the team effort. After tallying 18 points against Dartmouth his mother remarked that he must have had a great game. His reply was "the worst one I've played all year."

Such is Bigelow's philosophy of the game of basketball which will stand him in good stead as he begins his professional career. Bob feels that two of his best games this year were the all star game in Philadelphia, for which he received a large trophy and the Aloha Bowl in Hawaii. This letter game confirmed the Kansas City determination to make him their first round draft choice according to the management and scouts of the Kings.

Bigelow describes his contract with the Kings as "a multi-year guaranteed contract, and very secure."

It is a safe bet that it will run into six figures and that it contains many fringe benefits for education. It was all done and signed under the best possible legal auspices (his father is a lawyer).

Bigelow reports in mid-September. But not with the rookies. You can be sure he will be in perfect shape as a result of summer camp activity and hours at the Ginn Field court helping to bring along future Winchester players.

Bigelow will not reach his 22nd birthday until the day after Christmas. By then he will be performing for the Kings under the coaching of Phil Johnson.

He will be a teammate of Nate Archibald, et al, and hope to be an important factor in keeping the team in the race for the title. Bigelow has been designated a guard with swing possibilities. He still hasn't lost his eye for the hoop, but his definite job will be to cover the bigger and more aggressive opposing guards.

With his philosophy of the game and his level-headed style of play there is little doubt of his success.

Bigelow is described by those who know him as dedicated, hard working, and loyal with a real concern for all other people.

He has played every position on the court well. He believes the game must be played first of all with the head and that the necessary body moves will follow.

Bigelow is Winchester's first and only contribution to the National Basketball Association. If past performances are a criterion the town will be ably represented.

Girls May Have Lost Meet 'But Won Within Ourselves'

The Winchester Star sports desk last week received the following poem and letter in response to an article The Star ran May 15 on the girls track team at Winchester High School.

"There are many assets that were neglected," the girls who signed the letter state. "The meet was not a failure" (against Belmont). "We lost against another town—but some of us won within ourselves."

THE POEM:

'We Are Just A Frustrated Few'

We are just a frustrated few
Of kids who try to care.
We've learned that track is up to you—
So join it if you dare.

Not many will persuade you
To come and do your best.
But once the challenge is in you,
You'll never want to rest.

If you're afraid to learn to try
Even after your body says "quit!"
Then you should pass the track team by.
Go home and read or sit.

But once you feel the pressures
Of victory or defeat
Then you will reap the pleasures
Of competing in a meet.

If you can't understand why we run
When no one tells us to
Or why we consecutively jump and fall
Then come and try—and lose.

For you'll keep on coming back
To beat a clock or clear a bar
Until no hurdle is an obstacle
And no distance is too far.

Girls, you're really missing something
You've got the chance to progress.
The track team is equally open.
It's up to us to show it success.

Renee K. George

THEIR LETTER:

Goals Get Closer Each Day of Work

TO THE SPORTS EDITOR:

We really love track—the challenge and individualism. We go every day to work to the best of our ability. Each day the goals get closer and closer to being achieved through steadfastness and self-esteem.

We've learned that what you put into track determines the satisfaction that you will get out of it. The reward that is the most gratifying is the realization that you have improved and that you have done this all on your own.

But we are just a few dedicated girls who go the practice every day and work to our potential.

The judgment has been made that there are not enough of us to hold the two scheduled girls track meets. They have been cancelled.

We are not going to give up. We will keep practicing, setting goals, achieving them and then moving them up higher. We will be back next year and we hope lots of other girls will follow.

We want to compete and we want you to compete with us so that we can have a team what people must take seriously (including The Star).

The road is a hard one and hurdles are not the only obstacles. Girls at WHS have the potential to work around the barriers and feel the intense pride that comes from Achievements hard-earned.

Softball Team Squeaks By Watertown In Extra Innings

In their eighth game this season Winchester High softball team squeaked out a 6-5 victory over Watertown in extra innings.

Winchester was ahead 4-0 in the sixth inning and in the seventh Watertown tied it 5-5 to put the game into extra innings. Winchester scored the winning run from third base by Liz Barrow on a hit by Maira McGoldrick with two outs. Both teams played well defensively, keeping it a close exciting game.

Winchester came up against an extremely fast pitcher and was only able to get two hits in the final game of the season, vs Woburn. They played well defensively, making only three errors in the field.

Winchester scored their only run in the last inning when Abby Thomas, after walking and getting to third on two sacrifices, came home.

Winchester finished the season with a two and seven record. They look forward to a good season next year with the return of many varsity players.

The junior varsity had a fine season coached by Pam Canney. They finished with an even four and four record.

This year's softball banquet was at Capt. Lydia DeSanctis' home, where gifts were given to coaches Joan Rosazza and Pam Canney.

Captains selected by the team for the 1976 season are catcher Maira McGoldrick and center fielder Anne Levinson.

The Winchester High School Sachem tennis team swept past the Woburn Tanners to end their Middlesex League season at 9-0. They then beat Quincy and Newton South 4-1 in the Eastern Massachusetts tourney.

They appeared to have won the eventual title on the ropes when the rains came last Friday. Play resumed Sunday and Weston rallied for a 3-2 triumph.

The golfers posted victories in two of their three matches, beating Belmont and Wakefield 5-3, but were paled by Reading 8-1.

Opals Defeat Garnets, 5-4

The Opals of girls little league defeated the Garnets 5-4 in a game at West Side Field on Saturday, May 24.

The Opals are coached by Mary Hill and Cindy Blanch. The Garnets are coached by Susan DeBaradinis and Sara Marie Kincaid.

Hitling strong for the Opals were Karen Mathson and Lydia Mongiello, who both made doubles. Maria Dellasala hit a solid triple. Sara Samoiloff connected for a homerun.

Merchants Start Off On Two Wrong Feet

The 1975 Winchester Merchants reversed the 1974 start in the Intercity Baseball League by managing to lose the first two games last week.

Last year they won their first two games, but started off this year with a 13-0 loss to the champion Hosmer Chiefs, then dropped a night contest to Waltham last Thursday night, 4-1.

The improvement in the two games, however, was encouraging for future games.

The week of June 8 they play Medford at Medford, Monday; Belmont (new to the league) on Wednesday at Manchester Field; Hosmer and Arlex away, Thursday and Friday.

The Hosmer game last week was no contest after the Hosmer third inning when they scored four runs, including two three-run homers by Jack Mountain. In a bizarre fifth inning, Winchester could do nothing right—4 errors, a hit batsman, four walks and a wild pitch.

Hosmer got two doubles and two singles, but ended up with nine tallies to clinch the victory. Newly acquired Frank LeBlanc and Tom Ferris pitched for Winchester, but suffered from non support. The offense could muster only three hits.

At Waltham Thursday night under the lights Ed Fitzgerald showed fine stuff and should have earned a victory. But the Winchesterites committed five errors behind him as he walked three and struck out four in the 5-2-3 innings the game lasted.

Winchester did chip in with six hits, but mental lapses became their undoing. From the first game to the second was such an improvement that they should be an exciting team to watch in the future contests.

Sara Samoiloff makes an easy jaunt into home as she leads her team, the Opals, to victory on a recent Saturday. Sara is one of the Opals' top hitters.

Sox Bounce Back To Hit Yankees

The Red Sox bounced back from a 9-2 defeat last Thursday to ease out previously undefeated Yankees in a hard fought 10-9 game.

Both pitchers, Alan Pontes for the Yankees and Jamie Accardo for the Red Sox, did superb jobs on the mound.

The first two innings saw the Sox in front, 4-1. But the Yankees, led by Porter, Pontes, and Gibbons in the top of the third, were able to tie with three runs.

The Yankees managed to hold the Red Sox scoreless in the third. The Sox took the field and tightened their defensive play, holding the Yankees scoreless.

In the bottom of the fourth the Yankees gave up four runs on a lead off single by Jim Barger followed by a walk to Steve Tucci.

Seam Mandeville and Jamie Accardo hit back to back doubles, allowing them to score when Art Nason tapped out a single.

The fifth inning saw the Yankees score two when Art Nason tapped out a single.

back to back doubles, allowing them to score when Art Nason tapped out a single.

The fifth inning saw the Yankees score two unanswered runs as the Yankees put the Sox out 1-2-3. The score going into the top of the sixth was Red Sox 8, Yankees 6.

The Yankees tallied three runs to put them in front 9-8. Steve Tucci left off the sixth. He walked. Tucci eventually scored after a double by Mandeville.

A long fly to center allowed Mandeville to tag up and cross the plate with the tenth and winning run.

There was excellent defensive play by Red Sox players Fran Murray, Art Bason, Rich Strulthers, Mike Dulchinos, Steve Vroznan, John Hennelly, Steve Driscoll and recently acquired David Cuisione, who took the place of injured Red Sox catcher Tim Casey whose absence was felt.

The Yankees, under the coaching of Ralph Snyderman, has had a successful season so far. Umpire Leonard Weckel added color to the game.

Hornets, Apollos Lead In Cap League

After losing their first game at Ginn Field last Saturday, the Brooke Green Hornets bounced back with a five-run rally against the Braves in the top of the sixth inning Sunday to retain the lead in the visor division of Cap League baseball.

At West Side Field, the Apollos, tied for first place last week, won both games to gain undisputed possession of the top rung. They beat the Astros in a close battle, 5-4, and pushed last week's tie contender into third place.

In other games at Ginn Field, in the visor division, the Red Sox came out of their shell to blast the Braves Saturday, 19-0, and squeak out a hard fought slugging battle over the Rangers, 12-10.

These wins pushed the Red Sox into second place. The Rangers, winless until Saturday, surprised the Blue Jays with a 7-4 victory.

Then at the same time the previously unbeaten Hornets came a cropper against the second place Bobcats and lost 6-15.

At the home field of the crown division—

West Side—the Eagles finally finding their wings, flew over the Astros, 10-4. The Apollos beat the Orioles 9-7 and the Dodgers helped the Pirates continue their skid with a 13-6 pasting.

On Sunday the Eagles continued a drive towards first place with a convincing 12-7 win over the Dodgers. The Orioles whitewashed the Pirates 8-0. The Apollos sneak by the Astros 5-4.

Next week will be the final full weekend play for Cap League, with one day remaining for the make-up of the rained-out May 4 contests.

Several games will bear close watching, such as the Hornets-Blue Jays at Ginn Field and the Eagles-Apollos at West Side, both on Saturday.

Depending on next weekend's matchups, the Saturday, June 14, postponed contests could decide the title in both divisions.

The Little League Bermuda trip for two drawing will be made at Ginn Field on Saturday, June 14.

Whippets Hold 7-3 Record

The Little League Whippets bear a strong resemblance to the 1967 Red Sox pennant winning team because of their never die attitude and ability to come from behind and win.

Since a 7-6 loss to the Wolves, this team has pulled itself together to win six out of its last seven games for a 7-3 record.

The balanced offensive attack features speed and power.

Speed is supplied by John (Rabbit) Raso, Billy Sarcia, David Day, Cubby McGee and David Sevigny. These boys along with the smart baserunning of Mark Nadeau and Michael County, steal base after base.

Power comes from the bats of Jasper Asaro, Jim Somerville, Anthony Gaeta and David Anderson. Improved hitting is from Jon Stein and lefty, Chris Griffith.

Defensively this team shapes up second to none. David Day had proven himself at first base, and Mark Costello and Mark Nadeau have done a good job at second.

Shortstop features Billy Sarcia who always comes up with the big play in the clutch while Jasper Asaro handles hot shots at third with authority.

Catching duties are shared by the two team leaders, Jim Somerville and Anthony Gaeta. Pitching is a strong point on the Whippets with Michael County and Tony Gaeta.

John Raso in centerfield leads the outfield corps with a couple of gamesaving catches to his credit.

In left, David Anderson is starting to come on strong along with improved Cubby McGee. David Sevigny and Jon Stein cover rightfield with speed and strong throwing arms.

Record 169 Teams Vie In Men's Doubles

Top seeds survived the May 24 weekend tennis ordeal in three out of the four events staged over the Memorial Day town tennis draw tournament.

A record 169 teams vied in men's doubles, women's doubles, mixed doubles and family doubles.

The final matches went off on Monday, May 26, almost exactly on schedule, with sun and wind as sometimes beneficial factors in the annual competition.

The most team entries occurred in the mixed doubles, where Michele Ferrera and Steve Hafner defeated Joan Richardson and Elliott Miller in the final, 6-2, 6-4.

From the 45 men's doubles combinations, Tom Raleigh and Dave Miller whipped Jerry Dionne and Don Ellis in the last match, 6-2, 6-2.

The family doubles draw drew 38 entries. As expected Dick Kadesch Sr. and son Phil emerged victors over Bob and Porter Mulford 6-1, 6-0, to cop that crown.

In the only event not captured by the first seeded team, Bea Gonella and Glenda Green overcame a first set loss to win the ladies doubles event over Cynthia Daley and Mary Ann Outwater 4-6, 6-0, 6-2.

The Packer courts, where this tennis fiesta is held every year, were in fine shape, kept that way throughout the tough weekend by the Park Department's maintenance crew. In addition, through the cooperation of Whit Gray, supervisor of the courts, many townspeople were able to get in tennis over the weekend, whether they were in the tournament or not.

The next events, also sponsored by the Winchester Tennis Association, include a Mystic Valley father and son tournament in July, a husband and wife competition tentatively scheduled for August and the annual fall tournament the second and third weekend of September. That will include the same events as the just-concluded play, plus men's and ladies singles.

All aspiring tennis players in Winchester may sharpen their game for any and all of these tests coming up. Watch the Star for details.

Charles Birchall Leaves Golf Team

Rich Mauger Title Winner

By John F. Parrell

Posting a 50.2 second time for the 440 yard run Rick Mauger, Winchester High School junior speedster, was winner of the Class B championship.

The meet at White Stadium, Dorchester, attracted hundreds of outstanding track athletes from the eastern part of the state. Reading, Middlesex League champions, outclassed the other schools in the division to take top honors in Class B.

Rick will be entered in the state all-class competition Saturday at the Andover track. WHS Coach Manny Marshall figures he should do well enough to be eligible for the New England meet at the same track a week from Saturday.

The only other Winchester scorer in last week's events was Richard Minutoli, who picked up two points as he finished fifth in the hurdles. Winchester's final total was 12 points.

The annual outdoor meet with the Woburn Tanners had a result practically identical with all the other track events this year, with Woburn emerging the winner by 93-47.

Mauger in the 220, Kevin Whalen in the 440 and Chipman in the pole vault were Sachem first place winners as was the relay team of Andrew McCarthy, Santos and Mauger.

Woburn swept the triple jump and 100-yard dash and took the long jump, shot put, high jump and 880-yard run by lopsided margins of 8-1.

This brought to an end an unhappy season which saw the Sachems beaten in every meet. The good performers did their best and scored about as expected in every meet, but the team has no depth and lacks the necessary second and third place material which could provide enough points to win the dual meets.

Mauger has been outstanding. Minutoli scored well in the hurdles. Chipman did well in the pole vault.

Carucci provided points in the broad jump and 100 Whalen and Accardo provided strength in weight events.

Girls Tennis Wins State Play

Not too much has been heard about Coach Debbie Clum's Winchester High School girls basketball team. They have played well through a hard schedule and finished in a three-way tie for the Middlesex League title. They followed this up with an opening round 4-1 victory over Brockton in eastern Massachusetts girls tennis play. This tournament continues this week.

The team was led by Nancy Raleigh, who went undefeated during her entire three years of Middlesex League play. The best match was against Lexington in which every varsity match but two went to three sets. This victory was a must for Winchester and helped forge the three-way tie.

The season's record:
Belmont 3, Winchester 2
Winchester 4, Burlington 1
Winchester 4, Reading 1
Winchester 5, Wakefield 0
Winchester 1, Lexington 2
Winchester 5, Melrose 0
Winchester 5, Stoughton 0

Hearing July 8 On Bonnell Site

The Planning Board met Monday night and voted to ask the selectmen to call a special town meeting July 17 and to limit articles.

The board was meeting for its twice-monthly meeting with a small agenda. Purpose of the special TM is a request for a zoning change from Edward Riess of Wakefield to permit construction of a five-story apartment building on the old Bonnell property on Main street.

The date of the scheduled June 10 Board of Appeal hearing on the issue was changed Wednesday morning to Tuesday, July 8.

The change is to comply with necessary scheduling dates in conjunction with the special town meeting.

There has been no change in the other scheduled public hearing before the Board of Appeal on June 10—request from Winchester Hospital for a permit to build a garage.

On the same evening the board will hear an appeal concerning a dispute over the number of families allowed at 7-9-11 Eaton st.

The town's new zoning administrator has restricted the building to three families. The owners, William and Judith Caci, claim the premises have been maintained for five families since 1924.

The Planning Board has taken no position on Riess's apartment proposal. The board will wait until after its own public hearing.

This plan is for a five-story apartment building on the site of the abandoned automobile sales center. Parking would be on the first floor, where there would also be five apartments.

Riess seeks to change the zoning law stipulation limiting the number of stories in that zone to four. Riess wants it changed to five. He has not asked for a change in the 45 foot height limit.

rates they desire and the physician or the hospital have had no choice but to accept the rate or go without insurance coverage.

In addition, a rebate provision would be included to require the companies to refund any excessive profits they may earn if the tribunal system is successful.

"The high increase in malpractice insurance premiums is economically frightening to all hospitals," James said, "because it represents a cost over which the hospital has no control."

"To the contrary, it represents a control exercised by a small group of casualty in insurance companies that results in a significant budgetary item, without the hospitals being able to determine in advance what the total premium cost will be for the ensuing year."

"This problem of malpractice rate increases has become nationwide and will ultimately affect every prospective user of health care services as hospitals, physicians and others take steps to increase their charges to reflect the increased rates."

"The circle then becomes completed when third party payors such as Blue Cross, Blue Shield, Medicare, welfare and others have to increase their income in order to balance off the increases in physician's fees and hospital rates."

"Literally every person will feel the effects of unbridled malpractice rates unless some action is taken and taken soon," said James.

"House Bill 5978 is a step in the right direction and I urge every citizen to lend his support to its enactment by writing or calling his senator and representative urging passage of the bill."

"The campaign for cost containment requires everyone's support and this is the time when the community and the legislature can make their contribution to this campaign."

"The management and the governing board of Winchester Hospital share with all interested citizens a deep concern about the cost of health care and in the face of the significant increases in medical malpractice premiums, recognize that controlling legislation is necessary to counteract the effect such premium rates will have on health care costs."

Eaton-French

Team Wins

Fourth Match

The Winchester C-1 team entry in the Suburban Tennis League captured its fourth straight match, last Thursday, in a succession of two-set victories over Burlington.

Captained by Vandy French and George Easton, who also play as a team, the group is undefeated for the season with only one match remaining against Greenwood, scheduled for June 5 at Packer Courts.

The C-1 match saw Easton and French win 6-2, 6-3, followed by Howard Abbott and Jon Stabileford's 6-2, 6-0 victory. Play was topped off with a Herb Anderson-Tom Worthen finale 6-1, 6-1.

The French-Easton and Anderson-Worthen combos have won all their matches.

The injury-riddled C-2 team lost its second match the same day as the C-1 victory. Lane's team playing at home, dropped only one set in blanking Winchester 3-0.

Jack Noble and Phil Richardson came closest to a win with a three set loss—3-6, 7-5, 4-6. Then Don Allard and Joe DesMeurles lost by 2-6, 1-6 and the Snow-Dayton team was beaten 3-6, 4-6.

The A Tennis entry journeyed to the Nashua courts last Monday and raised its won lost record to 2 and 1. They took two out of three matches.

Phil Kadesch and Jimmy Wynn won 6-3, 6-4. Then Steve Hafner and Wil Aldrich were upset 1-6, 3-6. Capt. Doug Ankerson then teamed with Ron Salter to capture the overall match, 6-3, 6-0.

For the B-1 team, the two Don's, Ellis and Puffer, continued an unbeaten string with a 7-6, 7-6 double tiebreaker squeaker. Capt. Bob Pritchard teamed with Dick Kadesch to emerge victorious—4-6, 4-7, 5.

Winchester's B-2 team lost a match with the Wightman netmen on Tuesday—0-3. Dwight Bellows and Leigh

Quinn went down after a struggle 0-6, 3-6.

Then Capt. Al Samoiloff and Brooke Green were decimated 1-6, 1-6. The best match of the day saw Don Stebbins and Jim Phillips exed out 4-6, 5-7.

Correction: Last week's story in The Star incorrectly identified the Winchester C-1 Suburban Tennis League opponent as Belmont Hill School. The actual opponent was Belmont Hill Tennis Club.

Beacons Clinch

Division Lead

The Beacons have clinched first place in the northern region of the first division of the Rays soccer league by beating a strong but undermanned Framingham team 3-0 last Saturday at Leonard Field.

Although two games remain, the Beacons are assured of a playoff game against the winner of the southern region for the league's Class B championship.

Framingham was strong, but with only two substitutes in the hot humid weather, the relentless pressure of the Beacons was overwhelming. The first half was scoreless with frequent substitutions to fully utilize all 18 players the Beacons ran the opponents into the ground.

The scoring began at the seven minute mark of the second half when Pat Fortin lofted a perfect corner kick in front of the goal where the ball was headed in by Dave McLaughlin on a picture book play.

Pat scored the second goal as he broke away from the defenders just past mid field and blasted it by the goalie from 12 yards out. The final score came on a penalty kick by Jimmy Oliver at 27 minutes of the second half.

His kick was perfectly placed into the upper left corner of the goal, easily beating the goalie.

John Waite in goal posted his fourth straight shutout and sixth in eight games. Vittorio Hayes, Benji Block, Pete Franchi, Brad Holmes, Barry McQuillan, Gary Martin and Gustav Rhenman saw more action than usual and contributed greatly to the team victory.

Money managers agree that when a second income is relatively small or temporary in nature, it is wise to keep living cost within the limits of the major income, and to set aside the second income for special purposes. No matter what your income, however, do not plunge into major expenditures until you have money on hand to cover them. Also be sure of both family and personal financial goals. What do you want from your money as a couple, or a family? What personal objects do you want to fulfill?

Liberty Pole, Tree To Rise On Town Day

During the Town Day celebration, Winchester will have a liberty pole and tree for the first time in about 80 years.

Liberty poles and trees were patriotic symbols. The Sons of Liberty assembled before them and pledged their fortunes and sacred honors in the cause of liberty.

When the Stamp Act was passed in 1765 the Liberty Tree in Boston became the focus of the people's hatred of that law. On August 12, 1765, the birthday of the Prince of Wales (a holiday), people ran through the streets shouting "Pitt and liberty!" (Pitt was a sympathetic figure in British Parliament.)

Two days later patriots congregated at the Liberty Tree, a large elm located on the corner of Washington and Essex streets. Effigies of Andrew Oliver, the stamp distributor, and Lord Bute, a despised member of Parliament, were hung from the tree.

The effigies caused great excitement in the city and thousands assembled to view the spectacle. That night effigies were removed from the tree. They were taken first to the old State House followed by a great throng of people shouting "liberty, property and no stamps!"

When the Stamp Act was repealed the Liberty Tree was decked with lanterns to show the people's gratitude. Throughout the following years the Liberty Tree reflected the feelings of patriots in Boston.

During the siege of Boston, 1775-76, the Liberty Tree was cut down to the great satisfaction of the British soldiers and Tories in its place the patriots erected a Liberty Pole, which remained there into the 1800s.

According to an article written in the Winchester newspaper in 1888 by David Youngman, the first known liberty pole in Winchester was erected in 1826.

"It stood at the junction of Main and Washington streets near the blacksmith shop of the late Deacon N. B. Johnson. It was quite an elaborate affair with main-mast, cross-trees and top-mast."

The pole remained there in various forms for many years. Then for almost a third of a century there was no pole. In 1859 a committee was formed and $100 raised to erect a new pole. But it was not until 1862 that a new pole was erected by the selectman near the central railroad crossing.

Here the pole remained for several years until it was moved to the common. That pole was replaced in 1892 with a new one purchased in Medford.

Hopefully during the evening of June 7, Winchester will have its first Liberty Tree illuminated with 92 lights. Ninety-two symbolizes the number of votes cast in the Massachusetts Colonial Assembly against rescinding the infamous circular letter which denounced the Townshend Act.

On June 8, at 4 p.m., Winchester will again have a liberty pole. The boy scout troop of the Unitarian Church will carry the pole to a site in front of the Town Hall. There they will erect the pole. One of the scouts will climb the pole placing the traditional hat and feather on top.

Hopefully the residents of Winchester will cheer the scouts on with some of the slogans mentioned in the article. Perhaps some residents will also dress as patriots. Let's show some bicentennial spirit!

Transfer Averts Financial Crisis

The School Committee alleviated Winchester's financial crisis when it voted Monday to return $10,000 in earmarked funds to the Finance Committee.

The crisis was brought to light last week when the selectmen discovered there was only $1,500 in the reserve fund to carry the town for the remainder of the fiscal year—to July 1.

Of the School Committee's action Monday, Finance Chairman Richard A. Richmond commented: "This provides a reasonable chance that the reserve fund will have money to cover emergencies in the month of June."

Earmarked funds are set aside when a department thinks it will have a financial problem but doesn't know exactly when it will arise or how much it will be.

Funds "earmarked" (set aside) for this year totaled $20,000. The School Committee had set aside the $10,000 in case it needed counselors or specialists in the Chapter 766 (special needs) program.

As it turned out, according to Asst. Supt. John Fallon Monday night, the School Department ended up with a "positive balance" in its personal services (salaries) account.

This plus in personal services permitted the committee Monday to release the funds for use for other town expenses.

At the beginning of the fiscal year the reserve fund contained $130,000. In April, only $1,500 remained. Selectman Barbara S. Hanks partly blames inflation for the depletion.

Another reason, according to Mrs. Hanks, is that town meeting last year cut the amount requested for the reserve fund.

"The Finance Committee asked for $130,000. That's $50,000 higher than what is normally given to the reserve fund. Town meeting in its wisdom chose to give us $130,000."

Mrs. Hanks said major problem budgets are pensions and annuities which is short $16,000 due to the cost of living increase; Blue Cross, short $3,000; and judgements and claims, lacking $4,200.

July 1 marks the beginning of the new fiscal year. Although a whole set of new funds comes along with it, financial help to Winchester does not.

"You can't pay this year's bills with next year's money," stressed Mrs. Hanks.

Monday night's meeting with the Board of Selectmen and the Finance Chairman Richmond found them checking with departments to see if earmarked funds could be returned.

The School Committee's $10,000 was "all we could get to be released at this time," noted Richmond. "It may need some back. We'll deal with this when we get a request."

There is currently $29,000 in requests with which Finance must deal. According to Richmond there is enough to cover these.

"The $10,000 is to cover what we don't know about. The question is what will happen in June. Selectmen passed a motion to advise department managers to keep expenses down."

Police Disperse 200 To 250 Youths

Winchester police broke up a crowd of youths estimated between 200 and 250 on the evening of May 24 at 10:15 p.m. at a house party on Washington street.

The police report there were drinking and other violations but no arrests were made in the interest of keeping things cool.

Half a dozen Winchester police arrived at the Steehy home at 21 Washington st. after police were called.

A house party was in progress. A large group of youths reportedly crashed the party and refused to leave after being requested to do so. The crowd continued to swell, according to a police report, until the police were called.

Lt. James J. Cogan called the officers' calm action "good judgment in an explosive situation." They were identified as Francis R. Manzie, William F. Wright, William E. Nash, Richard W. Fisher and Theodore Yeanacopolis. Cogan was also at the scene.

There were other police reports in the past week. At 9 Crescent rd. there was a report of arson as a result of a molotov cocktail. A plastic container with a blue rag was found near a rear porch.

The Fire Department responded to extinguish the small porch fire.

There was a break at the Washington School. A stuffed animal was taken from the library, according to a report, and found burned on Alben st. at 10:30 p.m. Saturday.

Five Winchester High School seniors were apprehended by police at 10:45 p.m. Friday while reportedly spraying their class numerals on the side of the building. "Class of 1975" was found sprayed on three sides of the building.

The youths will be forced to clean the paint. The 1975 class numerals have been sprayed on signs and other places around Winchester in the last week.

Police were called to 15 Brookside rd.,

Administered by Finance, the reserve fund supplements departmental budgets when unforeseen or extraordinary expenses arise. Committees may request transfers from the reserve fund for a particular budget.

A majority vote of the Finance Committee is needed to transfer the money to a board or committee. At one point the selectmen thought they would have to call a special town meeting in June to pay for current expenses.

where a door had been smashed off its frame and a reported $7,000 in jewelry stolen.

The house was ransacked. The color television set and stereo were not taken.

About $370 was reported missing from Dynamic Measurements at 10 Lowell st. May 28. The money was supposedly taken from a file cabinet. There was no sign of a break.

A hit and run was reported at 85 Woodside rd. A moving car hit a car parked at number 85. There was damage to the parked car.

Nothing was reported missing from doctors offices at 175 Washington st. over the weekend after the medical building was entered.

Reports of windows broken in the last week: 13 at the public library, one at high school gym and 24 at McCall JHS.

Food and a radio were reported stolen from the Darimaid on Cambridge street Saturday after someone removed a window and entered the ice cream place.

A resident of Lewis road reported she lost a diamond earring valued at $450 on Shore road Saturday morning.

Nine-year-old William Stalen of Woburn was taken to the Winchester police station at 6 p.m. by Officer William H. O'Neil after he was found lost. He had been missing since the morning.

Police took 18-year-old Hugu MacKenzie to the hospital for treatment of lacerations on the back and shoulder after he fell from his bicycle and went through the window at One or Two Things on Mount Vernon st., Saturday at 11 p.m.

Police Friday at 9:30 p.m. dispersed a large group of youths from the hill at Macdonald Field.

Bicycles have been reported stolen from 19-R Canal st., 52 Salisbury st., Little Winter Pond, 30 Salem st., 17 Cross st. and 81 Ginn rd.

"Spirit of '76" By Dan Busa

Madeira, in a way the most American of wines, has been enjoyed since late Colonial days... First in place, of course, was George Washington, who took a pint with his dinner every day; Jefferson and James Madison were Madeira admirers, and so was Ben Franklin... Chief Justice Marshall's parties for his lawyer friends were famous and the delight of the wine merchants... This wine was slow in developing because it was not the warm amber wine as we know it today... It was mostly dry and red and, beyond doubt, not very good... But discoveries like the addition of a little brandy and gentle heat for effective maturing were to make Madeira develop into something quite splendid...

Hostess gifts are never a problem if you stop by at BUSA LIQUORS, exclusive distributors for "Spirit of '76." Two Chiefs Set To Retire

Chief of Police Edward Bowler and Fire Chief I. Francis Amico will retire in January and August respectively.

According to Selectman Barbara Hankins at the Board of Selectmen's meeting Monday night, this is a good opportunity to look into a public safety department whereby civil defense, police and fire departments would be under one supervisor.

"This could lead to better coordination between the protective departments. It's not often the town needs to replace two chiefs at one time."

Offices needing replacements are sergeant, lieutenant, and chief of police. These will require civil service examinations.

The office of fire chief is appointed through the Board of Selectmen.

Nine residents evidenced concern over the request of Gerald Errico of Reego & Sons to store fuel oil in a truck on his property at 151 Cross st.

While abutters voiced tears regarding safety and vandalism, assistant zoning administrator Norman Sherman noted there was nothing contradictory in the zoning bylaws, and Fire Chief I. Francis Amico indicated approval of the storage. Selectmen approved Errico's request with the stipulations that, according to the zoning bylaw, the truck may not be within 100 feet of inhabitants' property; there may be only one vehicle with a maximum of 5,000 gallons of fuel oil; protective devices will be installed parallel to Cross street. As requested by the town charter and the state, Winchester must revise its precinct number from six to eight with no more than 4,000 persons in each precinct. Selectmen have a map and plan to submit to the state.

Compiled from 1975 town and school census figures, precinct and polling places are at George Washington School, Winchester High School, Town Hall, and Mystic, Ambrose, VinsonOwen, Wyman and Noonan Schools.

Another item on the Board of Selectmen's docket was the noting of four persons to serve on the civil service advisory committee, an ad hoc committee to look into the possible removal of the town from civil service.

Also under discussion was the possibility of the animal inspector, now under a separate budget, coming under the jurisdiction of the Board of Health.

According to Selectman Arthur Dunbar, "The Board of Health was semi-receptive." Two applications for lodging house licenses had the Planning Board and Chief Bowler disagreeing.

According to Planning Board Chairman Michael Boodakian, a procedure for issuing licenses would regulate uses legal under the old zoning bylaw not permissible under the new bylaw.

Chief Bowler contended lodging houses would add to the problem of criminal complaints.

The Board of Selectmen authorized assistant zoning administrator Norman Sherman to prepare rules and regulations for setting up lodging houses for consideration by the selectmen.

Lawrence T. Smith, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, veered from the docket as he brought up the subject of the recent fire in a town yard building.

The board will confer with highway superintendent Robert O'Brien on the demolition of the building which Smith contends is "on the verge of collapse."

If the building is unsalvageable town forces will tear it down.

The Board of Selectmen approved the reappointments of Henry P. Murray to the Board of Registrars and Bradley Ross to the Conservation Commission.

It approved the resignations of S. Kennedy Tully from the Capital Improvements Planning Committee and Robert P. Joyce from town meeting and as park commissioner.

The Board of Selectmen voted Monday, June 16, as the closing date for the warrant for the July 17 town meeting.

Colonial Ghost Visits Mill Pond On Town Day

BY ELIZABETH

Old Edward Converse would have enjoyed Town Day.

I imagine the colonial ghost of Winchester's enterprising founding father mingled with the 1975 residents as they strolled around the banks of his old Mill Pond last weekend.

Recreational boating on the picturesque pond during the celebration is a far cry from the days when the pond supplied power for mills from 1640 to 1909.

But old Ed was a canny businessman who once established the first ferry between Boston and Charlestown on the site of the present Charles st. bridge between 1630 and 1640. If he lived in this decade Converse might be running a marina.

Neighborhoodness and sharing of talents and resources, necessary virtues in colonial days, were much in evidence 300 years later at Town Day.

Puritan Converse might have frowned a little at the lively square dancing in the Town Hall parking lot.

Spirits weren't dampened by Saturday night's rain, a favorable virtue to Converse who was well acquainted with the watery and swampy countryside of Winchester, then known as Waterfield.

After seeing Mr. and Mrs. Warburton Van Planck in their elegant colonial finery doing a Virginia reel, the ghost of old Converse might have tapped a toe to the lively music. His Puritan upbringing would have prevented him from actually dancing, though.

More likely, Puritan Converse, a deacon for 19 years, would have retired very early Saturday eve in order to rise on Sunday to take part in the community sharing in an ecumenical service on the shore of the pond.

Practical colonial Converse would surely have approved of the day's social activities of a utilitarian sort: spelling bees, arts and crafts, quilting, nature study, baking and cooking—needed skills in those frugal times.

The spirit of Winchester's founder would certainly have glanced around the center with a practiced eye. As the center's first businessman and resident, he would have, no doubt, stopped by the League of Women Voters booth and checked their survey for new directions in the business center.

He was enterprising and industrious as a farmer and miller. His gristmill, Winchester's first business, was essential to the new farming community. The site of the Town Hall was by tradition his sheep pasture. The Common was part of his cornfield.

The dam he erected across the Aberjona in 1640 created a beautiful and historical feature in the center. The house he built in 1640 survived for almost 200 years near the Converse (Main street) bridge.

The dam was replaced after 250 years of use by the current semi-circular six-stepped dam. During this period the dam furnished power for later businesses and mills on the site before the land was sold for park purposes to the town in 1909 by the Whitney mill owners.

The light-bedecked "liberty tree" willow overhanging the Mill Pond must have warmed old Converse's ghost. A magnificent elm tree once stood beside his Mill Pond house. Age and damage caused it to be removed in 1841.

Diarist Samuel Sewall mentioned sitting in its shade in 1702. Much later it was measured and reported to have a circumference of 35 feet.

Using Plants For Therapy

How Physically Disabled Tend More Than Gardens

Dorothy Whittier Sundberg of 67 Pond st was disturbed when the town two years ago prohibited the public from scrounging around the town dump.

It was there she found materials for gardening tools for the physically disabled. A horticultural therapist, Mrs. Sundberg says horticultural therapy is the use of plants in helping people.

Larocco's Recommendation

Eight Period Day Will Continue At High School

A practical lesson in the power of citizen participation in government was brought home forcefully to students of Winchester High School Monday night. They were big winners when their principal, Vincent E. Larocco, yielding to their pleas, withdrew his plan to scrap the eight-day period at the high school. The School Committee agreed with his action by a unanimous vote.

Last week Larocco notified students he was going to ask the School Committee's permission to decrease the number of class periods from eight to seven.

He said the change would fight vandalism and other misconduct and in the long run improve education.

Larocco revised his recommendation on Monday night following a student demonstration on Monday morning and after talking with about 200 students last Friday afternoon.

Despite his recommendation for continuing the eight period day, Larocco still believes that a seven-period day is a "mandate for greater structure" at Winchester High. Larocco recommended dealing with the small number of individuals who are not working under the present system as opposed to punishing the large number of students working well under the eight period Max-ed program.

Larocco said his recommendation for a seven-period day came after much thought and with great reluctance, and was prompted by "a tremendous amount of complaints regarding free time students have."

He described incidents of students' misbehavior such as "shimmying up walls and throwing firecrackers from the school roof."

The period change is a measure to promote student involvement in their own education, he said, noting that from "800 to 900 students don't use their free time wisely."

About 200 juniors and seniors took advantage of an opportunity to discuss the matter openly with Larocco and assistant principal Thomas Budrewicz Friday afternoon after school.

The assembly, led by Jean Marcoux, leader in a student petition drive to retain the eight period day, included pre-arranged speeches and questions from the audience.

Student Todd Cronin, against Larocco's plan, noted art, music and max-ed, which take 10 or more periods of time and are "all part of education" would not be permitted in a student's schedule.

Cronin said Larocco's proposal "stresses controlling and not teaching. It is baby sitting. Students should not be penalized for a few of the minority who break windows," he said.

Larocco talked about the school's philosophy of choices, responsibility and inviolated citizenship. "In a democratic society," he said, this responsibility is not only "for ourselves but should be for others." He stressed his desire to do the best "for all students."

Danny Holmes said the majority of students come to school "for one purpose—to get an education." He said the minority want an education "don't have a right to disrupt the education of those who care."

Peggy Flynn anticipates the change would make "education suffer." She said an eight-period day gives free time for those who take sports or other activities to get extra help during study periods. "In the long run," she said, these students "won't go for extra help." There are a lot of "dedicated athletes who are not all bright people. They need time for extra help," she said.

Chris Carswell feels the change "would be the first step in eliminating open campus." He foresees students will drop courses they expect to fit into their schedules.

Dotie Porter said the seven-period day "would give less time for homework and less free time for teachers too." She commented that more students would have been present for the meeting if it had been announced earlier and if they didn't have jobs and previous appointments.

Robert Leppzer said the plan "to control would work in reverse." The same people will still skip classes, he suggested, and only make more students angry and increase vandalism.

Pat McCormack, a student involved in a petition drive last year to retain a German language teacher, intimated talk will not help. She "learned from brutal experience" the students want will "never reach Sanborn House. They will look upon this meeting as people getting together," she said.

Larocco took issue with her remarks and assured the assembly "nothing is finalized."

He noted several School Committee members "cared enough" to be present at the Friday meeting along with Supt. of Schools William C. MacDonald (School Committee members present were Catherine Fallon and John Noble.)

MacDonald said, "Sanborn House has heard your thoughts." The administration "has been wrestling with this issue and un-

The Cat Meows!

A Little Wanderer Finds Temporary Home

Early Tuesday morning, employees at The Star office were greeted by a small female tiger cat as they arrived to work. The cat would walk up and down the sidewalk in front of The Star building, meowing and looking up at passers-by.

After about an hour she made her way up to our production department on the second floor and settled down for a nap. She had obviously lost her people somewhere and was having much difficulty finding them.

She is a friendly and affectionate little kitty of about 6 lbs. but refuses to divulge her name or address, answering only with a rapid purr or a loud mew.

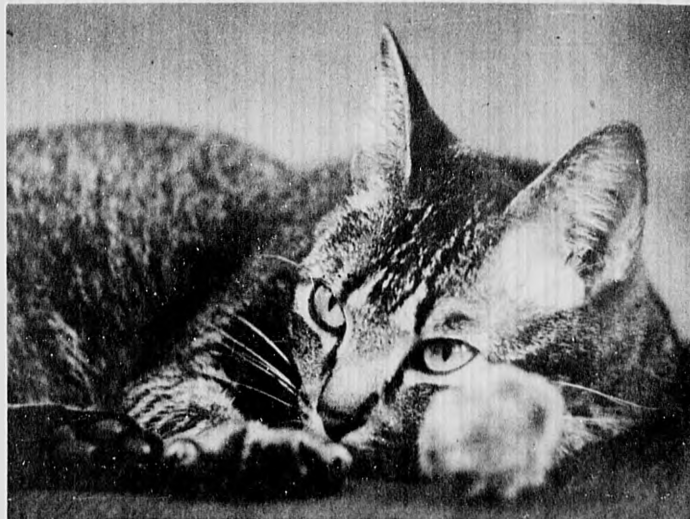

She is a tiger cat with very short hair (possibly a mixture of Abyssinian) and wears a yellow gold studded collar. She cries for attention and affection and is pretty upset about her people being lost.

While this cat has temporarily found a home at The Star office, she would really like to get back into the business of being somebody's pet.

Unfortunately this cat forgot to write her people's phone number on her collar with ball point pen. That can be a lifesaver when one's sense of direction goes astray.

If it helps in identification any, this little kitty is partial to Tender Vittles and Brigham's chocolate frappes. If you've lost a cat answering her description, contact The Winchester Star at 3 Church st.

Lost Cat

This little, lost cat has been at the Star office since Tuesday morning. The cat is part tiger, part Abyssinian.

Macdonald Wants Veto Override

Rep. Thorbert H. Macdonald (D., Mass.) recently called for the immediate override of the president's veto of the $5.3 billion emergency jobs bill.

Macdonald, who supported this legislation and helped move it through the House, expressed disappointment at the president's action.

"The unemployment rate on the national level is far beyond reason and the rate in our area is absolutely intolerable."

"To make our situation worse, summer is here and thousands of young people will be entering the job market to earn money enough to stay in school or help their family through these troubled times."

"The president's action was insensitive and ill-advised, to say the least. I just can't believe that the President is not aware of the severity of our national unemployment problems," said Macdonald.

The bill provided money for public service employment, for programs designed to stimulate the economy, with a key provision that would allocate $458.1 million for youth summer jobs.

The bill passed the House with more than a two-thirds majority, the amount needed to override a presidential veto. It passed the Senate by voice vote. It is certain if the House voted to override the veto the Senate would do the same, according to Macdonald's office.

Patchwork Quill You Don't Solve High School Dilemma With Hit On The Head

By Pauline Dishmon

High School Principal Vincent E. Larocco, responding to a complaining public that students spend too much time roaming the streets and getting into mischief, proposed reducing the number of class periods per day in an effort to cut free time of students.

This plan to reduce free time of a minority of vengeful students and to hopefully to motivate about 50 percent of the student body (1,300 all told) "who don't use free time wisely," alarmed the remaining 200-300 students who appear to be carrying extra courses in their preparation for college.

These latter students do use their time wisely, and as one student so aptly asked, why should a minority of students who don't want an education "disrupt the education of others?"

I agree with the boy who apparently is a motivated achiever. He and other students who take education seriously should be commended and encouraged in their endeavors.

It would be unfair to deprive willing and industrious students from continuing to make choices and accepting responsibilities that follow.

Larocco agrees with "the freedom of choice and responsibility acceptance concept," but his dilemma is that he is concerned about the total study body.

I may be wrong, but the students at Friday afternoon's meeting with Larocco appeared not to hear their principal when he said he is concerned "with all students."

All the students means the minority who seem to stay in trouble as well as honor students.

It includes those who write on walls and break windows.

It includes those who speak out rudely and those who are not motivated to study, probably due to a lack of accomplishment.

As I listened to Larocco and the students in dialog last Friday, I thought I heard the principal argue to the 200 or so students present to accept some of the responsibility for the minority.

He seemed to be asking them to accept his seven period proposal because it would help the minority of troubled youths. But only one student, a young man who admitted to having been suspended twice, appeared to understand.

As the youth who was suspended said, school is not only a time to prepare for college, it is a time to prepare for life.

As he spoke of rebellion in this period in time, he seemed to be talking about the personal rebellion every human being faces.

Most children begin to rebel in the cradle. Many are fortunate to have parents who handle their rebellion with sufficient stroking and love so that a "no" answer does not damage a child's psyche.

In these situations, as a child grows, family members provide understanding and support. Then as the child enters the cold world and meets failure or rebuff, he or she still feels loved and necessary in the overall scheme of things.

Still others do not have a foundation of harmony or opportunity to begin to make decisions at an early age. When these children are suddenly told to make decisions (or choices) they are as adrift as a baby alone on a raft in the ocean or as helpless as a blind person in a snake pit.

Many of these children struggle with decision. Frequently their choices are poor, but through a learning process they begin to make progress.

There is also the minority who cannot cope with underachievement, disharmony and a non-receptive world. These are the ones who seem to fight their battles with what they know best—more underachievement because of a lack of trying, more disharmony because of the struggle to keep in step is too difficult, and hate toward those who are in authority.

I am not a professional educator or psychologist but my experience and observation tells me this minority group needs recognition, to feel needed, to find a purpose in life.

They cry out for help by marking on walls, by making noises with firecrackers, by drinking the most booze, or by using profanity. Any recognition is better than none.

I've mentioned this before in this column, but Erich Fromm's belief that vandalism is the opposite side of the creative coin bears repeating.

Fromm says a person who is unable to create must destroy.

The real sad part is that such destruction may continue for a lifetime until or unless the destroyer recognizes his or her lack of self-esteem is the real problem.

Larocco seems to be asking: What is to become of the minority who feel they do not need or want an education?

I do not agree that you hit them over the head and eliminate them as one college-bound student suggested. There has to be a better solution.

Perhaps Larocco's plan to lengthen each period by about five minutes will force a student to stay in a classroom and hear something of interest, motivation or inspiration.

Perhaps, in one of the additional five minutes in a classroom, another student who is motivated and achieving could reach out in friendship and join Larocco and guidance counselors as they attempt to help a minority who is troubled.

Or perhaps there could be a dual plan at the high school with students having an opportunity to earn free time for additional courses or special projects. I don't know how this could be accomplished, but it is conceivable.

If this could become a reality, and if everyone worked to help Larocco help all students, more than debris would be drifting down the Aberjona.

It was nice to read in the First Congregational Church bulletin that the junior high fellowship raised $43.50 from their recent car wash and bake sale. The money will be divided between church expenses and the denomination's American Indian ministry.

Earlier this year the same group raised $50 through a fast day for world hunger and about $90 through the Greater Boston walk for hunger.

Nice going.

Hoping For Safe Bike Facilities

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

As you read in the Sunday papers and today in The Star, the Bicycle Path Committee has successfully obtained matching funds from the Massachusetts Bicentennial Commission to cover half the cost of the Aberjona Bicentennial Bikeway.

Last December we promised town meeting that we would apply for these funds. We are delighted that the effort has been successful.

We thank the many Bicycle Path Committee members and supporters who have made this effort successful.

We hope that we can continue to count on your participation and support in the volunteer efforts that will be needed during the construction of the bikeway this summer and for its cleaning and beautification in the future.

At the end of its latest session town meeting approved the formation of a permanent Bikeway Committee.

We intend to be active supporters and participants in this new committee. It is our hope that bicycle enthusiasts and supporters of all ages will do likewise.

We wish the permanent Bikeway Committee the best of success in the continued development of safe and enjoyable bicycling facilities throughout Winchester.

Morris Direction Cited Outstanding

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I was glad to read in The Star that "Feiffer People," recently presented at the Unitarian Church, was one of the four finalists in the New England theatre conference drama festival.

All the talents mentioned undoubtedly contributed to this result, but I felt that the direction of Marcia Morris had been outstanding.

It was this, it seemed to me, which created an entertainment out of a series of short skits. She had conceived not only simple, vivid, movable props to provide a background, but also actors posed in varying positions.

The attitudes they struck added silent commentary to the writing, giving the play some unity it badly needed, and more depth than in fact it had.

Mrs. Morris's ability to think through a play and use the excellent talents available to carry out her vision is unusual.

I very much hope she will try her hand at a more substantial drama.

Tufts College Says Thanks

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The following is a letter to Lawrence I. Smith, chairman of the board of selectmen from Tufts College.

In the early morning of April 14, fire equipment from your city responded to the fire at Tufts which destroyed "Jumbo" and much of our undergraduate biological sciences building.

It was only through the combined efforts of the firemen from each of the cities represented that the blaze was brought under control and parts of our Barnum complex, as well as surrounding buildings, were saved.

I should like to express not only my personal appreciation but that of the trustees of Tufts College for the fine work which was done by the personnel from the Winchester Fire Department who responded to the call for help.

The first seven numbered medallions were awarded to winners of a silent auction.

Michigan Gains Excellence Town Would Not Tolerate

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In your "Hit and Run" column of June 5 you mistakenly referred to Ted Kelley as the outgoing hockey coach. We would remind you that a full year has passed since Mr. Kelley was removed from his coaching position by the Winchester School Committee.

It would be more appropriate to refer Mr. Kelley as the outgoing Winchester teacher as he prepares to move to Michigan to assume his new responsibilities as hockey coach and teacher at one of the finest private schools in the country.

We are pleased that Cranbrook Academy has recognized the excellence that Winchester would not tolerate, and we take this opportunity to wish Ted and his family the best of luck in their new endeavor.

Signatures Needed For Establishment Of Power Authority

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Last fall over 97,000 registered voters signed an initiative petition to create a Massachusetts Power Authority.

They were concerned that Massachusetts has the second highest electric bills in the United States and that five of the 10 most expensive utilities in the nation are located in Massachusetts.

As a result of the signature drive the bill was put before the state legislature. The private utilities have used their power, money and resources to defeat the proposal.

Fifty utility lobbyists registered with the secretary of state. Utility management organized letter writing campaigns among their stockholders. Utility public relations men visited newspaper and radio stations throughout the state.

One utility, Western Mass. Electric, even printed a derogatory pamphlet on the initiative petition and mailed it to each of its 160,000 customers.

On May 5 the House of Representatives voted against the initiative petition. A number of representatives took the position that regardless of their own personal view a question of this magnitude should be decided by the people.

In order to assure that the question will be put on the ballot for the people to decide, 10,000 additional signatures must be gathered during the next few weeks. To accomplish this task we need the active help of citizens across the Commonwealth.

Any consumer who is interested in circulating a petition in his neighborhood or place of business should contact my district office, Rep. Michael J. Harrington, Salem Post Office, Salem.

Together with rate structure reform and a strengthened DPU, the Massachusetts Power Authority can help restore fairness and equity to the utility field. But these needed reforms will come about only if consumers themselves are willing to work for them.

Medical Liability: A Fast Growing Disease

By
Reese E. James Administrator
Winchester Hospital

When we read in the newspapers that 32 California hospitals have stopped all elective surgery because their surgeons and anesthesiologists couldn't get medical liability insurance or that a group of physicians in the Long Island (N.Y.) Medical Society will face a similar problem on July 1 when their insurance coverage expires, we have to recognize that the quiet but growing problem of medical liability has finally erupted and is spreading across the country, posing a new threat to the nation's health care system.

Here, in the Commonwealth, at a State House hearing in Boston on May 14, Dr. John C. Ayres of Springfield, president of the Massachusetts Medical Society, warned the legislative Insurance Committee that 1600 doctors in the state may lose their malpractice insurance because a major insurance company which currently insures the physicians has announced plans to end their malpractice coverage by the end of the year.

And, with many Massachusetts hospitals facing an annual premium for medical liability insurance ranging anywhere from a quarter of a million dollars to more than half a million dollars a year, depending upon their size, we have to face the issue squarely and realize that the problem has indeed come to Massachusetts.

While most hospitals, regardless of their size, go for years without experiencing a medical liability claim and more than 85 percent of all physicians are never involved in a malpractice suit, the fact remains that, since the end of World War II, there has been a persistent increase in the number of medical liability claims against health care providers.

Several factors have accounted for this increase in liability claims.

1) Group hospitalization plans have permitted more people to obtain the necessary medical care, thus increasing the exposure to incidents that lead to claims.

2) The development of new medical care technology that may involve new risks to the patient.

3) The introduction of highly potent drugs with potential hazards of use.

4) The American public's often unrealistic expectations about medicine's capabilities, fostered by the press and television's highlighting "miraculous" cures and a resulting disappointment on the part of patients if they haven't achieved their hoped-for results and in some instances, the use of the lawsuits to resolve that disappointment.

The increase in frequency of medical liability claims and suits has had a definite impact on health care costs, for patient and non-patient alike.

In 1969, Winchester Hospital charged a patient 2 cents a day to cover the hospital's cost for liability insurance. In the intervening six years, that 2 cents a day charge has had to be increased by 200 times to a current daily cost of $4.00. With an average patient stay of seven and one-half days in the hospital, $30.00 of every patient's bill will be needed to pay the present medical liability insurance premium.

With the Federal and State governments as two of the major purchasers of health care, it becomes obvious that, if liability insurance is contributing to the cost of health care, then the general public is already paying for a significant part of that insurance cost through taxes.

Thus, the problem truly touches everyone, the patient and the non-patient.

The problem of medical liability is complex, involving not only the fallibility of all those providing health care but the contingency fee system of the legal profession, the weaknesses of the judiciary system in the expeditious handling of claims and the tendency of resorting to lawsuit if the patient hasn't achieved the hoped-for results or, in some cases, if injury has occurred.

There is no simple solution.

People are human and do make mistakes, whether they are physicians, dentists, nurses or other health care personnel. And there are over-zealous jurors who grant disproportionate awards in the belief that they are playing Robin Hood in taking from the insurance companies and, at the same time, "getting back at" the physicians.

Legislation, currently pending, aims to correct many of the weaknesses in this picture of medical liability insurance and malpractice Massachusetts, as with other states, can solve this problem by enacting legislation that will deal effectively with all aspects of this growth before it chokes off vital elements of our health care system, endangering lives and seriously affecting the centuries-old implicit faith of the patient in his physician.

Metco's Cost To Taxpayers

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Kudos to the Winchester School Committee (with the exception of the two dissenting opinions!).

Just a few short weeks ago you will recall that the School Committee pledged that in bringing the Metco program to Winchester they would not cost the taxpayers any money.

My chief criticism was and is that in choosing this approach they were being dishonest to the townspeople. There are a variety of ways Metco will and is already costing us money.

For instance how does one calculate the cost of the tremendous amount of time spent by the administration and teachers in preparing and planning for the coming year?

There has been at least one meeting with the appropriate people (including teachers for whom substitutes were hired and paid for not from Metco funds as they are not yet forthcoming) that took an entire afternoon.

How many times has the administration been involved with Metco matters instead of budgetary matters or curriculum matters these past few months?

Plans must be made, I agree, but don't tell us that Metco will not cost us any money. These are just the beginnings of the countless hidden costs.

All of us like to know what expenses are to be expected in our personal budget so that we may plan accordingly. The School Committee budget is obviously no different. Regular attendance at School Committee meetings will attest to the countless budgetary restrictions imposed on the schools.

Some of these are truly justified and long overdue, but unfortunately some very fine programs also will suffer cutbacks in the next year.

The tax bill coming, due to us all in the fall, will make us all sit up and take notice. By that time we will probably be also very taken up with making Metco work in Winchester.

I sincerely hope the ultimate burden of financial responsibility will not be dumped back in the taxpayers' laps by a state unable to pay its bills.

Save The Dogs

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

If Vincent Carroll (Star, June 5) knew what was happening in the Mass. legislature he would know that action has already been taken to give cities and towns control of dog license fees.

One such bill was H. 3619. He would also know that H. 1866, increasing the two dollar a day fee to dog officers to three dollars a day, has failed to pass.

He would also know that Dorothy Checchi O'Brien's very fine bill, H. 2063, has passed and been signed by Gov. Dukakis.

This bill provides for the compensation of veterinarians from the dog fund for the care of dogs and cats injured on the highway.

Anyone who owns pets knows that even the best cared for pet can get out and get lost or injured.

He should also know that Massachusetts is one of the few states in this country that has a Pound Seizure bill (Chapter 481A) which enables medical schools and research labs to claim dogs in public pounds when the holding period is up.

The 10-day holding period was part of that bill passed in 1957.

It was to regain that guaranteed holding period and freedom from cruel vivisection that my husband, son and I spent over a year of our precious time, and over $1,000 of our own money to help dogs.

We were aided daily in our efforts by Dorothy O'Brien who fought through her own bill to ban the cruel steel jaw trap.

I can't imagine even Vincent Carroll wanting to see people's pets turned over to medical schools—or shot to death—in four days.

Dorothy Sundberg, horticultural therapist, is physically handicapped and uses plants for therapy. Here she waters some of her large collection of plants in her dining room in her home on Pond street.

Intending to spend several days a week at the site aiding gardeners, Mrs. Sundberg will try to prevent gardening failures by suggesting they choose flowers which survive neglect.

In her own garden Mrs. Sundberg plants only the easily maintained such as roses, chrysanthemums, African violets and foliage plants.

She explained those senior citizens taking part in the project will already know gardening basics.

"In the olden days people gardened because they enjoyed it. They've had to give it up since they've moved into nursing homes and apartments."

She feels the first priority will be motivating the elderly. "The important thing is not the plant but the persons. They come first, the garden second, in therapy."

"In horticultural therapy, plants work with people, people work with plants. One needs the other."

"I have seen a bright flower placed in the room of a patient who had lost a sense of reality. When it faded it was replaced with another until we noticed her looking at it."

"Several days later she reached out and touched it. It was the beginning of her improvement, of her road back to the real world."

Dorothy Sundberg wrote a general gardening column for The Boston Herald Advertiser for six years and a column, "The Wheelchair Gardener," for two years.

With a bachelor of arts degree in journalism from Boston University, she recently enrolled in Northeastern University for an associate's degree in therapeutic recreation which she'll receive next year.

"I want to know more about the theory and psychology of work with the disadvantaged."

Mrs. Sundberg recently taught outdoor gardening to the teachable mentally retarded at the John H. Berry School in North Reading.

This is her first year with the Massachusetts Horticultural Society's "green machine plant mobile" which travels around Boston giving plant and garden care instructions.

A charter member of the National Council for Therapy and Rehabilitation through Horticulture, she is a member of Rehabilitation International, the American Society for Horticultural Science, Massachusetts Horticultural Society, American Horticultural Society, Garden Writers of America, the National League of American Penwomen and the Society for Preservation of New England antiques.

Mrs. Sundberg thinks converting the town forest into an arboretum with townspeople taking part is feasible.

"The community garden concept, where people share a plot not their own, is very popular."

scouts on Sunday would have astounded Converse. As an early settler he crossed with Johnathan Winthrop from England in 1630.

During his ghostly stroll around the pond Converse might have passed by the 1974 selectmen. Since public service was his trademark—he was selectman at Woburn for 19 years and the town's representative at the colonial legislature—he would have compared notes with today's Selectman Chairman Larry Smith.

Smith would have much to say about the growth of Commonwealth bureaucracy and budget balancing. Converse would have been astounded at learning that one selectman is in fact a woman—Barbara Hankins. Women didn't mix openly in politics in colonial days.

When last I saw the ghost of old Edward he was looking for a place for quiet reflection beside a quiet pond. I hope he finds one.

CSA Helpfulness Praised

The Community School Association is "a nice group to bring problems to," said William C. MacDonald, superintendent of schools, as he spoke to CSA members at their 34th annual meeting recently in the Muraco School library.

MacDonald noted CSA provides "a reading from the community." He said the group has been helpful and has made his job a lot easier.

Enrichment chairman Jane Parry said the most outstanding aspect of CSA monthly meetings has been the "opportunity afforded to exchange ideas and program suggestions in an open and cooperative atmosphere with representatives from across the entire town."

She said the enrichment committee is presently working on the annual CSA scholarship foundation fundraiser with the music department which will be in the form of a town-wide music festival on June 12 at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

Richard Sullivan, head of the English Department for Winchester schools, mentioned ideals and goals of English teachers.

Outgoing president Lucille Grassi gave a report "It is at CSA meetings that problems or questions concerning schools may be presented, discussed and studied."

"These questions may be of a specific nature or have townwide application," she said.

The input from each area of the school system — the Parents Associations throughout the town, various school departments, and the School Committee — offers a perspective of views offering a comprehensive understanding of issues, she said.

The meeting was closed by new president Sandra Rodgers. Mrs. Rodgers said she hopes to have a smooth transition to the board of the newly-elected officers and standing committee chairmen.

They are as follows: Mrs. Margaret Carayannopoulos, vice-president; Mrs. Eva Arnold, secretary; Mrs. Anna Parkhurst, treasurer; Mrs. Carolyn Cumings, publicity; Mrs. Phyllis Waitman, social; Mrs. Nancy Mills, enrichment; and Mrs. Peggy Wiseman, nominating.

Mrs. Roberts Attends Council

Leila-Jane Roberts, director of the Winchester Public Library, represented the community at the recent annual meeting of the eastern Massachusetts regional advisory council at the Boston Public Library.

"Spirits of '76"

By Dan Busa

One of the many pleasures which wine drinking affords is to recapture and relive the past. For what we are tasting, when we open a fine old bottle, is simply the warmth of one particular, memorable summer, the celebration of a special occasion. . . . This is one of the reasons why a wine which carries a vintage is basically more interesting than one which does not, even if it is no better or less good, as is occasionally the case. . . . There is something a little nostalgic about being able to say, to one's friends, "this is the wine they made the summer we were in Paris," or "we had this wine when our first son was born. . . ."

Dinner or cocktail party, large or small guest list, your beverage needs can be handled in Burlington at: BUSA LIQUORS, 182 Cambridge St., near Almy's, and in Lexington, BUSA LIQUORS, 131 Massachusetts Ave. "Keep up Your Spirits With Spirit of '76 Products," handled exclusively by BUSA LIQUORS. Both locations open Mon thru Sat 9am-9pm. Tel: 861-1776.

Furniture Needed For Fernald School

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In order to provide a more normal mode of living for the children who make their home at Farrell Hall, Walter E. Fernald State School in Wallham, the unit is divided into apartments.

At this time however the apartments are quite bare and depressing due to an extreme lack of furniture.

In trying to establish living, dining and play areas for these children the parents and staff of the unit are sponsoring a furniture drive.

There is a great need for tables, chairs, dressers, sofas, chests, T.V.'s, radios or any other article in good, sturdy condition to help furnish these apartments.

Free pick-ups of these items are to be made June 14 and 15.

For further information or a pick-up appointment please call Mary Ann Borg from nine a.m. to nine p.m.

Your donations will be greatly appreciated by the children and the wonderful staff that works with them. Thank you.

Mary Ann Borg

Uncaring Merchants

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

As a consumer I had an incident happen to me recently in a local children's shop which leaves me to wonder what happened to the merchants who used to care and trust their customers.

While purchasing a bathing suit I came across a rain coat on a table for two dollars. I carefully inspected it because the tag said that it was "as is."

My daughter was with me because I knew she had to try on the bathing suit because you cannot return them, so she also tried on the coat and I zipped it up and bought it.

I assumed whatever was wrong with it was something which could not be seen right off. Later that evening I discovered the zipper would pull apart sometimes.

I checked with my tailor who said it would cost more than it was worth to put in a new zipper.

I took the coat back and the manager promptly told me I could not have zipped the coat before I bought it and suggested, in a nasty tone that I might have a new zipper put in.

I repeated the price my tailor had given me and said I did not want the coat. Being very upset at this point I did not even want to settle for the merchandise credit but was told it was either that or nothing.

I hope this incident isn't how most merchants treat their regular customers.

David A. Catalano

David Catalano Has New Post

David A. Catalano, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Catalano of 56 Franklin rd., has been named administrator of the Massachusetts General Hospital Chelsea Health Center.

Returning to the community where he spent the first 21 years of his life, Catalano has many friends and relatives in Chelsea.

He attended Chelsea High School and then went on to Boston College where he was graduated with an AB degree in pre-medicine.

After graduation he began a six-year stint as a naval officer.

In 1968 he took a position with Mass. General Hospital in the department of clinical administration. He handled all the administrative responsibilities of a 48-bed surgical unit for four years.

He later became first supervisor for unit coordinators in the White Building, and handled all administrative responsibilities of the MGH recovery rooms.

The MGH Chelsea Health Center opened in 1971 as a pediatric clinic. It grew in response to the community's need for outpatient care.

Wellesley Club Drops Skate Program; Plans Garden Tips

At a recent meeting held in Mrs. Nancy Hudson's garden of spring flowers and trees, the Winchester Wellesley Club voted to discontinue the skating program.

Blades between the Winchester Scholarship Foundation, the Wellesley College students' aid society and an unrestricted gift to Wellesley College.

The club membership has voted to discontinue sponsoring skating.

Instead, a green luncheon featuring gardening tips and demonstrations will be held sometime next spring.

Guests at the picnic were Mrs. William Casey and Mrs. Alan Schell, mothers of Maria Casey, a college student, and Alice Schell, who will enter Wellesley next fall.

Mrs. Betty Pezaris, president, announced the Wellesley book award for excellence in the humanities has been given to Judy Dayton of Winchester High School.

A talk by Paul Barstow, professor of theatre studies at Wellesley, followed. Barstow compared many Russian dramas he viewed on a recent tour to those he has seen in America and Europe.

He explained intricacies of obtaining theatre tickets and the frustrations of suffering an overly zealous translator during a show. Russian theatre employs "vast contrasts of abstraction and realistic detail, especially at the giant Kiev theatre in Leningrad," he said.

Describing the Russian habit of doing whatever is they do neither badly nor well, Barstow advocated touring Russia in the company of a large group.

Kindergarten Class Helps Sick Child

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I wish to take this opportunity to express my sincerest thanks and gratitude to all our friends, neighbors and teachers for their deep concern, thoughts and, above all, prayers during my daughter Beth's recent hospitalization.

The many cards she received while in St. Mary's Hospital in Rochester, Minn., sustained her throughout the long days of recuperation after major heart surgery.

I specifically wish to thank the kindergarten class of the Noonan School under the supervision of Mary Alice Niles for their beautiful and lengthy newsletter (18" x 24") and for all their cards.

It is gratifying to know we have such a warm, generous, genuinely concerned teacher.

I wish to thank Paula Caffrey, principal, for her deep concern and personal interest. During Beth's hospitalization at the Winchester Hospital last February, Mrs. Niles' class also remembered Beth by sending a newsletter signed by all the children in the kindergarten class.

We certainly appreciate it. Thank you Mrs. Niles and Miss Caffrey and all our friends and neighbors.

Firefighter Exam Is Scheduled July 11-12

The first statewide firefighter examination since 1971 will be Friday and Saturday, July 11 and 12, according to Rep. Sherman W. Saltmarsh Jr.

The exam, expected to attract 25,000 applicants, will be open to anyone who has reached his 19th birthday on the date of application and who has not reached his 35th birthday by Aug. 27, 1971, Saltmarsh explained.

A consent decree, approved and entered by US District Court in Boston in April, provides for a new examination to replace the redbook examination.

Rep. Saltmarsh said the two-hour long exam will include components on verbal reasoning, map reading, table interpretation, verbal comprehension and mechanical and spatial aptitude.

The consent decree was negotiated by the US Department of Justice and the NAACP Boston chapter, plaintiffs in the court suit, and the director of Civil Service represented by Atty. Gen. Francis X. Bellotti and the city of Boston, defendants in the suit which resulted when US District Court Judge Frank H. Freedman cancelled the firefighter examination for 1974.

Saltmarsh said applicants must pass a strength and agility test and undergo a medical examination.

There will be no swim component except for communities able to prove a need for such requirement.

The Federal Court's decree established priority pools and regulates certification of applicants, not appointments.

Civil Service rules require appointments be made from among the top seven applicants certified for every five vacancies, Saltmarsh continued.

The pools established by the first of the cloister garden concert series, sponsored by the Parish of the Epiphany, will be Tuesday, June 17, at 8:30 p.m.

Consisting of five programs including traditional folk music, ragtime and classical pieces, the concerts are in the cloister garden of the Parish of the Epiphany, 70 Church St.

The first concert will feature Ted Levin, an ethnomusicologist doing a dissertation at Princeton University, who recently completed a world tour collecting folk music.

He will appear with Ricky Rackin, Jane Kelton and Kirsten Kohs who will perform on piano, flute, fiddle, guitar, banjo, recorder, hammered dulcimer, con certina, tin whistle and Irish bagpipes.

A subscription series with a discount may be obtained by calling the church office. Individual tickets are available at the door.

Twins, Born On Mother's Day, Receive 2 Cases Of Formula

Kristen and Kerri Carbone, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Carbone of 22 Jefferson rd., were the first newborn residents of Winchester to arrive during Healthy Baby Week.

Healthy Baby Week took place during May 11-17.

In conjunction with the National Foundation of the March of Dimes, the Winchester Jaycee-ettes made available what they consider "vital information to pregnant women regarding prenatal care and birth defects prevention."

They distributed printed literature

JUNE is Window Shade MONTH
SPECIAL SALE CUSTOM MADE DECORATOR WOVEN WOODS 20% off reg. Price
One of the newest and yet historically oldest window treatments is woven woods.
Woven woods now comes in many choices of patterns, colors and textures. You may choose from all over patterns, that screen out most of the vision, small neutral stripes that give the trim fringed look, or bold stripes in neutral yarns interwoven with woods in various colors that create the dramatic effect so often desired. With this choice of patterns, colors and textures woven woods can be used with either traditional period or modern decor.
Woven woods may be used in numerous decorative ways — as drapery panels, either stationary or traverse — cord and pulley shades — Roman shades — shades on spring rollers — panels inserted in frames to form screens or room dividers — as canopies over beds, or as a ceiling for an entire room.
All in woven woods have come of age and it is our sincere belief that the discriminating decorator or architect will find them the answer to many a difficult and challenging assignment.

Boy's Tennis

Sachems Drop Semifinal Match To Weston

By John F. Parrell

Everything was going beautifully for Coach George Hillier's tennis team in the semifinals of the Eastern Massachusetts team tournament at Wayland.

They led in four out of five of the matches and were on the threshold of victory over the eventual champions.

However, rains forced postponements of the action.

Then came graduation and subsequent parties. The weatherman was kind, providing rain to halt play on Saturday and giving the weary Sachems a day of rest.

But the delay resulted in a loss of momentum as Weston staged a strong rally. When play resumed on Sunday morning Jimmy Wynn was ahead of Mike Leach 6-3 and led the second set 5-4, with his own serve upcoming.

Leach was fresh and ready, evened the score and took the second set in three straight games. He forecast the Winchester defeat as he won the third set 6-2, giving Weston a most vital lift.

This made the score even at 2-2 since Robbie Pease had bested sophomore Jim Ferrera 6-4, 6-1 and the first Winchester doubles team of Bill Shean and Ray Champoux had posted a 6-1, 6-3 victory.

This put the match and the whole chance to play in the finals up to the second doubles event. Jeff Forget and Jay Houlihan won the first set by 6-2 and were in a 5-5 second set deadlock when the rains came.

Their opponents Tom Keller and Chuck Levin struck back with an 8-6 victory to even the count on Sunday.

The third set was fiercely fought and went to 10-8 before the Weston duo overcame the Sachems to take the point, the match and the berth in the finals against undefeated Framingham North.

The Weston boys polished them off to take the eastern title.

The Winchester doubles team had several chances to win as they were faced with match point situations several times but they just could not apply the clincher.

Winchester had advanced to the semifinals by beating Quincy and Newton South 4-1. It was a disappointing end to what had to be the best Winchester boys team of the 1974-75 year. They walked to an easy 9-0 league record, but in order to compete on favorable terms with teams in the top bracket there must be more frequent stern opposition than is provided by the Middlesex League schedule.

It is hoped another season will find the team playing more outside matches to give them the opportunity to meet experienced teams which can apply the pressure lacking in too many Middlesex League matches.

The summaries of the last three Middlesex League matches:

Winchester 5, Stoneham 0: Jimmy Wynn (W) defeated Rick Flynn (S) 6-0, 6-2; Jim Ferrera (W) defeated Bill Mobilia (S) 6-0, 6-1; Ray Champoux (W) defeated Jan de Moor (S) 6-0, 6-0.

Bill Shean and Dave Cheever (W) defeated Warren and Jon Estes (S) 6-3, 4-6, 6-1; Jeff Forget and Jay Houlihan (W) defeated Steve Migliorini and Richard Dinsmore (S) 6-2, 6-4; third doubles: Peter Lee and Richard Callahan (S) defeated Peter Berger and Sibby Masiello (W) 6-3, 6-1; fourth singles: Chris Bates (W) defeated George Paraskevas (S) 10-6.

Winchester 5, Watertown 0: Jim Ferrera (W) defeated Randy Corkum (W) 6-0, 6-0; Ray Champoux (W) defeated Peter Paltsios (W) 6-1, 6-2; Tom Stevens (W) defeated J. C. Belloian (W) 6-1, 6-0.

Jeff Forget and Bill Shean (W) defeated Richard Yerganian and Dave Callahan (W) 6-1, 6-0; Dave Cheever and George Little (W) defeated Bill Joyce and Ron Gagne (W) 6-1, 6-0.

Winchester 5, Woburn 0: Jim Ferrera (W) defeated Vernon Robertson (W) 6-1, 6-0; Dave Cheever (W) defeated Augustine Yniguez (W) 6-2, 7-5; Tom Stevens (W) defeated Kenny Tighe (W) 6-0, 6-0.

Richard Champoux and George Little (W) defeated Roy Jackson and Jim Jolly (W) 6-4, 6-1; Bob Sutherland and Mike McCully (W) defeated Robert Farrell and Phil Janus (W) 6-4, 6-1; fourth singles: Alec Yniguez (W) defeated Brian McPhail (W) 10-5.

These summaries show Coach Hillier had a chance to juggle his lineups and give many boys a chance to play in different combinations. This experience should prove valuable for future teams.

The tourney summaries: Winchester 4, Quincy 1: Jimmy Wynn (W) defeated Dennis McCarthy (Q) 8-6, 6-1; Jim Ferrera (W) defeated Jack Pagnano (Q) 6-0, 6-1; Marcus Julian (W) defeated John Rice (Q) 6-1, 6-4.

Ray Champoux and Bill Shean (W) lost to Michael Menconi and Kevin Sullivan (Q) 6-4, 7-5; Jeff Forget and Jay Houlihan (W) defeated Steve Feldman and Joe Rice (Q) 6-3, 6-4.

Winchester 4, Newton South 1: Jimmy Wynn (W) defeated Danny Braverman (N) 6-2, 6-3; Doug Fisher (N) defeated Jim Ferrera (W) 6-3, 0-6, 6-1; Marcus Julian (W) defeated Howie March (N) 6-2, 6-4.

Ray Champoux and Bill Shean (W) defeated Tom Karol and Mike Sklar (N) 6-3, 6-2; Jeff Forget and Jay Houlihan (W) defeated Geoff Small and Joe Less (N) 6-4, 6-0.

Semifinal round—Weston 3, Winchester 2: Michael Leach (We) defeated Jimmy Wynn (Wi) 3-6, 7-5, 6-2; Robbie Pease (We) defeated Jim Ferrera (Wi) 6-4, 6-1; Marcus Julian (Wi) defeated Chuck Keller (We) 6-4, 6-2.

Ray Champoux and Bill Shean (Wi) defeated Jim Breck and Doug Harden (We) 6-1, 6-2; Tom Keller and Chuck Klein (Wi) defeated Jeff Forget and Jay Houlihan (We) 2-6, 8-6, 10-8.

Participants will be those from four years of age through 18.

The program will offer swimming at the Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School, major field trips, cooking, bowling, academics, arts and crafts and varied motor activities.

The camp will begin June 23 and meet Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. The camp will conclude on Aug. 14.

Camp applications may be obtained at the recreation office of the Town Hall. Questions may be directed to Donald Spinney, recreation director, or Christine Troiano, day camp director.

Girls Softball Begins Summer

The Recreation Department girls' softball program recently started the summer with games at Gim Field.

The Sachems had a successful week despite playing every day.

They beat the Yackers 12-5, the Maddogs 14-10 and the Popsicles 21-8.

Powerful hitting by Libby White and Christine Driscoll along with good defensive play by the team determined the victories.

The Road Runners beat Ruggles' Raiders 19-6.

Rocco J. Carzo

Carzo Named Director

Rocco J. Carzo of 3 Mason st., associate professor of physical education at Tufts University, was recently named director of programs in physical education and dance, athletics and recreation.

Carzo has served as acting director of athletics.

One of his first tasks will be to name directors for each of the three programs.

Carzo, 42, has been known as Rocky throughout his athletic and coaching career.

He served in coaching, teaching and administrative positions since he came to Tufts in 1966.

Named acting director of athletics last August, Carzo served as assistant athletic director from 1970 to 1974.

From 1966-1973, Carzo's football teams compiled a record of 22-41-1. His 1969 team recorded the best record in a decade (6-2) and set most of the university passing records.

He served as head lacrosse and golf coach.

Carzo has had experience on all levels of college athletics. In 1956, after one year as assistant coach at Salesianum High School in Wilmington, Del., he returned to his alma mater, the University of Delaware, and helped head coach Davey Nelson develop the wing-T offense.

In 1960 he became assistant coach at the University of California at Berkeley. His prize protege was all American quarterback Craig Morton, now with the New York Giants.

A native of Woodlyn, Pa., Carzo earned a bachelor of science degree in physical education from Delaware in 1954 and a master's degree in education from that university in 1956.

At Delaware he was a 165-pound fullback.

He has written articles for national magazines on small college football.

He lives with his wife Terry and their five children, John, Chris, Mark, Scott and Amy.

Beacons Win Another 3-0

The Beacons continue their drive to a soccer playoff game which will determine the winner of the Dente-Copland Shield, emblematic of Class B championship in the RAYS league. Last Saturday's score was 3-0 against Belmont.

The two teams had tied in their previous meeting and the Beacons were eager to avenge the only blemish on their otherwise perfect record.

Defense again was the big factor as the Beacons posted their fifth straight shutout as goalkeeper John Waite was not severely tested. The defensive quartet of Andy Mahoney, Jim Kehr, Stuart McCord, and Pete Franchi aided by fullback halfback John Barcus were nearly impenetrable.

The scoring was accomplished by Jimmy Oliver at 13 minutes of the first half as he drove a pass from Benji Block through a sea of legs from directly in front, and David McLaughlin from the left corner of the net, tapping in a long pass from Pat Fortin across the goal mouth. This goal came five minutes into the second half.

Pat Fortin also scored at 24 minutes on a perfectly placed penalty kick.

The Beacons had numerous other opportunities, but shot high or wide.

Recreation Dept. Holds Marathon

Last Sunday the Recreation Department held its Third Annual Mini-Marathon in conjunction with Town Day activities. Registration for the marathon reached 110, which was short of last year's record breaking 125 entries.

The 9-12 age group started off the marathon with an exciting finish in their race. Paul Williamson's 18.16 nipped David Parker's 18.20 for first place honors in their three mile run. Third place belonged to John Hennesly who checked in with a time of 19.00 minutes.

In the girls group, Diane Franchi won with a time of 27.44. This was an improvement over her second place finish last year. She was followed by Maureen Harrington, 29.02 and Christine Franchi, 29.27.

This was the second win for Diane Franchi in three years. Diane was champ in 1973 for her age group.

In the 13-17 age bracket, Brian Quinn was champ over the five mile course with a time of 34.54. Second place belonged to William Strazzullo with a 36.47 time check. Third place was nailed down by Andy Wilsack with a time of 38.48.

Andy Wilsack was defending champ in the 9-12 age group for the past two years. When Andy turned 13 years old he moved up to the 13-17 age bracket.

The only girl to finish in the 13-17 age group was Pat Harrington with a time of 56.48.

The whole story in the 18-35 age group was Charlie Tatarian. Tatarian covered the seven mile section in a time of 39.16. This was the second win in two tries for Tatarian. He prevailed as champ in 1973. Last year Tatarian didn't enter the marathon.

Second place belonged to Dave Still who crossed the finish line with a time of 41.15. Andy deMars finished in third place with a tally of 41.40.

This was Andy deMars' first run in the 18-35 age group. The previous two years he won the 13-17 age group race.

In the women's division only Rosamaria Tolentino crossed the finish line. Her official time was 57.22.

The 36 and over group turned out to be a real battle. Joseph Kara won first place with a 41.09 recorded time. Joseph Bonner was second with a 44.12 clocking. Harry Parker was only one second behind for third place with a time of 44.13.

Trophies were awarded to the top finishers in each group by Director Donald Spanney.

Placing in the boys 9-12 race were: Paul Williamson, 18.16; David Parker, 18.20; John Hennesly, 19.00; John Ferullo, 19.04; Scott Leonard, 19.14; Brendan K. Nolan, 20.02; and Gregory Sarantian, 20.02.

Also Frank Virelli, 20.04; Jim Herberich, 20.06; Frank Muggia, 20.09; Tom Wilsack, 21.00; Michael Huebl, 21.09; Chris Rogers, 22.05 and Mark Schwartz, 22.06.

Jack Brennan

Brennan Led Lacrosse Team

Jack Brennan, son of Mrs. and Mrs. Francis Brennan, 36 Central St., a junior at Dartmouth College, Hanover, N.H., led the lacrosse team in scoring this spring.

The Big Green finished with a 4-8 record. Brennan, a former three-sport player at Winchester High School, had 10 goals and 12 assists for 22 points to tie for the lead.

An attackman, he was consistent, scoring at least one point in 10 games including the last seven in a row.

His highest single game output came in Dartmouth's 17-5 rout of Holy Cross when he scored one goal and added four assists.

Brennan also scored two goals against Brown and Middlebury.

"Jack had a very nice season for us," said Dartmouth head coach Dudley Hendrick. "He improved steadily as the season progressed and developed into one of our most reliable sources. He'll be one of the offensive leaders for us next spring."

As a sophomore Brennan had one goal and one assist.

He earned two hockey letters for the Big Green and will be joined by his brother, Tom, a hockey and soccer player at Winchester High School who will enroll at Dartmouth in September.

FACELIFT FOR DOWNTOWN

English Bet Boston's Thirst Stronger Than Its Principles

By Elizabeth Star Correspondent

"Boston Harbor a teapot tonight" was the cry Dec. 16, 1773, as 60 men disguised themselves as Indians and proceeded to board three ships and dump 340 tea chests into the harbor.

The actions of the disgruntled patriots created the most famous tea party in the world. A visit to the small but extremely well presented Boston Tea Party ship and museum was a Mother's Day treat for this converted tea-drinker.

A replica of the brigantine "Beaver," one of the three tea ships, is tied up at the foot of Congress street on Griffin's Wharf, the actual site of the original dumping.

The waterfront exhibit portrays the political, economic and social conditions of pre-Revolutionary Boston with contemporary media in the most informative manner I have ever seen. No dusty textbook history here.

I learned that colonial law authorized the customs office to land the tea by Dec. 17 for the East India Tea Co., consignees who were waiting to pay the duty and sell it to eager customers. If this happened, effective opposition to parliamentary taxation would be a lost cause.

English leaders were betting that Boston's thirst was stronger than its principles. Payment of the tax would reaffirm King George's right to tax the colonies. But the hot-headed colonials prevented the temptation.

The social tea party had played a significant part in the daily lives of the 18th century colonists long before it became a symbol of America's stand against British taxation.

Tea was the main drink of the rich and poor and much time, money and effort was devoted to social tea gatherings. In wealthy homes the tea ritual was enhanced by elegant tea services made of fine materials.

Tea boycotts, both voluntary and forced, cut widespread tea drinking which didn't return until after the Revolutionary War. Some colonial housewives turned to herbs from their own kitchen gardens to replace "liquid jade" of the teas from India, China and Ceylon.

Pennyroyal, camomile and mint were among the many locally grown plants used. Teas made from these were fragrant and refreshing.

Tea is refreshing as a summery cooler as well as a winter pick up. For tea lemonade add one can (6oz.) lemonade concentrate and 1 cup simple syrup to two quarts cooled freshly made tea. Another refreshing punch:

Tea Planter's Punch

1-3rd cup grenadine syrup
1 teaspoon almond flavoring
1 can (6 oz.) frozen lemonade concentrate
2 quarts strong tea, cooled

Blend favorings into cooled tea. Serve in tall glasses with ice. Garnish with pineapple wedge, lemon slice and cherry.

Voter Information

Questions on Child Care, Employment, Abortions

A working mother called the voter information phone of the League of Women Voters to ask if there were any state tax deductions she could take for child care.

She was told by a voter information phone volunteer there is a new Massachusetts law allowing tax deductions for employment-related expenses.

To deduct child care in Massachusetts you must be gainfully employed full or part-time in contrast to federal income tax provision which allows deductions only for full-time employment.

This full or part-time provision applies to both parents if working and a widowed or divorced mother. You can only claim child care services for a dependent child under 15 years of age for whom you claim a federal income tax deduction.

The costs claimed cannot exceed $400 in one month if incurred in the home. For care outside the home the maximum allowed is $200 for one child, $300 for two and $400 for three or more children.

There are income limitations in this law similar to the federal taxable amount: full allowable deductions are permitted up to $18,000 income per year and diminish from that point to a phase-out at approximately $27,000.

This new law will apply to taxable years beginning after Dec. 31, 1974.

PART-TIME EMPLOYMENT

A housewife called information phone to ask if it is possible to obtain employment with the Commonwealth if a person cannot work a complete business day. She was told by a staffer a new law allows this.

According to a recently passed legislation, there will be increased recruitment and employment opportunities for persons unable to work regular business hours. The number of such opportunities will rise gradually from 2 percent of the total number of positions in a certain class in the first year to 10 percent after five years.

With passage of this legislation providing for flexible hours of employment, positions in executive agencies will be open to many who could otherwise not qualify.

HIGHWAY FUNDS

Another caller wanted to know how the federal government could allow federal highway funds to be used for mass transportation while the state cannot use its highway funds for that purpose.

Under an amendment to the 1973 U. S. Highway Trust Fund approved by Congress monies from the interstate highway fund can now be used for mass transportation. The U. S. Department of Transportation recently allowed $671.5 million once planned for highway construction in Massachusetts to be used instead for mass transportation projects.

The state constitution does not allow gasoline tax monies paid to the Highway Fund to be used for other than highway purposes. An amendment to the Constitution has passed two sessions of the legislature and will appear on the ballot in November. The amendment, if approved, will allow funds from this source to be used both for mass transportation and highways.

ABORTION

A distraught woman called the information phone concerned that a new Massachusetts law regulating abortion made abortion illegal. She was assured that Massachusetts women may continue to exercise freedom of choice on abortion.

A 1973 decision of the U. S. Supreme Court invalidated unconstitutional state restrictions on abortion. Subsequent court action voided the Massachusetts abortion law.

The newly enacted bill mainly for legitimate exercise of the state's interest in preserving maternal health and protecting life after the fetus becomes viable.

Most physicians and clinics do not anticipate it will have significant restrictive impact, except with regard to consent provisions for minor patients (women under age 18 must have signed consent from both parents).

COUNTY BUDGETS

"Why does my town have nothing to say about our county budget even though our property taxes support the county?" asked an irate taxpayer.

"Town officials now have an opportunity to learn more about the county budget and make recommendations," the caller was told by a volunteer staffing the phone.

Two new laws allow communities to set up county advisory boards, consisting of the mayor, manager or chairman of the Board of Selectmen from each city and town in that county.

Each community will have one vote plus additional votes in proportion to their county tax assessment, thereby allowing those who pay more to have a larger number of votes and a greater voice on the advisory board.

The advisory board shall examine the county budget and hold at least one public hearing to discuss it. They may make recommendations concerning county expenditures. If these are rejected by the commissioners, the board may by a 2-3 vote send notice of their recommendations to the legislature.

Owing To Rust Men Unable To Open Hydrant

From the records of the Black Horse Mosquito Co. No. 1:

On the morning of Aug. 22d 1875, fire was discovered in the old Blacksmith's shop at the foot of Black Horse hill. The members of the company were the first to arrive, but owing to rust in the hydrant, they were unable to open it until other companies had arrived. Their stream (B.H.H. Co. No. 2) was one of the first, if not the first put on the building. The loss was in the neighborhood of $1200 and partly insured.

derstands why the recommendation was made," he said. "The School Committee will hear about both sides of the seven and eight period days," he concluded.

Parent Mrs. Joan Pelletier said: "We are asking students to solve a complex problem that the community cannot cope with." She said she "cannot accept a concept to penalize those who have come here to learn." She called for cracking down hard on those who don't accept responsibilities.

Reiterating on behavior, Larocco mentioned messes in the school yard, writing on lockers, rudeness of students, all of which he said "reflects on the community and affects the attitudes of the community."

He asked the question: "Are we under pressure from a negative public?"

A student responded by saying, "Bad images of students are way out of proportion."

Larocco said, "A lot of people need to be convinced that their tax dollars are not going down the drain."

Expulsion of students was discussed. Larocco said a principal cannot expel, he can only suspend. He mentioned a new state law on students rights which he said requires "a highly formal procedure to expel. 'Just throwing these kids out is not easy.'"

An unidentified student called for enforcing suspension rules against those who skip classes. "Eliminate the problem by hitting it over the head," he said.

The boy continued to talk about college at which time he said "there will be no one looking over our shoulders then. If we are going to be responsible adults, we have to learn to control ourselves. Hit and eliminate the small minority," said the student.

Budrewicz acknowledged he knew of no one ever being expelled but said suspensions do take place.

Attesting to his statement was a student who identified himself as "one who was suspended twice."

The youth appealed to the assembly to understand education should not only be a preparation for college but "should be preparing students for life."

He said some students are adults earlier than others. "We are living in a period of revolution," he said. "All kids are affected by it. Changes are taking place as learning takes place."

The youth said since his suspensions he has been doing better. When we are corrected once or twice, some of us begin to learn," he noted. His comments brought forth heavy applause.

Many students expressed fears that their next year's programs would have to be changed. Budrewicz said he anticipated very few instances where a student would have to drop a course. Instead, students just wouldn't have study periods, he said.

Larocco assured the students the max-ed program will continue regardless of the number of periods.

He said if the seven-period plan is accepted, classes will increase by four or five minutes.

Dispelling rumors, he said the seven-period plan will not cut teachers' salaries, students will still be able to graduate with enough credits, and "No, we will not be eliminating one hour from the school day."

At Monday's meeting the School Committee passed a motion requiring mandatory study halls for sophomores, first and second quarters, periods one through eight.

The third motion passed at the meeting allows students to receive credits for courses taken during open periods.

Aging Council, Hospital Begin New 'Friendly' Plan

Meg Harrison, member of the Winchester Council on Aging, and Cathy Kelley, recreational therapist at the Winchester Hospital continuing care unit, have designed a new plan to reach out to older shut-ins.

The plan, jointly sponsored by the Council on Aging and Winchester Hospital, involves a newly-formed group, "Friendly Visitors - Friendly Phones."

Their job is to contact elderly shut-ins through visits and phone calls.

Kelley calls the program "a dynamite plan."

She refers to five of the 15 volunteers who are residents of the continuing care unit.

Each week, Kelley takes shut-in with whom they've been in contact.

All of the volunteer visitors make their own appointments, but the remaining 10 get to their appointments on their own.

Kelley according to Esther B. Seferian who reports on activities of elder citizens, "is excited about involving CCU residents."

Kelley says: "I feel that anyone who has adjusted to some of the problems of being handicapped and has dealt with a nursing home situation is especially sympathetic to shut-ins and their problems."

The widely-varied backgrounds of the visitors is also a plus, says Kelley. Harrison and Kelley laid the groundwork for the program several months ago by seeking senior residents who wanted to be visited and phoned.

They put notices in the senior citizens newsletter, church bulletins and other places and discovered 15 elders who they said they would welcome the service.

Then Harrison and Kelley went to work to develop a 10 hour five-session training program to instruct volunteers in making contacts.

Training sessions were held at the continuing care unit. Volunteers heard lectures on various social services which might be helpful in their contacts.

Mrs. Seferian reports the program has enabled participants to develop new friendships. In one instance, a shut-in actually paid a return visit with the help of her nurse. Elders who would like to join the program may do so by calling Cathy Kelley at Winchester Hospital, ext. 357.

Senior citizens participating in the program are Athina Thoma, Ann Rose Hopkinson, Barbara Weedon, Mary Flaherty, Judy Bush, Kay O'Rourke, Clarence Borggaard, Esther Holdsworth, Dorothy Glowacki and Rosalie Lamson.

Also, residents of the continuing care unit, Mary Staffer, Alta Murphy, Agnes Kent, Roy Lohmes, Lucia Russell and Dan Sheehan.

LWV Survey Shows 43 Percent Want Department Store

At the second annual Town Day, the League of Women Voters focused attention on revitalizing Winchester Center.

A survey was conducted at the league booth, giving residents an opportunity to express views on the future of the downtown area.

The consensus was for a downtown facelift, a good department store and shops to serve the needs of senior citizens.

The following is a breakdown of suggestions:

Forty-three want a quality department store to provide personal and home accessories; 25 said a facelift with unified signs, design, planters and benches is needed; 22 percent suggested a family restaurant and 11 percent want better parking facilities.

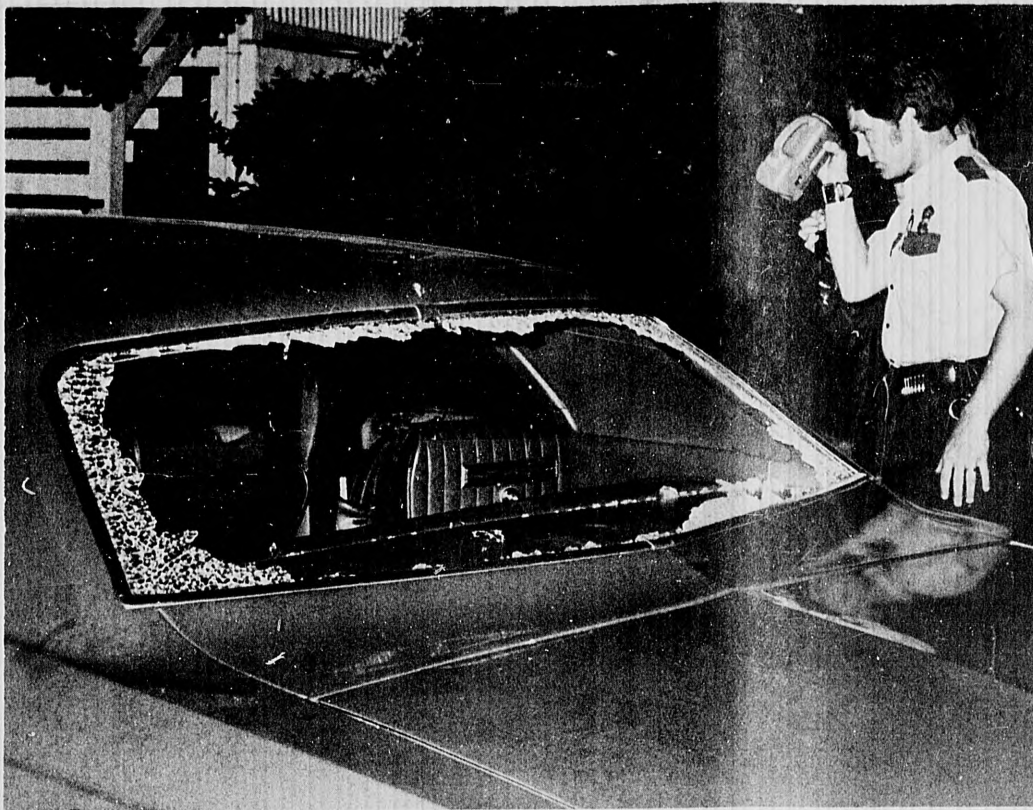

Also 10 percent want traffic rerouted, 10 percent want a bookstore and 10 percent want a fabric shop.

Lawrence Smith, chairman of the Board of Selectmen, said in 1974 eight persons signed up to serve on the town center study committee.

In 1975 there was only one volunteer. Since town meeting rejected the task force committee's request for funds to hire a planning firm, Smith said, the town center study committee has no current plans.

The Board of Selectmen will support any private or group endeavor to come up with a plan to revitalize the center.

The league would like more residents to show interest in revitalizing Winchester Center by joining the town center study committee.

Shattered rear window of suspects' car, later learned to be a stolen vehicle from Cambridge, is inspected by MDC police officer Frank MacDonald. Window appears to have been blown out from inside.

2 Shot In Daring Hijack Attempt

The hijacking of a mail truck in Boston Monday night did not deter delivery of mail to its final destination — Vermont.

According to Sgt. Armando Carelli, attached to the MDC detective division, the operator of a hijacked mail carrier stayed by his vehicle after MDC police officers pursued hijackers who fled through Winchester and eventually escaped into woods of the Middlesex Fells Reservation.

But when authorities did not arrive shortly thereafter to question him, the driver went on to complete his run to Vermont.

The hijacking of the mail truck led to the shooting of MDC police officer Dana Owens and Mrs. Mary Williamson of 55 Yale st. and had more than 200 area police officers and canine corps on a hunt for three hijacking suspects.

Police Lt. William Haggerty told The Star on Tuesday the entire Winchester Police Department was on duty during Monday night and participated in the manhunt that covered the MDC woods and involved a house-to-house search of about 100 homes adjacent to the woods.

The suspects somehow managed to slip through the police dragnet. Police dogs lost the scent on Mason street, said Haggerty.

Police believe the men returned to Boston in a stolen car which was found burning in Lechmere Square, Cambridge.

According to police, the mail truck was hijacked at the Congress street ramp of route 193.

Haggerty said there were three hijackers involved. One climbed into the truck with the driver and ordered him to proceed north on 93. The other two followed in a 1974 brown car, which was later abandoned on Francis circuit and discovered to be a vehicle stolen in Cambridge on May 30.

Haggerty said two Boston Edison repairmen observed the hijacking and telephoned police who notified units north of Boston to be on the lookout for the mail carrier.

MDC police officer Owen and his partner Robert M. Power observed the truck, stopped it and were in the process of approaching the cab of the vehicle when the brown sedan pulled up alongside the trailer.

At this point, according to Carelli, the driver and apparent hijacker were standing on the outside lane next to the truck. As the officers approached, one man jumped into the sedan which immediately headed north.

Owen and Power gave chase, leaving the mail truck unattended. They radioed ahead to Woburn and Winchester police that they were pursuing suspects down Montvale avenue and needed assistance.

Suspects turned onto Washington street heading toward Winchester at a high rate of speed and opened fire on the MDC cruiser. At this time Owen was grazed on top of his head by one of the shots fired from the fleeing suspects. Power returned fire.

At one of the intersections, a car carrying Mrs. Williamson and her husband pulled out between the fleeing car and the MDC cruiser.

Then, according to police, a second blast, fired on Prince street, struck Mrs. Williamson in the head and Owen a second time.

The MDC vehicle was forced to stop at which time Winchester and Woburn police along with state troopers continued the chase. The victims were taken to Winchester Hospital.

Carelli reports Owen was removed from the intensive care unit on Tuesday and is now in satisfactory condition.

Mrs. Williamson was treated and released for her wound and is also doing satisfactorily.

Police found a sawed-off shotgun, a .38 police revolver and five spent shells in the backseat of the abandoned car.

They also found another revolver and a hat and jacket, all of which were turned over to Det. Chester Hallisey of the MDC Ballistics Division.

Richard Nagle and John White of the MDC Detective Bureau are handling the investigation.

By-Law Study Group To Ask For Funds Of Town Meeting

Harrison Chadwick, chairman of the newly created town by-law study committee, mandated by the town charter, told Selectmen Monday night his committee will need service of counsel and equipment — perhaps a typist — to move forward with their work.

To enable committee to meet their goal of devising a system to update the town's by-laws consistent with the charter within eight months, Chadwick said he and other members want to obtain the services of Michael Curran who was special counsel to the former Charter Commission.

Chadwick said his committee feels Curran "is more cognizant of the Winchester charter."

He also pointed to Curran's wide experience in helping other towns with recodification of their by-laws.

"We want to do a high quality job as all residents of the town will be affected," noted Chadwick adding, "and we want to do our work expeditiously."

Chadwick asked selectmen for support in asking town meeting members at the special session scheduled July 17 for funds to pay Curran's services and for clerical equipment and a typist.

Ideally Chadwick would like a magnetic card typewriter which will provide for "considerable duplication" of by-law draft changes.

Chadwick noted the last review of the town's by-laws was in 1954, "so we are 21 years behind time," he said.

Though committee does not expect to adopt a "cut and paste" procedure as they blend old laws with the new, there will be a lot of work, said Chadwick. "It will not be an easy job, he said to remove redundancies and recodify."

Chadwick received the support of selectmen who suggested he seek the services of Curran, obtain estimates of costs for needs of the committee and to draw up an article for the special town meeting warrant.

Selectmen agreed with Chadwick and his committee that "Curran will be less costly to the town in the long run."

The new by-committee will meet next on Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the East Room of the town hall. The meetings are open to the public.

Story of Disadvantaged Black School Children To Be Told At St. Eulalia's Tomorrow

Clay Smothers of Malakof, Tex., will be a speaker tomorrow night at St. Eulalia's Church.

Smothers will tell Winchester residents about the St. Paul's Industrial Training School of Malakof which caters to "extremely disadvantaged" black children from five to 14 years of age.

Smothers' visit to Winchester was at the invitation of Mrs. Margaret Galvin who told The Star her purpose of asking Smothers to share with residents was solely to help him raise money for the Texas school.

"He is sponsored by me," said Mrs. Galvin who emphasized his visit has nothing to do with Crew (Citizens for Responsible Education in Winchester), an organization in which Mrs. Galvin, a strong vocal opponent of the Metco program in Winchester, is a member.

She said Smothers' visit was not a project of St. Eulalia's Church. She asked to have him talk at the church because its hall is capable of seating 1,000 persons and she wants to raise as much money as possible for the speaker's endeavors.

According to Mrs. Galvin, arrangements for Smothers' visit were made at the church two weeks ago. However, shortly thereafter Rev. Paul Lynch of the parish contacted her and wanted to cancel the engagement at the church calling the speaker "too political" by the parish council.

After much discussion, said Mrs. Galvin, Rev. Lynch consented to permit Smothers to speak on the church premises.

The Star asked Mrs. Galvin what convinced Rev. Lynch to change his mind.

She said she told him his attitude "was not very ecumenical" and she pointed to an earlier visit to the church of Metco director Jean Maguire as being political. She said Rev. Lynch's recommendations to people to vote for Metco in Winchester was also political on the part of the clergyman.

She indicated she felt these were the reasons Rev. Lynch changed his stance.

"That is not correct," said Rev. Lynch. "Those are not the true reasons." Mrs. Galvin assured us that the purpose of the visit was the charitable purpose and not political," he said.

The Star spoke with Smothers via telephone and asked him if he planned to talk about Metco or the Boston desegregation program.

Smothers, himself a black said this is not the purpose of his visit. He will talk about St. Paul's School. However, if members of the audience raise the topics of Metco or forced busing he will give comments, he said.

Smothers was an unsuccessful candidate for Vice-President at the Democratic Convention in 1972. He was a Texas delegate pledged to George Wallace for President.

As They Retire

Police, Fire Chiefs Reflect On Past, Present, Future

By Ruth-Ellen Flax

In the near future Winchester must look to replacing two of its principal officers.

Fire Chief I. Francis Amico is retiring Aug. 31 after 40 years. Police Chief Edward F. Bowler is leaving in mid-January after 38 years.

Amico's retirement comes at age 65, the mandatory age for retirement. Bowler is quitting because he feels a need for leisure time.

"The way things are today the burden is such that there is very little time for yourself," said Bowler.

Both men began young adulthood during the Depression in careers far different from those at present.

Chief Amico, a Winchester resident for 59 years, was a door-to-door salesman of household products until 1935 when he took the civil service exam, finishing with one of two top scores.

Chief Bowler attended Boston University for two years as a business administration major. After five years working at the Winchester News Co. he took the civil service exam because "a police job was considered good then, from the pay point of view. There was a great deal of competition," he said.

Amico looked at the job of firefighter as a challenge. "Jobs were hard to get during the Depression. And a city job seemed attractive."

"I like fire-fighting because it is a complex profession. There are so many varied problems. You never reach the end of the line," said Amico.

According to Bowler, "Police work is interesting and at times exciting. It gives a person the opportunity to exercise physical and mental ability. The type attracted to it is the type who wants to serve."

Amico rapidly named the duties of a firefighter: "To protect the lives and property in relation to manmade and natural disasters."

With 52 firemen and seven call firemen under his jurisdiction, Amico must answer to the Board of Selectmen, as does Bowler, who noted jobs for which he is not compensated.

"I administer the dog officer department, operate the parking meter maintenance department, the town ambulance, and the school traffic officer department. I'm also the town constable," he said.

Working their way up through the ranks as both chiefs did, they compared the way things were for them as opposed to present-day rookies.

"In the early days there was no opportunity for advancement. It was 10 years before I took the sergeant's exam; another 10 years before the lieutenant's exam and still another 10 years passed for the chief's exam," explained Bowler.

"Today there is a rapid turnover, with more opportunities," he noted.

Chief Amico spoke proudly about the educational challenges for the young firefighter.

"Today there is tremendous opportunity with the educational tools that are at hand. Everyone should take advantage of them," he said.

He said community colleges, in conjunction with the Massachusetts Board of Community Colleges, offer courses including introduction to fire prevention, organization and management of the fire department, fire hydraulics and equipment, hazardous material, legal aspects of fire administration and fire fighting tactics and strategy.

With these courses it is possible to attain an associate's degree in fire science, leading towards a degree in fire safety engineering which in turn may lead to a baccalaureate's degree from a state university, said Amico.

Bowler stressed the opportunity for advancement in the ranks. He noted the different branches of police work such as safety, juvenile work and identification.

Today's young patrolman gets 10 weeks of training under the Massachusetts Criminal Justice Training Council, said Bowler.

Police officers holding the rank of sergeant and up get at least three weeks of management training at Babson College, he noted.

Winchester will pay for the tuition and books of officers who decide to return for a degree in law enforcement to college if no federal grant is forthcoming.

When a policeman has accumulated 10 credits he is entitled to a raise in pay.

"A good incentive," Chief Bowler calls the program.

Both men look back on their earlier years with amusement.

Bowler said he had literally no training when he began police work. "They gave me a gun, club and badge. I had to buy my own uniform. Then they sent me out alone to a McGovern added, "While staking the advanced lines of the 18th division, Mr. Kinsley was attacked by eight enemy machines (Fokker type) who dived out of a nearby cloud bank." Although he was attacked simultaneously by the enemy planes, Mr. Kinsley placed his airplane in such position that his observer, 2nd Lt. William O. Lord, was able to shoot down and crush one enemy plane and disable a second. Later in the same mission, he was again attacked by a patrol of five enemy scout machines. In a running fight he drove the machines off and successfully completed his mission.

the Scottish Gaelic, "an draim bhrèagha" means "the drink which satiates" if those Gaelic words took so strangely familiar "drumbe." a word which needs no translation. Drumbe has been a favorite after-dinner liquor around the world since the beginning of the century. But for many years it was the private home brew of the Mackinnon family of Scotland. They kept the secret formula to themselves, but word of the marvelous spirit spread, and in 1911 the Drumbe was registered as a trade mark. Who was it who said that drinking Drumbe is like listening to Mozart by moonlight?

We can't recall - but we share the sentiment!

School Attitude Survey

By Mary E. Spencer

As long as the Winchester School attitude survey is in. There are thousands of cold, hard figures, and hundreds of comments varying from war to terror in page after page of tables fresh from the computer.

A first overview of the data indicates no bombshells have been dropped, no secret disclosures have been leaked and no horrendous threats to the status quo have been planned.

Winchester residents in large numbers looked at their schools thoughtfully and critically, and, in no uncertain terms, by their comments expressed their likes and dislikes about local educational issues.

Who answered the questionnaire? Those responding were mainly in the 25-49 year age bracket. Those with college or university training predominated (82 percent).

The majority of those answering have lived in Winchester from six-25 years, with approximately a third of the total having lived here for 11-25 years.

Most had first hand contact with the local school system since 81 percent claimed they now have, or have had, children who attended Winchester public schools.

Honors for doing survey homework must go to precincts three, four, five and one, in that order, since they submitted the largest number of household responses.

What did the respondents see? How do they feel about their educational system? Here are some of their reactions.

Residents feel there are decided differences in the educational quality of their public elementary schools and there is considerable difference between the two junior high schools.

Three to one throughout the town, respondents believe the self-contained or closed classroom to be educationally superior to the open classroom.

This view is sustained in the returns from the individual precincts, even in those precincts where the open classroom is the modus operandi in the neighborhood school.

Responses from the town as a whole indicate a preference for letter or number grades over pass fail and similar evaluation procedures.

The belief that homogeneous grouping at the secondary level should be reserved for selected subject classes is significantly indicated.

There is general approval for small classes (25-31) for single grade classes, and for the K-6, 7-9 and 10-12 grade organization.

High marks go to the senior high school program for college bound students, to the guidance program for college placement, to the advanced placement courses and to the Maxed-open campus program, with the request that free time away from school be removed as an option in the latter.

Discipline in all elementary schools, the Mary E. Spencer, Ph.D., is an education consultant and chairman of the attitude survey report committee. She is a seven-year Winchester resident who was educated at Harvard College and Columbia University. Her post-doctoral studies were at Harvard Graduate School of Public Health and at the University of Vienna. She notes the final report of the attitude survey group, including statistics, tabulations and commentary, will be published in the fall.

curricula in math and science at all levels, and secondary school social studies and fine arts rate high with local critics.

What would they change? There is an overwhelming demand for stricter discipline at Winchester High School and at the McCall and Lynch Junior High Schools.

Recommended changes in curricula are expansion of business and career training programs at the high school, year-round community use of the high school and arrangements for adults to attend high school classes on a semester or year round basis.

Residents request a broad program of sex education in grades K-12 inclusive.

According to their votes residents could do without Released time at the elementary level, teacher aides and para professionals.

They are critical of the vocational-career counseling, the personal-emotional counseling and the lack of communication between the School Committee and the town people.

Citizens want to be advised regularly about the comparative standing of Winchester students in the college board entrance exams, as well as the tests results for all students when any group testing program is carried out in the Winchester public schools.

They seek information concerning the content of the various courses in the school curriculum.

What interests them most, however, are the local hiring and evaluating practices concerning local teachers.

Two to one residents oppose the fiscal autonomy of the School Committee, the granting of permanent tenure to teachers and, mirabile dictu, any increase in the school budget.

The majority endorse the periodic evaluation of all teachers, this evaluation to encompass parental and student as well as professional opinions.

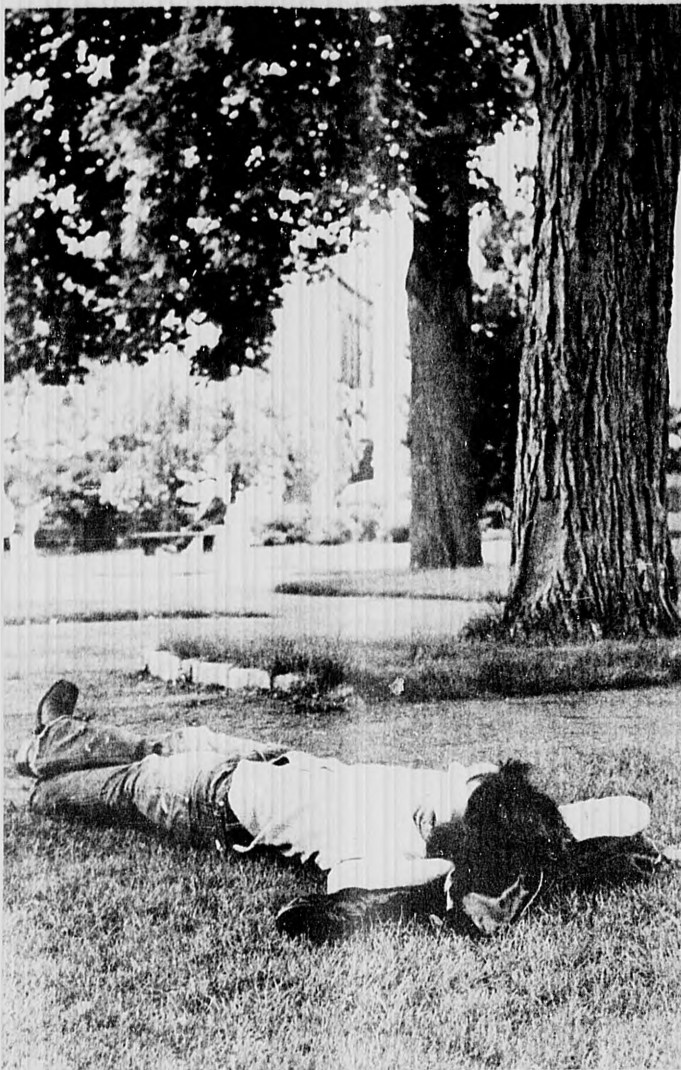

They would endeavor to keep school costs down by limiting the number of school administrators rather than by increasing the size of classes.

The most controversial item in the questionnaire, regarding Metro, brought the response of 50 percent for Metro and 50 percent against.

On the other hand only 14 percent would agree to the interchange of Winchester students with inner city students. Another 41 percent favored an occasional exchange for intercultural affairs.

This is the overall picture — the tip of the iceberg. The comparative analysis of the responses according to the various demographic categories which will bring to view some of the submerged factors is yet to be carried out.

So also is the analysis of the returns from WHS. And when youth speaks it may be another story.

Town Day, Really A Great Success

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Jaycees did a wonderful job this year. Town Day was really a great success. Everywhere one looked people were smiling and having a great time.

The Historical Commission was proud to contribute to Town Day.

For the liberty tree, we thank Richard Schmauder for allowing the use of the tree and an electrical hook up. Burt Stockwood for installing the electrical hook-up; the Business Association for use of lights; and John Belding and the Jaycees for putting up and taking down the lights.

Starting early this year the graphics committee worked researching and designing the permanent exhibit of Winchester's history. This group included Terry Cracknell, Tom Ward, Joyce Baker, Donna Tersian, and Russell Lennire. How unfortunate the ghost of Edward Converse didn't see the sketch of his house and mill as pictured by Mr. Lennire. He could have judged its authenticity.

Ray Carter built the frames for the exhibit. David Baker helped to paint and assemble the exhibit.

The ladies who posed, in costume on a hot night for the exhibit were Meridith and Grissa Baker, Debbie Stewart, Lisa Russo, Laura Carey, Dianne Simpson and Shelley Curtis.

We are grateful to Mr. Struthers of Winchester Litho for producing, in what must have been record time, the text.

The exhibit would not have gotten far had it not been for the Winchester Historical Society and the archival center for allowing the committee use of the center to research the project.

We thank scouts of the Unitarian Church their leaders and Art Hagge for raising the Liberty Pole.

The Fire and Drum Core from Waburn earned gratitude for adding a bit of bicentennial spirit. Also thanks to 60 people at the town station and surrounding churches for blowing the horn and ringing the bells when the liberty cap was put on the pole.

Frank Pitts Curtis Winchester Historical Commission 15 Myrtle St.

Tireless Efforts

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

This is sent to express our sincere appreciation to a Winchester volunteer for his tireless efforts in providing us a senior group, the opportunity to enjoy bowling in a very special way.

He planned and set up teams, kept scores, collected money and did bookkeeping.

He moved from team to team making sure "everything was rolling" smoothly. Even at coffee break he's ask "Everybody got their coffee and donuts?"

Making our bus ride to and from the bowl-drome a happy affair with his jovial, good natured banter, we salute and thank Ed Sharkey, and look forward to being with him again on our next bowling season.

F. McKee, for The Palmer Street Senior Citizens of Winchester

Thanks Given For Town Day

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I and my many friends would like to thank the Town Day committee and all the wonderful people who were responsible for the wonderful weekend. From the senior citizens with their delicious lemonade to the CYO group from St. Mary's who did face painting.

Everyone was included and there was something for everyone and every age group. It was a complete success and we are looking forward to next year.

Taxes

The following is a poem which came to the attention of The Star recently. We thought it would be appropriate to print during these difficult times of increasing taxes and decreasing incomes.

Tax his cow, Tax his goat
Tax his pants, Tax his coat
Tax his ties, Tax his shirt
Tax his work, Tax his dirt

Tax his chew, Tax his smoke
Teach him taxes is no joke
Tax his car, Tax his Ass
Tax the roads he must pass.

Tax his hand, Tax his wage
Tax the bed in which he lays Tax his tractor, Tax his mile
Teach him taxes is the rule.

Fundamentalist School In Education Faces Reality

By Constance D. Papas

Today as the Winchester schools close for summer recess, parents and students alike sigh with relief and look forward to a time of relaxation and fun.

But before we depart for the seashore, let us ponder once more the goals and values of our educational system.

Certainly we have much to be proud of, but there is always room for improvement and change.

In recent months there has been considerable debate concerning the success of the liberal open-classroom philosophy of education. This past February the Boston Globe reported that: enthusiasm has waned for the open classroom and its accent on allowing children to follow their learning instincts with little interference from teachers and curriculum goals.

"It is a thing out of the British system that doesn't work very well here," said John Sullivan, director of instruction for the National Education Association.

In response to this increasing cry from parents and educators alike, several fundamentalist schools have opened across the country. The basic concept of the fundamentalist school is that the student's mind must be developed into a self-reliant, skillful, trained person who will mature into a worthwhile citizen and an honorable, valuable member of society.

It must be pointed out here that the essential difference between the two philosophies is that while the success of the open classroom technique depends upon the student's own ability to make decisions and seek education, the fundamentalist theory rests on the premise that the mind must be trained and guided toward enlightenment.

This does not mean that the student is repressed or restrained, but there are clearly established rules and regulations just as there are throughout adult life.

While the open classroom philosophy does work well for some students, it has been clearly established these are the exceptionally bright, inquisitive few who would do well under most circumstances.

The fundamentalist approach, on the other hand, has a far broader base for success. The emphasis in the program is learning—the achievement of learning is for everyone. The student is carefully guided through each phase of his education and each step is predicated on the mastery of the previous step.

The Star invites readers who wish to develop an issue into column length to inquire of the editor for using this space.

The advancement to theory can only be made after the basics, or fundamentals, of each subject are mastered, i.e., creative writing must follow the mastering of grammar, new math must follow the mastery of computation.

Discipline, social and intellectual is an integral part of this structure. Students are expected to be guided by respect for all students, teachers, and property.

While moral development is basically the responsibility of the home in holding the individual responsible for his actions at all times, this responsibility is augmented by the school in holding the individual responsible for his actions while at school. Intellectual discipline is developed through the structured use of school time. The student is expected to use educational time for educational endeavors even though he may prefer to pursue social activities.

The fundamental philosophy, in short, seems to be an approach geared toward dealing with reality as opposed to the open classroom utopian world.

The education of our children should be designed to mold intelligent, responsible, disciplined adults who are prepared to deal with the demands of society.

The adult world does not offer unlimited choices for the free spirit. Therefore it seems unreasonable to create this environment for our children who are then unprepared for their future.

Some liberal thinkers may call this repression, I consider it reality.

Grass-Roots Government Is Shown In Mock Town Meeting

One hundred and eighty senior girl scouts from all over the country, some from overseas, will come to Winchester High School Monday evening June 30 to see what traditional American grass-roots government is all about.

So through 60 residents will stage a mock town meeting with the participation of some scouts.

A mock warrant is being prepared. Town moderator Raymond J. Kenney Jr., will conduct the meeting while town clerk Elsie Nelson will record the proceedings.

The idea originated with Mrs. Ralph Swanson of 44 Swan Rd., official in the Mistick Side Girl Scout Council, one of the sponsoring organizations for the international convention.

The idea is to demonstrate to those outside New England how local government is conducted, still the way the colonists did in the 1770's in an annual town meeting.

She presented the idea to the Winchester League of Women Voters, who were enthusiastic. The league approached the Board of Selectmen who agreed to organize the meeting.

Selectmen William Chapman and Arthur Dunbar have been in charge of arrangements, in conjunction with the League of Women Voters and representatives from other town boards and committees.

From June 29 to July 12 the girl scouts, 15-18 years of age, from 36 states and the Canal Zone, England, Ireland and Canada, will be staying on Tufts University campus for a convention labelled, "Boston Beans and Battle Greens."

They will study New England's heritage through its early history and revolutionary struggle.

Activities include visiting Lexington and Concord to hear the shot heard round the world, following Paul Revere's ride, seeing Plymouth Plantation, visiting scenes of the Salem witch trials, partaking of a New England clam bake and touring universities and museums of Boston.

The Winchester Rotary Club will underwrite the cost of transporting the scouts from Medford to Winchester and back for the town meeting.

Keynote speaker for opening day ceremonies of the two-week convention will be James Dobbins of 94 Church St., political cartoonist for the Boston Herald American.

Whitney Smith, flag specialist of 3 Edgell Rd., will address the girls Sunday evening, July 6.

Winchester may play a part in celebrating America's 200 birthday.

Fifty town meeting members told the League of Women Voters they will be on hand.

Officials of town committees and boards agreed to give time and participation.

Residents wishing to join may contact Mrs. Harold Warford, League of Women Voters coordinator.

Sponsors include the Bay Path Colonial, the Hawthorne and the Mistick Side Girl Scout Councils, which encompass 50 cities and towns in the greater Boston community.

William Chapman and Arthur Dunbar of the Board of Selectmen are coordinators of the mock town meeting.

Berta Swanson of the Mistick Side Girl Scout Council is sponsor, Ruann Warford of the League of Women Voters is organizing agent.

Members of the volunteer steering committee are John Wiseman of the Planning Board; Richard Richmond, Finance Committee; Catherine Fallon, School Committee; Parker Blanchard, Water and Sewer Board; John McKinley of the police department. Also Mary Avakian of the Cemetery Commission; John Moore of the Conservation Commission; Edward O'Connell of the Board of Library Trustees; Peter Lane of the Personnel Board; Albert MacDonnell of the Park Commission; Don Spinnery of the Recreation Department; Patricia Wells of the Council on Aging; Wilbur Otis of civil defense and Lawrence Quigley of the Board of Health.

Town, Union At Odds Over DPW

The local AFL-CIO 285, representing approximately 100 town workers in the public works sector, has gone to mediation over the lack of progress and agreement with the town on a new labor contract.

The full negotiating committee for workers agreed after the last meeting on June 10 that the contract talks with the town's negotiators has bogged down to such an extent that no avenue is opened for settlement.

The town stood firm on a three percent wage offer since the talks began March 25. Two non-money proposed items have been completely agreed upon.

In five sessions three major items have been centered upon: across the board wage increases, longevity pay and personal leave. The union's contention is that only wage and longevity items would be over and above expenditures already allotted to the town's budget.

The town and the union have not agreed upon items concerning the condition of employment.

The union contends the town is attempting to delete some items in the contract such as Bunker Hill Day, longevity, special duty pay and rights granted to protect vacant positions in the bargaining unit.

Local 285 AFL-CIO has as chief negotiator Joseph Sandulli of the law firm of Egoff, Goldman, Manning, Pyle and Wanger of Boston.

Other members of the local negotiating committee are Chester Saunders, president, Frank Graves, Thomas Comeau, Hugh O'Brien, James Haggerty, William Carroll, Ralph Dimambra and local 285 business agent Gardner Morgan.

Negotiating for the town is selectman John J. Sullivan assisted by Carl Jacobson, Edward Donnelly, Robert Graves and Richard Murphy, labor counsel. According to Sullivan, "There is no question that these town employees have felt the impact of inflation since the last contract agreement, 27 months ago. The job of both negotiating teams is to work out a settlement fair and equitable to both the employees and the taxpayer."

Compare & Save

Compare CONVENIENCE vs. HOME PREPARED products. In buying convenience products, instant dinners and the like, remember you are paying for someone else's labor to prepare and package the product. Decide whether it would be better to prepare the same food at home from scratch. Compare COST PER SERVING rather than cost per pound. The amount of fat and bone in meat cuts, for example, varies greatly. A meat which appears to be high in cost on a per lb. basis, may be the most economical because it has little bone or other waste. Compare FOOD VALUE. Cheaper cuts of meat are just as nutritious as the more expensive cuts. Lower grades of canned goods are equally nutritious.

Marie Henry Authors New Cookbook Of Ethnic Recipes

Marie L. Henry, wife of Robert P. Henry, 3 Wildwood st., is author of a new cookbook entitled, "Out of My Head."

Mrs. Henry describes the book as "A happy, nostalgic collection of ethnic recipes which include New England favorites as well as Irish, Italian and Chinese popular recipes."

Andrea Duran, Mrs. Henry's daughter, illustrated the book with inspiration from Punch and Judy woodcuts. Mrs. Henry said Punch and Judy are seen in antique English political satirical journal.

"Out of My Head" is the result of eight years of writing and testing recipes "with the encouragement of my family, guests in our home and friends," said Mrs. Henry.

A free lance writer whose food articles have appeared in the "Christian Science Monitor," "Early American Life" and "Yankee," has also sold material to "National Antiques Review" and "Life and Health." The handicap of deafness was the top of the article appearing in the latter publication.

The new cookbook features economical recipes making use of low cost foods with good protein value such as tripe and squid and the use of pressure cookers to cut down on time and energy use.

Copies of the book may be obtained at the Winchester First National Store and the Continental Chow.

Miss Littell Earns Award

Stephenie Littell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Littell, Jr. of 47 Grove st., received the Winchester College Club scholarship award. Miss Littell will attend MIT in the fall.

"There she goes," said Philip O'Rourke of Mount Vernon street as he watched his car roll into the Aberjona River Monday afternoon.

Car Slides Into Aberjona River

Philip O'Rourke of Mt. Vernon street got more than he bargained for when he went to mail a letter Monday afternoon.

Leaving the ignition on, he parked his car in front of the post office on Waterfield road at a near 45 degree angle facing Thompson street.

Apparently the car was not in park as he thought, and it rolled backwards across Waterfield road onto the curb and down the bank into the Aberjona river.

The 1966 automobile has not yet been appraised by the insurance company.

O'Rourke explained the right hand door was dented and it was "soaked with water pretty well."

"There she goes!" was O'Rourke's thought as he helplessly watched his car roll into the river.

"I was a little shook," he added.

July May Be Turning Point For Recession

William B. Whiston, director of the University of Massachusetts-Amherst Center for Business and Economic Research, recently wrote he sees July as the turning point in the state's 20-month recession.

In his article in the Massachusetts Business and Economic Report, the center's quarterly publication, Whiston said "it will be years before conditions return to normal in the Commonwealth."

He predicts double-digit unemployment throughout 1975 unless drastic public employment programs intervene.

The cost of living rose 12 percent, earnings less than five percent for a real loss of seven percent, according to Whiston.

This is about one and one half times the loss in real income for the average US worker, he continued.

Mauger First In State Tourney

By John F. Parrell

Rick Mauger, a junior at Winchester High School, captured the all-state championship in the quarter-mile event at a recent meet in Andover.

He was clocked in 50.4 seconds, a half second slower than his school record time of 49.9 seconds.

As Mauger ran there was a near-gale-force wind blowing which hindered his effort yet it was creditable.

When the other heats in the event were run there was almost a dead calm. Less talented runners finished in their best time ever.

Winchester speedster is statewide champion of all classes.

In the New England event last Saturday, also at Andover, Mauger placed third in the event.

He was shoulder to shoulder with Denvers of Dover, N.H., winner, to within 20 yards of the wire, where he seemed to face slightly, allowing another New Hampshire speedster to edge him for the second spot.

Faculty Takes Golf Match

By John F. Parrell

The annual golf match between the students and the faculty closed out the schoolboy golf season.

The teachers had a narrow 7-5 edge. It was far more competitive than the season's finale with Lexington which the Minutemen won in a shutout.

James Graham topped Vandy French 3 and 2 to gain a point for the students. Richard Sullivan played well enough to defeat Kevin O'Neil by 1 up, and the faculty team took the point to put them ahead 2 to 1.

Debbie Clum and George Watson representing the faculty each lost 4 and 3 and the students also took the team point 4 and 3.

Phil Casey showed the way to Miss Clum while Paul Haley took care of Watson. So, it was now students 4, faculty 2.

Robert Quinn beat Dave Miller of the faculty 1 up. Coach Joe Aversa of the golf team beat Rick Butare 4 and 3 to also insure the faculty of the team point and the score was now students 5, faculty 4.

Assistant principal Tom Budrewicz defeated Lewis Franklin 3 and 2 and Cliff Wheeler topped Gary DeCicco by a similar count. The faculty took the team point that decided the match of 7-5 for the faculty players.

In the contest with Lexington Jim Graham lost the only close match 2 and 1 to Frank Richardson. The other scores were mostly in the 5 and 4 or 5 and 3 type, to give the Minutemen an easy victory on their home course.

Semi-Finals Due In High School Tennis

By John F. Parrell
The annual tennis tournament involving the students and faculty at the high school has now reached the semi-final round.

Surviving in the upper bracket are students Jim Ferrante, a sophomore, and Ray Champoux, a senior.

The lower bracket finds faculty members Al Trotter and Vandy French meeting each other. Thus, the final will have one student and one faculty member as opponents.

First round matches found Ferrante drawing a bye, Paul Mulloy of the faculty bested Walter Soule 6-2, 6-0.

Varsity tennis coach George Hillier met a tartar in George Cheever with the student winning in three rugged sets 6-2, 4-6, 11-9.

Ray Champoux completed the upper bracket by trouncing Joan Rosazza 6-0, 6-1. Jon Stableford of the faculty eliminated Stephanie McKay 6-2, 6-0.

Al Trotter had a tough struggle with student Jay Estabrook but won 6-4, 4-6, 6-4 to advance to the quarter finals. Mickey Karp defeated Tange 6-1, 6-0 and Vandy French also had a bye.

Jim Ferrante had an easy time in the quarter final round as he put together two love sets against Paul Mulloy. Ray Champoux found Dave Cheever a much improved player and both sets were close with Champoux the winner by 7-5, 6-4.

The lower bracket found Trotter and Stableford in a real battle before the former took a 9-7 victory and the match as Stableford defaulted in the second set.

Vandy French also posted two love sets in the quarter finals against Mickey Karp. And so the battle lines are drawn with a student-faculty final a inevitable conclusion. The semi-finals and final match will be held this week.

Greyhounds Cop Minor League Championship

The Greyhounds came from behind to overtake the Beavers and cop the minor league baseball championship 17-10 this week.

A devastating fifth inning rally featuring four home runs and daring base running allowed the champs to overcome an early 9-1 deficit and pull out the victory.

The winners were led by the strong relief pitching of Paul O'Brien and the hitting of Terry O'Brien, John Coggan, Chris Livingston and Scott Ford.

Jim Feeley, Chris Rodgers, David Cee and Ivan Adler also starred for the winners.

In Tennis Play

Bill Bird Wins 4th Match

Bill Bird, a regular substitute on the Winchester B2 tennis team in the Suburban Tennis League, won his fourth match, last Tuesday. His team lost their final match, to Lexington, 1-2.

Bird and Dwight Bellows started the Winchester team off on the right track, with a 7-6, 6-4 win, but the hosts came back to defeat the team of Capt. Al Samoiloff and Jim Phillips, 1-6; 1-6 and close the match with a 6-4; 6-1 victory over Steve Powers and Graham Hunt.

The final match is Tuesday against Cambridge at the William S. Packer Courts. Lexington put the double whammy on the Winchester B's by nipping the B-1 team at Winchester the same day, by the same score 2-1.

In this encounter, the teams traded wins, first, with Ted White and Lee Hawley dropping the first set to, 4-6; 1-6, but Capt. Bob Pritchard and Dick Kadesch tied things up with a 6-3; 2-6, 6-2 triumph.

The deciding match was one of frustration for the Winchester "Don's," Paffer and Ellis.

They won the first set handily, 6-1, but dropped the second, 4-6.

In the third set the Dons had a seemingly comfortable lead, but the Lexington team tied the set at four games each. The Dons went ahead 5-4, but were again tied. The set went to a tie breaker, with the Dons 4 points in the van before the opponents again rallied to tie and then won the tie-breaker with a "wood" mis-hit that just nicked the outside tape for the victory. Tuesday is their last match against Windsor, away.

'A' Team

The Winchester A team ended their season with a loss to Westboro in a match postponed from May 7 to end their record at 3 and 2 losing their first and fifth matches.

Bill Macneil and Phil Kadesch started the match on a high note with a 6-4; 6-3 victory, but the second and third duos couldn't keep up the pace. Capt. Doug Ankerson and Iton Salter lost 0-6; 1-6, while Steve Halmer and Wil Aldrich were beaten 6-7; 6-1.

The Suburban League playoffs, in the men's division will be conducted the week after next. The Winchester C-1 will be in the thick of the battle for their overall championship.

Lynch 9 Has 6-5-2 Record

The Lynch baseball nine, coached by George Snyder, has finished its schedule with a 6-5-2 record for the season.

The two tie games came late in the schedule against Kennedy of Woburn and Muzzy of Lexington.

The deadlock with Kennedy was a 2-2 affair, but when played off the following day the Woburn team outslugged Lynch by 12-5.

Four miscues by the Winchester team helped to swell the total for the visitors. Paul Medwar bunted effectively in the tie game with Mark McGoldrick pounding out a pair of hits and Bob Brosnan playing well in the field.

McGoldrick started the return game and was not as effective as usual. Bob Coppins and Medwar also toiled on the mound in the losing cause. Tom Murray, Lynch catcher came up with a double and a single.

Lynch met previously undefeated Watertown West and emerged victorious as a result of a big five run rally in the last of the seventh. The visitors had previously won 10 straight games. Paul Medwar withstood heavy bombardment in the third and fourth innings, but was at his best as he finished up with three scoreless innings. Joe Costello, Jack Collins and Medwar led the Lynch offense.

Mark McGoldrick allowed only two hits against Muzzy, but their pitcher, Zowen was equally effective and limited the Lynch team to the same number. With such excellent pitching the 1-1 tie was a logical result.

Co-captains Mark McGoldrick and Paul Medwar were the leading hitters for the Lynch nine. McGoldrick posted a season's average of .324, while Medwar was close behind at .306.

Beacons Vie With Needham

The Winchester Beacons and the Needham Thistles will play for the class B (13-14 year-old boys) championship of the Boston Area.

Youth Soccer (Boys) League tomorrow night at Boston University's Nickerson Field at 6 p.m.

The Beacons reached this spot by topping the northern region, first division, with a 9 win, 0 loss and 1 tie record. Needham has the same record in the southern division.

The final regular season game at Wilmington last Saturday was declared a forfeit to Winchester since the field was not properly marked.

Playing without lines and a referee the Beacons won 3-2. Jimmy Oliver, Paul Casey and Charlie Mahoney scored the goals.

Needham has won the class B title for the last four years.

Most of the Beacons players were on the C team (11-12 years) that won the class C division championship two years ago.

Against Brockton, Dawn Hudson won by 6-0, 6-1. Kathy Noble won by 6-1 and 6-0; Nacy Raleigh won by 6-1 and 6-0.

The first doubles team of Tona Buros and Beth Parsons won by 6-3 and 6-4 while Kathy McInnis and Cardya Mooney dropped their match by 1-6, 7-5 and 2-6.

The Marshfield match was a shutout for Winchester even though the South Shore girls played better than Brockton. Dawn Hudson won by 6-1 and 6-2; Kathy Noble by 6-3 and 6-2; Nacy Raleigh by 6-0 and 6-1. The doubles teams also won their matches with Tona Buros and Beth Parsons winning by 6-3 and 6-4 while Kathy McInnis and Cardya Mooney won 7-5 and 6-2.

Newton South eliminated Winchester 3-2 with both doubles sets going three sets before the Sachemettes went down to defeat.

Dawn Hudson was beaten 1-6, 2-6. Kathy Noble won by 6-3 and 7-5; Nacy Raleigh won 6-0 and 6-3.

Tona Buros and Beth Parsons won their first set 7-5 but lost the others 1-6 and 2-6.

Kathy McInnis and Cardya Mooney also won their opening set by 7-6 but dropped the final two sets 3-6 and 2-6 to give the victory to Newton South.

Cougars Win Season Finale

The Winchester Cougars closed out their 1975 Boston Area Youth Soccer (Boys) season with a smashing 9-1 win over Burlington.

The technical superiority, excellent conditioning and offensive power of the Cougars left the talented Burlington team totally hapless after the first five minutes.

The goal scorers for the Cougars were Jimmy Barger (3), David Savak (2), Lashle von Lazar, Joe Waite, Paul Williamson and John Uweyk.

The Cougars' season record is 4 wins, 2 ties and 2 losses. This all 11-year-old team came into its own during the second half of the season when the boys went six games undefeated in a row. This is the first Winchester team, playing in the Bays league against other towns, that has grown entirely from the ranks of the fall youth soccer program in which more than 400 children participate every year.

This year the Cougars were coached by Wayne Paskerian and Arpad von Lazar.

Cyclists Meet Snow, Hail, Tornadoes On Way Out West

Two Winchester youths probably have a more realistic view of how the West was won after cycling through snow in Wyoming, hail in Colorado and tornadoes in Iowa.

Despite the inclement weather, David Bower, 19, of 29 Mystic ave., and Thare Macdonald, 19, of 73 Yale st., reached Monterey, Ca., Monday afternoon on their cross-country bicycle trip for the cancer crusade.

Mrs. John R. Macdonald, Thare's mother, said the cyclists expected to reach their destination, Los Angeles, late in the week.

Because of the poor weather conditions the youths have been averaging only 75 miles a day. Mrs. Macdonald said Thare and David had hopes to travel farther each day.

Macdonald and Bower camped on farmers' lawns in Iowa and were asked in for breakfast by many of the farmers. Mrs. Macdonald said they were "treated royally in Iowa by the farmers."

The cyclists have had to change their tires twice, walking as far as 12 miles to get a spare tire.

The youths have received per mile pledges from people they have met on the trip in addition to those they obtained before starting.

The young men will drive home from Los Angeles in Bower's car.

Heimlich Named Adviser For Cemetery

Alexander I. Heimlich of Woburn has been named landscape adviser to the commissioners of Wildwood Cemetery.

According to Cmsr. Maurice Freeman, Heimlich will aid in the town's program "of further beautifying the 75 acres of Wildwood property."

Freeman said Heimlich "is enthusiastic about helping us on our beautification program."

Freeman added "In addition to being a well kept and beautiful town cemetery, Wildwood can be a lovely park for many to enjoy."

Heimlich, according to Freeman, "is an outstanding authority on trees and shrubs and naturalistic planting."

Freeman notes Heimlich did landscape work for the Snowflake Gardens on Forest street in the early 1930's. Snowflake Gardens was then a tiny nursery run by Hattie and Grace Snow, he said.

In the years since his first exhibit at the New England spring flower show for Snowflake, Heimlich is said to have gained national recognition in the horticultural and landscape fields.

In the years since his first exhibit, he has won the Burgee Gold Vase five times as the most outstanding exhibit at the show.

He has earned the president's bowl seven times, the Buckley medal of the Garden Club of America four times, and a half dozen other awards at this New England show.

He is also recipient of more than 60 gold medals awarded in other United States cities.

This year he was instrumental in organizing and getting underway the first large spring flower show in Manchester, N.H.

Working with Bill Davis a few years ago and with the sponsorship and help of the Winchester Rotary and other community and garden clubs, Heimlich replanted and redeveloped Wanch street common with its trees and shrubs.

Demsey Cited For 27 Years' Service

Recently at the Towne Lyne House, Lynnfield, a retirement dinner was held honoring Norton E. Demsey Jr. for his 27 years of service to the Winchester Public Schools.

Coming to Winchester in 1948 as a guidance counselor, he served as guidance director and teacher and coordinator of data processing.

Demsey was presented a Harvard chair and a gift of money.

Speakers were Leonore Rich, William F. Clark, Vincent E. Larooco, Edward Burns, Joseph Forte, William Macdonald and Pauline McNulty.

Demsey received his bachelor's degree from Salem State College and his master's degree from Harvard.

He will be leaving Winchester in the near future to take up residence in Maine.

Wolves Co-Lead Minor League

The American Minor League Wolves co-lead with the Wildcats.

With 12 wins and one loss, the Wolves scored 233 runs, as against 62 runs for opponents.

A strong pitching staff consists of Tony Celi with six wins including two no-hitters. Doug Oran has three victories and displays pressure pitching form, particularly in a key come from behind 7 to 6 win over the Whippets.

Ricky Russo makes easy work of getting by his opponents and has three wins.

The infield is anchored by veteran Phil Kirkpatrick having a strong season behind the plate and at bat.

On first base are Matthew Maryanski and David Goodrow.

Steady all season, their hitting improves with each game. David pitched well in relief.

Second basemen Larry Maida and Doug Oran produced timely hits.

Shortstop Michael O'Connor won't let a ball go by and runs bases with poise.

Third base has Feza Koprucu, big home-run hitter with nine this year. He shows good range at the hot corner as he cuts down runners at first.

The outfield has Jim Kirkpatrick at centerfield getting hits with a smooth swing. In right-field Jonathan Ellis and Tom Marinic improved with each game and displayed fine catches to go with strong clutch hitting.

In leftfield Andy Fieleke and Doug Monson catch them all and at the plate bang out some long ones.

Manager is Dick Parker. Coaches are Alan Oran and Jack Ellis.

Carol Fieleke and Mary Celi are team mothers.

Cardinals Finish Up-Down Season

The American Major League Cardinals finished a somewhat inconsistent season recently by nipping the Little League leading Astros 7-6.

Leading the way for the Cardinals were Brian Nolan and Jimmy Edwards.

Nolan pitched an excellent game holding the Astros to one run for most of the game. Despite tiring in the later inning, he held on, striking out the final two batters.

Edwards made his major contribution with a long three-run homer in the third inning.

Other key performers were Gary Errico, two hits and two RBI's, and Chris Stein who made the game-winning hit.

The Cardinals proved to be an erratic team through the season.

They beat the Astros and the Mets twice each, but lost four times to weaker teams.

This accounted for a somewhat dissapointing 10-8 win-loss record.

Edwards and Nolan lead an experienced infield into the playoffs.

Both played three years on the Cardinals.

Edwards leads the league with seven home runs and 35 RBI's while Nolan went three weeks without a hit.

When Brian's pitching third base belongs to Gerry Kimball and proved to be a valuable asset filling in at second base as well as third.

The rest of the infield has Jay Berardi at second, Chris Stein at shortstop, and Ian Donaghey behind the plate.

Berardi and Donaghey were consistently good throughout the year, finishing with high batting averages, and were steady on the field.

Stein, the only newcomer, started off slowly, but has improved as the season progressed.

He finished with .400 batting average and was third on the team in runs batted in.

The outfield revolves around 12-year-old center fielder Gary Errico who leads the team in hits.

He did not miss a fly ball and had a 2-0 win-loss record as a pitcher.

Rightfield belongs to Paul Bacci, a vastly improved player this year.

Left field is handled by four ten-year-olds.

Leading this kiddie corps is Scotty Nolan who had a remarkable first year in the majors.

Scotty finished with 19 hits and was third on the team in batting average.

Eric Donaghey, Kevin Scully and George Ward contributed to the team's winning season.

Danny Ryalls, the only 11-year-old, played his first season in organized baseball and has come a long way.

Hornets, Eagles Win Cap Titles

Last weekend was the last of the regular Cap league season.

The Eagles won the Crown Division championship. They played at West Side Field with an 8 and 2 record.

In the Visor Division, played at Ginn Field, the Hornets and the Red Sox tied for the title, also with 8 and 2 records, although the Red Sox losses were to the Hornets.

In a Sunday playoff game, the Hornets asserted their superiority with a convincing 17 to 2 trouncing of the Sox.

On Saturday, games which had been postponed by rain on May 4, were played to complete the regular season.

At Ginn Field, the Hornets bombed the Braves 8-7, and the Rangers won by forfeit, 6-0 over the no show Blue Jays.

In the Crown Division, the Eagles lost their second game of the season by dropping a 13-3 decision to the third place Astros. The Dodgers made their season 5 and 5 by edging the Pirates, 15-11 and the Orioles outlasted the Apollos 14-6.

The 1975 Cap baseball league came to a successful conclusion, right on schedule.

On Wednesday the two division winners are scheduled to play for the overall Cap league title, weather permitting.

The game is ticketed for Ginn Field, starting at 6 p.m. If weather interferes, the game will be canceled.

fireworks celebration at Winchester Plains among 5,000 people. I had never been out on the streets before."

Amico compares his 10-week elementary recruiting course of 40 years ago with a firefighting academy which he helped establish in Stowe several years ago.

He cites this as one of the highlights of his career.

Bowler said a most fulfilling time in his life as a police officer was in 1970 when the Winchester Police Department obtained federal funds for a breaking and entering prevention program.

After consultants and a computer were hired, officers filed reports of burglaries occurring in Winchester.

Data was analyzed and a detailed picture of the part of town, the type of house, the time of day and the mode of entry which burglars most often employed, emerged.

Bowler explained that Winchester's Police Department was the first in Massachusetts to implement a homeowners engraving program. This has residents marking their belongings for a ready means of identification in case of burglary.

Besides a store security check plan whereby merchants may call for advice on locks, windows, lights and alarms, a public relations program advising the public about burglary prevention was begun several years ago by the local police department.

"We've done the best we could to deal with the burglary problem," offered Bowler. "It could be much worse."

He said the most difficult part of police work in Winchester is dealing with his own people.

"Many times I'm forced to do disagreeable things, especially when it comes to children."

"It's a sad state of affairs when the parents come in. I have no choice but to go to court. I can't show favoritism."

According to Amico, "In these last years my job has become more complex with the advent of unions, labor relation laws, collective bargaining laws and civil service laws."

Amico said he has never gotten used to the pain and despair which he, as a firefighter, often witnesses.

"The most heartbreaking memory any firefighter could have is seeing persons die as a result of fire, especially one caused through carelessness," he said.

Although Chief Amico contends that firefighting is "a young man's game," he is not happy about retiring.

"I am being forced. I have no choice. There should be other criteria than age as far as a chief officer goes," he said.

Still he admits he'd like to see a lower mandatory age for retirement. "Someday it will happen. The retiring age will be 55. So much is required physically and mentally."

Would he remain if possible? "I certainly would!" he stated unequivocally.

"It's difficult to convey to the general public how you feel when you've made something your life's work and given your best."

"I've lived, slept firefighting. Everything has been done in relation to the Fire Department and serving the town of Winchester," said Amico.

Bowler too will miss the Police Department and serving the community.

"My philosophy is opposite of the world owes me a living. I feel an obligation to the town, state and country."

"If I didn't go into police work I'd be in another field which serves the public."

He said he especially enjoyed investigation procedures when "you start with nothing and work at it until you come up with clues and are able to solve the case."

During his retirement Bowler intends to indulge in fresh water fishing, golf, hiking and reading.

A member of the Massachusetts, New England and International Chiefs of Police Associations, he will always retain his interest and memberships in these organizations.

Amico hopes to keep his hand in his profession by working as a fire prevention consultant in a private industry on a part-time basis.

Returning to his native Sicily and touring Europe by car is another aim.

"I'd like to take time and see how fire service is in Europe, see how the people live," he said.

Amico is a member of the Massachusetts, New England and International Board of Fire Chiefs.

Musicians Cited

Burton O. Cowgill, director of music for the Winchester Public Schools, reports the following music students were honored recently by being elected to "Who's Who Among Music Students in American High Schools."

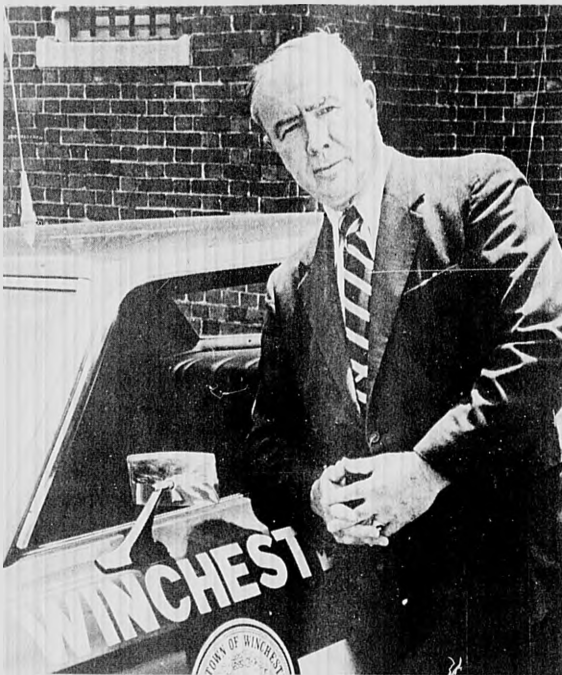

Jennifer Potts, Amy Anderson, Monique Phinney, Anne Fairbanks, Anne Fudge, and Michael Cammarata.

The citation they received reads:

"This is to certify that (student's name) has been elected to Who's Who Among Music Students in American High Schools in recognition of outstanding merit and accomplishment as a student at Winchester High School 1974-75." The students name along with a brief biography sketch will appear in a publication very much like the original "Who's Who."

Grace Chapel Begins

Vacation Church School

"Clap Your Hands, Jesus Is Lord" is the theme for this year's Vacation Bible School at Grace Chapel, Worthen Road, Lexington.

Friday, June 27, for one week.

Classes will start at 9 a.m. and end at 11:45 a.m.

On Wednesday evening, July 2, parents will be invited to a program arranged by the children involved in VBS to demonstrate what they have been doing and learning during the week.

The final day is July 4.

The program has been designed to reach out and minister to the entire family.

VBS director this year is

Mrs. Evelyn Reed, Lexington, assisted by Mrs. Betty Herrman, Bedford, and Mrs. Lorraine Salto, Lexington.

Preliminary work began as early as March and nearly 150 members and friends of Grace Chapel are now involved in helping make this a most successful week.

Of special interest to women of all ages is the mother's class being led by Pastor and Mrs. MacDonald. The course is entitled "The Challenge of Change." It will deal with the many changes that take place in a woman herself and in her life.

Each year the vacation Bible school concentrates on a particular missionary project. This year it will be World Vision.

This is a Christian organization that was involved in ministering to Vietnamese children, both in providing food and clothing and in airlifting the children out of that country.

The money children bring in each day to BVS will go toward the current World Vision project.

This year an effort will be made to stretch BVS week with a day camp experience in New Hampshire to prepare children for the summer.

SWAP week will follow June 27, July 3, every evening at the Old Belfry Club for fellowship, teaching and discipline, and then continue every week throughout July and August.

For more information contact the church office.

Winchester's finest townhouses are now for sale

For the first time, all the advantages of condominium living are now available in Winchester: the benefits of home ownership without the bother of home maintenance.

Now you can buy a large townhouse with a full basement on one of Winchester's loveliest sites, Wedge Pond. The crystal clear lake is the home of native ducks, and migratory geese, the recreational spot of seasonal skaters and swimmers, and the background for your own private evening sunsets.

Now, for as little as $37,500 to $41,000 you can own a home with complete kitchen, tiled bath, Birch carpentry. Beautiful hardwood flooring. Bay windows. Private parking.

Now you can own all this, and let someone else do the work for you. Two acres of landscaped grounds are kept forever green. The snow is shoveled before you know it's fallen. And a resident superintendent takes care of all maintenance and repairs.

There were only 39 homes to start with. Only one half remain. So see them soon. Before we start the next waiting list.

Health Council Plans Report On Area Care

Area 315 of the Health Planning Council of Greater Boston is preparing a report which could change the future of health care in the area.

This "Health Systems Plan" will cover every phase of health care from walk-up clinics to intensive care and pediatrics to nursing home needs.

The Health Planning Council is part of a complex bureaucracy. The Council was established by a 1966 Federal law to help coordinate health planning. It had no powers to force any agency to follow their plan.

The Greater Boston Council is broken into Regions and the regions are broken down into areas. Area 315 includes Arlington, Winchester, Lexington, Burlington, Wilmington, and Woburn.

Area 315 is governed by a 30-member board made up of 10 "Providers" (Doctors, nurses, or anyone else who works in the health field) and 20 "Consumers" (the rest of us).

The council is elected by members of Area 315. Membership is open to anyone who lives or works in the health industry in this area. There is no fee for membership.

The Area Committee works as a consumer protection agency. Its members tell the planners at the Greater Boston Council what the real health needs of the people in this area are.

The Greater Boston Council combines their advice along with the statistics they have collected in drawing up the health plan. Last year, Congress passed a law establishing "Health Systems Agencies." The Greater Boston Council will probably be designated as the Health Systems Agency in this area.

As a health systems agency, the council will have power over all federal health funds in Greater Boston. If the government moves toward a national health insurance plan, the power of the health systems agency will probably increase a great deal.

Although Area 315 and the Greater Boston Council have only advisory powers now, they have a large voice in "Certificate of Need" decisions.

The Public Health Council, appointed by the governor, requires a health agency to apply for a Certificate of Need whenever they make a major change in their service.

A major change in service is any project which costs over $100,000, or changes the bed capacity, or changes existing services, or adds new services. It covers all health agencies, including nursing homes, professional buildings, clinics, and hospitals.

The Public Health Council has turned over most of the ground work on Certificates of Need to the Greater Boston Council. The Public Health Council agrees with the Greater Boston Council in 90 percent of the cases.

Robert Champoux of 6 Sheffield rd. and Clara Lewis of 91 Swanton st. represent Winchester on the Area 315 Committee.

The Health Planning Council of Greater Boston is trying to involve more consumers in its work. They can be contacted at One Gateway Center in Newton, 02158.

Students Produce Bicentennial Play

Students in the fifth and sixth grades at Washington School recently participated in the bicentennial production, "Yankee Doodle."

The musical, three-act play, directed by teacher Linda Popp, was also performed for the Lincoln School.

The Fife and Drum Corps began the celebration followed by pupils in colonial garb singing Revolutionary War tunes.

Teachers involved were Michael Marino, props and scenery; Jeanne Loudon, music; Kevin Chrusz and Priscilla Miller, Fife and Drum Corps.

Parents were responsible for the colonial costumes.

Rotary Plaque, Stone Cited For Davidson Park

George Davidson, first president of the Winchester Rotary in 1927, will be honored by Rotarians with a plaque and stone in Davidson park on Washington street on June 26.

Member of the Park Commission for 35 years, he was chairman from 1918 to 1946. Davidson was a selectman from 1913 to 1916 and chairman of the board in 1916.

The park had been dedicated to him before he died in 1954.

The Davidson Family, two sons and two daughters including Marjorie Blomquist of 11 Grove st., will provide shrubs around the stone while the Park Department is supplying the labor.

Davidson Park will be the breaking ground site for the Aberjona Bike Path in the near future.

ABC Students Will Need Host Families

Several prospective ABC students recently came to Winchester for a look at the ABC house and the high school.

While they were guests at the Dix Street house they met with guidance counselors at the high school and members of the ABC board.

The students, from Memphis Tenn., New York City, East Orange, N.J., and Columbus and Cleveland, Ohio, will need host families when they enter the program this fall.

The host family provides a home for the boy while he is living at the ABC house.

To become a host family contact Mrs. Andrew Morrison of 14 Webster st.

Von Lazar At College Club

Arpad von Lazar, professor at the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy of Tufts University and Winchester resident, was guest speaker to the Winchester College Club for their final meeting of the season at the Unitarian Church recently.

Introduced by Margie Lamar, von Lazar's topic was "South of the Border—Reform or Revolution?"

He said great change is taking place in Latin America where there are many poor, underprivileged and malnourished people.

He reminded the women that the United States, under the late President John F. Kennedy, tried "bootstrap aid" (money, support and know-how), which was not successful.

He suggested that while money doesn't provide skills for solving problems, it can provide "abilities if used constructively."

The selling of technology and reinvestment in the welfare of the country were examples cited.

"Latin America wants to do things by its own strength and it wants equitable terms," said von Lazar.

A weekly commentator on international affairs and foreign policy, WGBH, Channel 2, Boston, he is married with two children.

Winchester College Club president Adela Boerner chaired the meeting.

Other club officers are: Susanne Reno, vice-president; Virginia Kramer, secretary; Jane McClelland, corresponding secretary; Elaine Delany, treasurer; Marie Kennedy, scholarship; Hazel Swanson, historian.

Attitude Survey Results Are Tabulated; School Enrollment Study Now Underway

Townwide results of an attitude survey on Winchester's schools are tabulated.

This information was given to the Winchester School Committee Monday by William McCarter of 21 Mt. Pleasant st., director chairman of the survey committee. Though the results are tabulated, the high school questionnaires' results are not completed, said McCarter.

Expenses to conduct the survey came to $1,838 instead of the projected $4,250, said McCarter.

This was because the Northeast Regional Vocational High School students did the printing and volunteers did necessary coding. Out of 7,558 questionnaires mailed, 1,891 were returned, with 45 percent containing written comments.

McCarter considered the 25 percent return a good figure.

Predictions
An enrollment study is underway to see how the drop in school enrollment is affecting the use of buildings.

According to superintendent of schools William MacDonald, while no final conclusions have been reached, several definitive thoughts have been.

With our present capacity a four-year high school will not be a reality before 1982, he noted.

MacDonald said a decision must be made shortly regarding the redistricting of McCall and Lynch Junior High Schools. McCall is growing, while Lynch's enrollment is declining. "Both are still under capacity," he noted.

The enrollment study will attempt to predict the number of children born, and if homes on the market with four or five bedrooms will attract young families.

Other projections will include the future in elementary schools regarding transportation requirements, modernization needs, staffing, long-range planning and if a school's closing will warrant the money saved.

Assumptions about the community and the peak years of enrollment, commitments in education and a map study will be part of the report.

Supt. MacDonald presented a report on Winchester's enrollment in Northeast Regional Vocational High School, Wakefield.

With figures received from Gerard Donohoe, Winchester's representative on the vocational School Committee, MacDonald reported no one from the town enrolled in the school's summer program, four enrolled in the afternoon program and out of a quota of 25, 22 ninth graders will attend the vocational school next fall.

School Committee member Mary Pronski said she was "disappointed and embarrassed" that Winchester had no representative in the summer program "when so many communities are fighting for seats."

In accord with the Massachusetts Association of School Committees' policy that communities may submit resolutions, School Committee members Stephen Parkhurst and Catherine Fallon presented requests for the MASC annual meeting in October.

Parkhurst asked MASC to file for revolving funds regarding the community use of schools and adult education.

This would enable the income of activities to come directly to the School Committee rather than to the town's reserve funds.

Asking for reduction of tenure laws, Mrs. Fallon felt the probationary period should be raised from three to five years.

She requested tenure be granted for periods of five years. Renewal would come after review and evaluation.

The School Committee gave its approval for a new acting assistant principal for the high school.

Assistant principal Edward Burns is leaving to teach at McCall Junior High School.

"If the high school is to be what we want it to be, it is imperative a full time assistant principal be hired," offered Supt. MacDonald.

Salary will depend on the level at which the applicant is scaled.

Robert Frank questioned installing a new person when the administrative structure of the schools will soon be reorganized.

He doubted the wisdom of reducing the unallocated budget "so close to zero" that dealing with enrollment shifts might become a problem.

Students Rights

Student policy and regulation mandated by the state legislature recently, were read for a second time Monday night, making them official. Checked by students and Town Counsel Douglas Randall, they were approved.

"Students may, collectively or individually, express, publish, or otherwise disseminate their views, in oral, written or symbolic form, and they may assemble peaceably on school property for that purpose."

Other Matters

Differentiated staffing used at Wyman School this past year will not be continued in September.

Employing para-professional assistants to take over the managerial duties of a teacher.

Principal John Carmilia.
Resource teachers, described by Carmilia

as "a tutorial situation," will be at Wyman in the fall.

For 45 minutes daily, a student diagnosed as deficient in some skill area, will study with an individualized plan set up by a resource teacher.

Stephen G. Waite of 7 Appalachian rd., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Waite, was presented a four-year naval reserve officer training corps scholarship to attend Holy Cross College.

Chief Duane Wahl, USN, presented Waite, a prospective officer, with the award.

Special Meeting Will Consider 13 Articles

Thirteen articles make up the warrant for the July 17 special town meeting.

They include funding the office of town manager and director of public works clarification of capital equipment appropriation for a cemetery truck, setting permit fees which come under the new state building code and outstanding collective bargaining contracts regarding the Town Employment Association, firefighters, call firefighters and school food service workers.

Another article is the appropriation for additional funds for a Permanent Building Committee consultant who will try to determine the cause of leakage in exterior walls of the new high school.

One article is a zoning bylaw change regarding proposed apartments for the old Bonnell property on Main street.

Builder Edward Reiss' request is for a five-story building under 45 feet instead of the present zoning stipulation of no more than four feet.

Four articles involve the rezoning and sale of town property in the Conservancy Institutional Districts (SCD).

Under these articles three houses and two of their properties on Alben and Reservoir streets and Marshall road, and a vacant lot on Fletcher street will be sold.

The piece of property on Marshall road will be retained.

Another article concerns a citizen petition to make the Wadleigh School site on Washington street into a park land preventing it from being used for municipal purposes.

One article concerns a bylaw study committee request for monies to engage legal counsel to revise town bylaws to comply with the charter.

The School Committee requested increasing fees and making the adult education program self supporting. It was eliminated to save money.

The Recreation Committee's request to include an article regarding $5,400 for a full-time senior citizens' recreational program director next fiscal year was accepted by selectmen.

88 Seek Town Manager Post

Eighty-eight persons, among them at least one woman, applied for the position of town manager.

According to J. Edward Sharkey, secretary of the ad hoc screening committee for town manager, appointed by the Board of Selectmen, they were from "just about every section of the country."

In preparing for their review of candidates and their backgrounds, each of the seven committee members accepted the assignment to check six towns having town managers. They contacted officials of these towns asking general questions about their town manager and his responsibilities.

After reading resumes and putting applicants into categories during their Wednesday night meetings, the ad hoc committee has come up with "12 live ones," as Sharkey put it.

A knowledge of the costs of schools, a familiarity with public works and a strong managerial performance were requisites for a town manager, according to department heads.

Applicants, brought to Winchester through an international town manager magazine, are asked questions "to bring out their personality and solidarity in their answers," explained Sharkey.

Three persons have been processed to date.

"It's difficult trying to get candidates to Winchester when we're available, since they are coming from all over the country," offered Sharkey.

As far as he is concerned political experience or a master's degree in town managership are assets, not musts.

The resumes are varied, he continued. They run the gamut from persons just out of college to those with many years' experience. "Leadership, not just knowledge, is what is important," stressed Sharkey.

Five or six names must be given to the Board of Selectmen before Sept. 1 in order to finalize a decision by November, the charter stipulates.

Towns which have profited by the town manager form of government are Arlington and Lexington.

According to selectman chairman Margaret Spengler of Arlington, "A town the size of Arlington needs a professional person every day."

The Arlington town manager grouped 27 department heads into nine and developed human services, natural resources and community safety departments.

Lexington selectman Marjorie Batten said her town's town manager has made administrative procedures more uniform.

Committee member Paul Amico and former selectman Henry Porter met with selectmen Monday to encourage selectmen to "give the ball" to whomever is selected as the new town manager and "not interfere with his role as town manager."

To do otherwise could create problems not only for selectmen themselves, but also for the town manager, said Amico.

As the manager takes care of all budgetary matters, properly, negotiating, collective bargaining and purchasing, he will provide greater relief and time for selectmen to conduct more hearings and get more input from citizens, said Amico.

Selectmen chairman Lawrence Smith asked Amico and Porter if there were areas where they felt selectmen should immediately divorce themselves from activity.

Amico said that after the manager becomes familiar with department heads the selectmen should "let him determine how much help he wants from the board."

Amico said the manager will be a qualified person with much experience. "He will know how to organize, deputize and supervise."

Porter said: "You've got to be big enough and sharp enough to play it by ear. Don't take a short range view. You're laying a cornerstone. It must be laid precisely if the structure is to be sound. You must let go to let it grow," he said noting his words were philosophical.

Mock Town Meeting Has Four Warrant Articles

A special mock town meeting will be held at Winchester High School auditorium next Monday evening.

A mock warrant will contain four articles on subjects of interest to young people. (See box accompanying article.)

The meeting, sponsored by the Mistick Side Girl Scout Council, the League of Women Voters and town officials, will show what a traditional American grass roots government is all about. It is a bicentennial project.

According to a member of the planning committee, Mrs. Margaretta Thuma, 180 senior girl scouts from all over the country, some from overseas, will be in attendance.

Fifty or more Winchester residents have volunteered to be members of the town meeting or to participate in the mock demonstration in some form or another. Some scouts will also participate actively.

Selectmen William Chapman and Arthur Dunbar have been in charge of arrangements working with the league and town boards.

Members of the volunteer steering committee are John Wiseman of the Planning Board; Richard Richmond, finance Committee; Catherine Fallon, School Committee; Parker Blanchard, Water and Sewer Board; John McKinley, police safety officer.

Also, Mary Avakian of the Cemetery Commission; John Moore, Conservation Commission; Edward O'Connell, Board of Library Trustees; Peter Lane, Personnel Board; Albert MacDonnell, Park Commission; Donald Spinney, Recreation Dept.; Patricia Wells, Council on Aging; Wilbur Otis, Civil Defense; and Lawrence Quigley, Board of Health.

Mock Warrant

Article 1

To see if the town will appropriate money for the construction of a recreation center.

Article 2

To see if the town will appropriate money for junior high school students to take a foreign language in the seventh grade.

Article 3

To see if the town will authorize and appropriate money for the Board of Park Commissioners to construct a lighting system for Leonard Field.

Article 4

To see if the Board of Selectmen will rescind the public drinking law.

Public Works Employees Picket At Town Hall

Public works employees staged a picket line on both sides of Mount Vernon street in front of the Town Hall Monday evening.

They are aggrieved because they want more than a three percent wage increase, an amount agreed upon by the town in meetings since March 25.

The 102 employees of the water, highway, cemetery and park departments and custodians at the Town Hall are represented by Chester Saunders who is their union president and Gardner Morgan, business agent for the Service Employees International Union Local 285.

According to Saunders general industry has provided workers with a 34 percent increase during the past four years while Winchester's employees have had only a 13 percent increase during the same period.

Morgan said the picket line is to assure strength in unity of the town employees, to show the townspeople that public works employees are "the lowest paid in the area," and to make residents stop and realize they receive "better service than in other towns."

He pointed to the placards the men were carrying as they quietly walked in a circular fashion as "telling the story."

He said the Monday demonstration "is not a one-time shot." The picketing workers will march again at the incinerator on Saturday morning until noon and again Monday night at the high school when the town is holding its mock town meeting.

Morgan said the girl scouts, townspeople and international audience "can see democracy in action."

Demonstrations are also planned this week at the town's tennis courts.

Morgan said the negotiating committee has met six times.

Up to now two non-money proposed items have been completely agreed upon.

In the negotiating sessions, three major items have been the center of discussion:

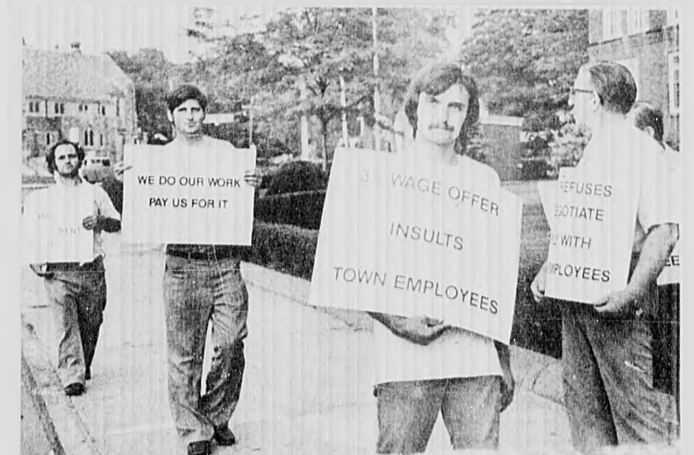

across the board wage increases, longevity pay and personal leave.

The union contends that only wage and longevity items would be over and above expenditures already allotted to the town's budget.

The town and union have not agreed upon items concerning the condition of employment.

Public works employees picket Winchester Town Hall Monday evening to demonstrate their distress that town officials will not give more than the three percent wage increase offered since March 25. They plan additional marches to make the public aware they are "the lowest paid in the area," says Local 285 business agent Gardner Morgan.

Lady Leader Lashes Out At Lack Of Park

Has male chauvinism reared its ugly head in Winchester? Or is it a case of general myopia on the part of townsfolk and officials that leaves some 200 girl baseball players virtually with no park to play their games? In any event, their lady leader, who wants help, both financially and physically, says the "town sure needs a good facelift." In a letter to the editor of the Star, Pat Sizemore states her case vividly, admonishing that "this town is unreal."

Lenny Simone, 9, of 365 Cross st., picks up his fishing rod to go home after his line and bait disappear into the water. He was looking for sunfish, eels or a snapper turtle on the edge of Wedge Pond. A student at Ambrose School, Lenny reports he'd throw fish back in if he caught any.

Town To Have New Gourmet Restaurant

The Board of Selectmen recently approved a license for a restaurant and gourmet food shop to open at 5 Converse pl. beside Mill pond.

Owned by Joseph Scotti, the restaurant will be open daily including Sunday mornings.

The Winchester Business Association approved the proposal while Chief Engineer I. Francis Amico condoned the action if exits are installed (three are required for not more than 45 persons), proper extinguishers installed and emergency lighting planned.

The Board of Health's approval is needed. Board of Assessors chairman George L. Andersen recently informed the selectmen on the state law requiring 100 percent real estate evaluation.

At the annual town meeting the assessor's request for $15,000 to aid in making the evaluation was rejected 92 to 43.

Nicholas L. Metaxas, suggested the selectmen and Finance Committee discuss an alternative plan. He set a deadline of Aug. 29.

The Winchester Taxi Owners' Association requested selectmen raise the fare 25 cents. Green Taxi Service, Lane Taxi Service, Town Taxi and Winchester Red Cab signed the document while Winchester Cab Co., a non-member firm, requested a 15 cent hike.

WTOA President Richard Terzian of Green Taxi, justified the request by the fact that property damage insurance and vehicle costs have risen.

Norman E. Sherman, assistant zoning administrator, informed selectmen on the status of provisional petroleum products license granted recently to Gerald Errico of 151 Cross st. for 5,000 gallons of fuel oil.

July 7 is the deadline for the installation of protective fence, posting of signs and land grading for a license to allow the storage on the property of Reego and Sons construction firm.

In order to make better use of town counsel Douglas Randall's time selectmen John Sullivan and Barbara Hanks suggested the establishment of a small claims account on which Randall could draw, and a different salary arrangement.

In the future Randall will attend one selectmen's meeting a month and be available other meeting nights by phone.

Citizens' requests for legal services will be brought to the attention of department heads instead of Town Counsel Randall.

In the near future Selectmen Arthur Dunbar and William Chapman will report to the board on their review of 12 applications received to date for the position of director of veterans' services.

Selectmen discussed a bill from the Massachusetts League of Cities and Towns for membership dues of $1.68 for the next fiscal year. Dues are based on population and equalized valuation.

Winchester requested state funds for sewage system studies in the area west of Cambridge street.

The town is included on a priority eligibility list for study and design for about $200,000.

According to town engineer John Ciarcia, Winchester must approve total expenditures at a town meeting for 90 percent to be returned to the state.

Selectmen met with members of the new Civil Service study committee before they held their initial meeting to begin their charge.

They will look into the advantages and disadvantages of Winchester's staying with the system and report back to selectmen in the fall. "Though they may make a recommendation to selectmen, their job is to research and find facts to lead to a responsible decision."

It is expected the question will be on the warrant of the next annual town meeting.

Lynch Students Create Bicentennial Diorama

Three students attending Lynch Junior High School chose to reenact an early battle scene as a bicentennial project.

They are David Morris, Frank Moda and Edward O'Connell.

The following was written by the boys explaining their motivation and creativity. "After visiting Lexington and Concord we decided that we would like to create something as our contribution to the bicentennial."

"We thought about it and decided to recreate within a small area one of the early battle scenes leading to our country's revolution and our independence."

"This diorama depicts our interpretation of the Red Coats converging upon the colonists who had joined together to protect their new found homes and land."

"We used a variety of materials in order to produce authenticity and realism in our project."

"Clear liquid resin was used over a painted foundation to produce a lifelike fluid effect for the river."

"The house and barn were made out of balsa wood with plastic for the windows."

"The soldiers' uniforms were painted using needles. (This was a technique created by Frank Moda.)"

"David Morris whittled square dowels of balsa wood in order to create an authentic replica of a colonial bridge. He also built the house in the diorama."

"Eddie O'Connell designed the red barn which he built out of sheets of balsa wood. The roof is made of sand paper."

"We want to thank Mr. Latham who guided us. He stayed after school with us so that we could finish our diorama. He was a great inspiration to us."

Take Part In Mock Debates; Show Young People Tradition

By Margaretta Thuma

As the day approaches when Winchester will put on a model town meeting for the Girl Scouts of America, participating in a bicentennial jamore, "Boston Brans and Battle Greens," perhaps it is time for each of us to take stock of what our local government signifies.

We have just gone through an "agonizing reappraisal" of town government and have adopted a new charter.

There is currently a by laws study group deliberating over what changes we need to adopt to streamline our procedures, to conduct our public business in a more expeditious manner.

Practically anything would be more expeditious. Surely town meeting is the most cumbersome, maddening, inefficient, awkward, infuriating way to conduct public affairs there ever has been. Those of us who have suffered through deadly session after acrimonious, repetitive, contentious session, splitting hairs down to the decimeter, can testify to that.

This year's annual town meeting of 18 sessions, lasting from March 23 through May 10, set a record and a special town meeting for high midsummer vacation time lies in prospect.

Why must we suffer so? And yet town meeting is a most rewarding form of governing in terms of community life, in terms of individual participation in the community's affairs.

My own experience, by happenstance, has been under many forms of government: city manager, mayor, aldermen, national (anyone who has lived very long in any of the European countries can testify to the surprising difference between a federal and a national system), military government, county executive. In none of them did I ever feel that my participation, vote, voice, protest, concurrence made that much difference until I came into the town meeting form of government.

Winchester is a community. In this age of megalopolis we long for a sense of community. It is not logical but real to do so. The town meeting is an expression of our community. One man, one woman can delay proceedings, filibuster, object, keep us nodding in our seats until we collectively silently beg Mr. McCarron to rise for his customary, "Mr. Moderator, I move we adjourn." Yet our common fury at parliamentary play is in itself a unifying force.

It was not really worth the expense to build a West Side Fire Station. The Arlington Fire Department was capable of covering that part of Winchester. But Arlington isn't our community. We want to take care of our own.

If we assess the geographic distribution of school-age children in Middlesex County we could come up with more efficiently drawn school districts. But then how to run for office on the slogan, "Educated in the Winchester schools?"

The Aberjona flows from Wilmington through Woburn, Winchester, becomes the Mystic and goes on through Medford, Somerville and Charlestown to Boston Harbor. Yet we worry about cleaning up "our" Aberjona. Nevermind the trash from other sources.

There is a dialectic, a tension, an antipodal force at work between consolidation in the name of rationality and separation in the name of community.

Increased population density has begotten impersonal, fractious relationships, intensifying pressure for fragmentation to ensure communal relationships.

Town meeting is our expression of community, of common ground.

Next week young women will be coming to Winchester from all sizes and shapes of cities, towns, counties, consolidated districts, nations to observe a quaint New England anachronism known as town meeting. What is it?

It is my contention that it is one form of Purgatory; but also the Greatest Show on Earth, where human individuality can find ripe expression, as well as eloquent tyranny. Where divisiveness can meld into co-operation, where factional acrimony can work itself into significant communal action.

What does it mean to you? Enough, I hope, to bring you to the Winchester High School next Monday night, June 30, to take part in mock debates. To show 180 young people what still happens today in the tradition of early American democracy.

Beatitudes For Today

The high school Bible class of the Winchester Unitarian Church, taught by Rev. Robert Storer, has written a modern version of the Beatitudes from the Sermon on the Mount in the New Testament.

Blessed are the curious for they shall understand.

Blessed are those who abide by their conscience for they shall have peace of mind.

Blessed are the willful for they shall survive.

Blessed are those who meet their death

because of their beliefs for the kingdom of heaven belongs to them.

Blessed are those who respect others for they shall be respected.

Blessed are those who are good and speak their good for they shall be heard.

Blessed are the tolerant for they shall be tolerated.

Blessed are those who are kind for they shall find satisfaction.

Blessed are the children for they are the hope of mankind.

LL Team Mother Praises Coaches

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

During the recently completed Little League baseball season, I had the fortunate opportunity of being team mother for my son's team, the Minor League Wildcats, coached by Paul Criscione and managed by Kevin Fitzpatrick.

It has been a rewarding experience for me to get acquainted with two of our many fine teenagers in our community. Paul and Kevin, both taught the Wildcat team, consisting of boys ranging from 8-years-old to 12, a healthy attitude and good sportsmanship throughout the season.

The Wildcat team learned how to play baseball well in all areas from these two instructors.

Ending the season in a first place tie with the Wolves, the boys provided the value of good sportsmanship by accepting a disappointing loss in their final playoff game by losing 7-6 in a well played game with the Foxes.

The end of the season party was held at my home the following evening of their playoff game. The fun and pleasure that existed among these boys was gratifying, even though only a few hours previously, their winning season came to an end.

I commend all the parents of such well behaved boys on the Wildcat Team, including Paul's and Kevin's, for making them both such fine men.

The knowledge that the boys have absorbed through the excellent supervision of their coach and manager will never be forgotten.

We will all miss Paul and Kevin next year. They both plan to be away at college.

Hopefully, in the future, Little League will be blessed with many more young men such as these two gentlemen are.

Six Weeks Adventure Begins Seventh Year

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Six to eight years ago programs in interracial relations blossomed all over the suburbs. Melrose had one, Belmont, and how many more? Perhaps the only remaining venture of this type is alive and healthy in Winchester.

On Monday, June 30, Six Weeks Adventure will embark on its seventh summer. With Mrs. Janet Boone as committee chairman and Paul Thompson as professional director, the group is already off to a good start.

Junior and adult volunteers who will be swimming with the children twice a week met last Saturday with Peggy Sudbury and Lou Eckert at the pool of Titchard and Jane Norberg. They learned of the expectations of the "Adventure" in regard to pool management and individual instruction.

On June 25, a meeting of all volunteers was held at the First Congregational Church to get acquainted with each other and the committee, and to learn some of the plans and guidelines from Janet and Paul and Cindy Stabileford, who are in charge of volunteers.

Today the children from outside Winchester (some of Puerto Rican background and some black) who will be attending the program spent an hour at the Ambrose School where they will take part in the Leslie College Winchester Summer School.

They saw their classrooms and met with Joe Galuso, principal, and Marilyn James, master teacher.

The children moved on to the First Congregational church for lunch and a look at their base for the afternoon "Six Weeks Adventure" where they will be joined by a like number of Winchester children for crafts, games and sports in addition to the swimming.

Perhaps the reason "Six Weeks Adventure" continues and grows stronger each year is because of the interest and support of the townspeople.

Each year a committee emerges in January and starts to work.

The budget for summer school tuition, the vans which transport the children every day, the director's salary and supplies is met by Winchester families.

The volunteers who lend time and expertise to teach anything from macrame to woodworking—both adult and teens—are another plus. The Winchester elementary age kids who enter into the spirit of the interracial endeavor year after year are indispensable. In fact each of these elements is indispensable to the make up of a summer program for kids of which Winchester can be proud.

Tap Water Safe

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Winchester Hospital and the Winchester Board of Health have cooperatively evaluated the safety of the tap water in Winchester.

Winchester tap water has more than satisfied all local and state safety requirements.

In addition culture studies by the Winchester Hospital of recent random samples failed to show any disease-causing bacteria in tap water samples from various parts of town.

The Board of Health and interested Winchester physicians have been and will continue to be concerned with the safety of our water, and will continue to monitor the water quality.

Heart Felt Good Hearing Smothers

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

"I love my country. I love America." How refreshing these words to seldom heard. But those statements were heard Friday evening by those of us who were lucky enough to hear Clay Smothers. It made my heart feel good to know that everybody is not out to get something for nothing.

It made my heart feel good that some children are still being taught respect, responsibility and the necessity of work in a country such as ours. After all our country was founded on "hard work" and not "hand outs."

Didn't our forefathers leave a land of taxation to begin a new?

With love and strength the pilgrims labored long and hard to achieve the American goal. Everyone pulled their weight.

Our country needs more like Clay Smothers as educators and leaders. Maybe, just maybe, from that non-government financed orphanage in Malakoff, Tex., will come obstinate leaders and staunch educators.

Climbing The Mountain Of Life Is Necessary Struggle

By Pauline Dishmon

Life is beautiful. But it is also a struggle. It is a series of hurdles in between stretches of smooth grassy green. It is like climbing a mountain. Reaching the top is your purpose in life whether you realize it or not.

You are born in a valley where your needs are met by others. Some extend care and services to you with love. Others do this without love or resentment.

You look around and ask why you are here. As you wonder, you grow in stature. In many ways you grow in wisdom. You receive tools for your future. Hopefully these tools will make your ultimate ascent to the peak easier.

At the base of the mountain you find the way is fairly clear. The paths are well worn and there are many others walking ahead behind and beside you.

Occasionally crowds from the valley catch up to you. They seem to appear from nowhere. They join you for awhile, but soon they return the mundane affairs of the valley, seemingly unaware there is a mountain to scale or a world outside their pleasures.

When they are gone you look toward the summit and envision how wondrous the view from the top must be. Way up there you know you'll be able to look around and see everything in perspective. You feel you will have achieved the ultimate goal when you reach there. You will have happiness, a unity with all mankind and your Creator.

But the summit is for the future. There is much to do to get there. Some paths will be full of brush; some will be clear. There will be others sojourning too.

Along the way you will have to get over many crags. Some of these will be icy or so steep you'll find no apparent progress being made.

You will become disheartened as you slip back to a point you traveled before. Moving forward will be a difficult task. You may ask if the peak is really all that beautiful and serene.

There will be times when you may wonder if you are on the wrong mountain. Looking around the landscape, you will see other peaks with what seem to be smoother surfaces. They will even appear to be more graceful and possessing greater stature than the one of your goal.

There may be moments of regret that you began the journey at all. You may look back and think about the valley and recall the comfort, ease and warmth that was present. It will be easy to go back, but you keep on keeping on.

Each day has a new dawn and is a new beginning so you decide to climb and rest, then climb some more. After much work you reach a clearing—a plain.

Here you find a cool clear stream. After a refreshing bath, you lay back and contemplate your journey. You glimpse the summit. You renew your goal. You know you must reach the top. But resting a while longer, won't hurt.

In the shadow of the summit you keep on resting and discovering more about this plain. There are berries for nourishment and many other natural resources to make the plain a nice place for residence.

Looking toward the summit you wonder what is the rush. You are not a bird. You cannot fly to the top. You must go a day at a time and you ask yourself why some of these days cannot be lived on the plain. Why rush into the laborious ascent. There is plenty of time. Why not take full advantage of the plain which has the comforts of the valley and a kind of peace which must be a reflection from the peak. You decide to stay on the plain awhile.

With the natural materials available, it doesn't take too long to build a shelter. Day by day you take from the earth and postpone your objective. You tell yourself, there is plenty of time.

Soon a lone sojourner appears on your scene. He decides to stay for a while. He accepts your sharing, but one dark morning you awaken to discover he has gone and so are your supplies. Even the berry bushes are empty and you are disappointed.

Pondering the situation you decide perhaps he didn't realize there was danger for both of you. You think maybe he is handicapped when it comes to survival. Perhaps his existence has always been to take from others. Maybe he doesn't understand "giving."

In your contemplation you remember each creature really exists alone with his Creator. To survive you must move on. The question is do you seek another plain, return to the valley or go back to your original purpose—attainment of the mountain peak.

The answer is clear. You know the way won't be easy. You'll continue to meet obstacles. You'll try to clear new pathways for yourself and others. You may have to step aside at times to let others pass and reach their acme before you, but you know this is still another lesson in the school of life.

There will be times when you'll be knocked off a slope and have to begin anew; perhaps repeat a path, but you know you must keep up your attempts to reach the top.

Way down deep inside, you know this is why you were born.

"We don't need new laws. We should enforce those already on the books."

This comment came from a Winchester older who stopped to talk with The Star this week while walking his dog along the edge of Little Winter Pond.

Criticizing the nation's executive leader for calling for new laws to combat criminality, the older citizen said we've already got enough laws but those who are paid to enforce them don't know the laws or look the other way.

He said he witnessed a group of drinking youths smashing bottles in the pond area recently. Rather than stopping and halting the vandalous activity, or at least scolding the youths, a Winchester police officer drove by and ignored the situation. The senior said pointing to litter on the ground and near the shoreline as representative of dirty MDC and town water bodies.

The Star mentioned the daily police journal which reflects a long record of activity on the part of local police.

"Sure, they respond to complaints," he said, "but that's all they do. Enforcement of the law is by complaint, charged the resident who added he seldom sees a patrol car in the pond area.

"Too many public servants just put in time instead of doing their job," noted the elder resident who described another scene. This time he got involved.

Apparently one morning he approached two men in a town truck parked by the pond. He asked the men who were "munching on something" what they were doing. They responded: "We're having a coffee break."

"At 10 minutes to 9 in the morning," said the elder citizen who then demanded they move on and not waste taxpayers' money.

Perhaps this gentleman should come out of retirement and put into action the "discipline society needs." He might apply for the job of town manager, police or fire chief or public works director. All three jobs are in the offering.

Robert Tufts of Newburyport was recently appointed summer director of waterfront and playgrounds by the Winchester Recreation Committee.

We understand he was one of many very qualified candidates for the job; also that some residents are a bit disgruntled that an out-of-towner was selected over a resident.

Checking into the matter, we discover Tufts is not new to Winchester. He is a physical education teacher in the Winchester school system and is assigned to Washington and Mystic Schools.

The Star received a letter this week from the Mass. Alliance Against Fluoridation seeking reader support for Senate Bill 652 which will allow revision of the present fluoridation laws.

They call fluoridation the addition of an artificial chemical sodium fluoride (not to be confused with calcium fluoride) which they feel should not be put into water because it does not treat water but instead affects the human body.

Because many doctors, dentists, researchers and citizens regard artificial fluoridation as a substance to be closely reevaluated for its effects on human health and all forms of animal and plant life, and because residents of an area should have a choice, they feel passage of the bill a necessary step.

"It would provide you, as citizens of a fluoridated community, with a direct means of removing artificial fluoride from your water supply through the ballot," says the citizens group.

For a copy of the bill or more information, contact Elaine Courchesne, 179 Whiting Farms rd., Holyoke.

David Bower, 19, of 29 Mystic ave., and Thare MacDonald, 19, of 73 Yale st. reached their destination, Los Angeles, early Tuesday morning on their cross country bicycle trip for the cancer crusade.

The youths are resting this week after cycling 3,500 miles. They will drive home from Los Angeles in Bower's car.

Read this week that due to lower registration figures for next fall's entering kindergarten classes in Belmont, Supt. of Schools John W. McGrath recommended and the School Committee approved the addition of nine more Metco students for entry to Belmont schools in September.

Belmont's policy is that new students will enter in the lower grades and thus progress up through the school system like any other student residing in the town.

The nine additional students will bring the number of Metco students in Belmont to 78.

Cesar Chaves and the United Farm Workers began a new thrust in their continuing boycott against the Gallo wines of California and ultimately to give farmworkers "control over their own working and living conditions."

The farmworkers and boycotters charge that within the past month, seven workers have been killed unnecessarily.

They report in Soledad, California, four young farm workers were found dead of asphyxiation in a labor camp because the housing provided by the growers had a faulty gas heater. Had a UFW contract been in effect, these deaths wouldn't have happened, say the farmworkers.

At the Gallo wine ranch, three workers died within 10 days of each other. Two by electrocution when a machine they were using struck an overhead powerline and the other was crushed beneath his tractor when it overturned at an embankment. The fine for the two deaths by electrocution to Gallo was $75.

The UFW said during the six years (1967-1973) they held a contract, there was not one serious injury.

Those who support the farmworkers are asked to boycott grapes, lettuce and Gallo wines.

Visiting Nurses Merge

The Arlington Visiting Nursing Association, the Lexington Visiting Nurse Association and the Winchester Visiting Nursing Association will officially merge to form Tri-Community Health Services, Inc. on June 30.

The new agency will be centrally located at 353 Massachusetts Avenue in Lexington. Tri-Community Health Services, Inc., an agency sharing in the United Way Massachusetts Bay campaign, will provide more comprehensive health care and expanded services to residents of Arlington, Lexington, and Winchester. The staff presently serving in all three towns will remain the same.

Tri-Community Health Services, Inc. grew out of a recommendation made by the United Way of Massachusetts Bay in 1971 for the three agencies to study regionalization.

Each agency made a separate study of their services for a one-year period.

A joint meeting was held to explore the results and after another year of study a decision was made to proceed with the merger in June, 1974.

Directors of Tri-Community Health Services are as follows: Mrs. Ara Demurjian, Mrs. John Donnelly, Mrs. Daniel von Recklinghausen, Arlington; Van T. Boughton, Mrs. Lee B. Jackson, Frank Tottman, Jr., Lexington; Mrs. H. Gardner Bradley, Mrs. Robert J. Fahey, Mrs. John H. Harrington, Jr., Winchester.

In addition to continuously providing the health care services that have been provided by the three individual Visiting Nurse Associations, the Tri-Community Health Services, Inc. will provide more services to each of the communities by expanding home health services and other community health services.

The merger is also expected to provide a more diversified staff operating more efficiently with more supervision and in-service training and provide more efficient and modern business procedures.

It is also expected the merger will help meet increasing demands of third party payments for quality of services, proper utilization of personnel and sound fiscal measures.

The merger will also permit the organization to cooperate with other community agencies to meet the goal of improving health and promoting the welfare of residents.

The new name, Tri-Community Health Services, Inc., signifies the expanded health services that have been provided by all three Visiting Nurse Associations.

The new agency provides nursing, physical therapy, speech therapy, occupational therapy, home health aide, and medical equipment and supplies in the home. Home health care service provides an economical as well as an emotional alternative to institutional care.

Services are also provided to office patients and in various elderly clinics (Arlington, Lexington, Winchester), baby clinics (Winchester), Board of Health sponsored clinics (Lexington and Winchester), and public and parochial schools (Winchester).

Tri-Community Health Services, Inc. provides care to anyone in the three communities regardless of ability to pay.

Letters From Readers

White House Pool

The following letter from the White House was received by Greenville Morris, 27 Mt. Pleasant, in response to his query as to why a swimming pool was being built in the White House during an inflationary period.

Dear Mr. Morris:

On behalf of President Ford, I want to acknowledge your message concerning the new White House swimming pool.

As you may know, many thousands of tax dollars are spent annually in safeguarding the well-being of every President. It seems reasonable to invest a small amount of non-tax dollars in the President's health.

President Ford works 14 to 16 hours a day under great pressure. He can work more efficiently if he has an opportunity to exercise twice a day by swimming. When he does so, he swims to a disciplined health regimen which stimulates his circulation, relaxes his muscles and keeps him fit. I'm sure you will understand that from the standpoint of logistics, time and security, it is not practical for the President to go daily to another pool outside the White House area.

The modest White House pool, now under construction, is an investment in the President's physical fitness. It will be paid for by contributions from Americans in all walks of life who want their President to remain vigorous and healthy. No tax money is involved and its total cost will be significantly less than restoring the old White House indoor pool. While the outdoor pool will have a small, stand-by heater, you may be interested in knowing that the water temperature will be maintained in the very near future by a solar heating system.

Thank you for taking the time to express your thoughts on this project.

Girls Can't Get Park Time For Baseball Play

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like to thank all who have helped put the girls baseball teams together during the last two years, especially Judy and Dick Parker for making out the schedules.

We grew from 140 girls 7 to 12 years old last year to 200 7 to 12 years old.

We are running a bean guessing contest at the Winchester Sports Shop thanks to Al Ruggles.

We are the largest organized girls baseball team in New England. We are very proud of this fact, but due to the lack of help we get from this town, it's a wonder we even exist. We can't even get a park during the week from the Park Dept. to play on.

Last year we had nine school fields to play on during the week and three fields on Saturday. This year with 200 girls we had three school fields to play on because the other school parks were too dangerous for our children.

History was made in Winchester with these 200 girls and we can't even get a park to play on.

We went to a couple of civic organizations to help us out to pay some of our overcosts of $200. We couldn't even get that. This town is unreal.

We have 14 teams of girls 7 to 12. The teams are coached by the Winchester High School girls with exception of two teams. The umpiring is done in majority by major and senior league baseball boys and also senior citizens.

I want to say to the parents of these kids, you should be very proud of your children for without them it could never happen. I enjoyed my two years with them and had many laughs being involved with these kids and the teenagers that really ran the show and gave so much of their time.

As a parent and taxpayer I feel this town sure needs a good facelift. It is your loss, not mine. This old lady had a blast and it surely wasn't the teenagers loss.

Use, Sale Of Fireworks Illegal

The use and sale of fireworks are illegal in Massachusetts except for licensed public displays according to the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Blindness and the Massachusetts Commission for the Blind.

Legislation passed in 1973 allows arrest without warrant of those in possession of fireworks and permits the seizure of fireworks as contraband.

MSPB recently pointed out sparklers are outlawed.

Cyclist Injured In Collision

A car and motorcycle collided with each other last Friday at 3:50 p.m. at the intersection of Mt. Vernon and Washington streets.

The cyclist, David P. Busselly of Arlington, was taken to Winchester Hospital with abrasions of the left knee and elbow. His head had hit the curbstone.

The car, containing three passengers, was driven by Richard O. Mitchell of 18 Hillside Ave.

The car's right front door was dented.

Tony's Help Keeps Mother Assured

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like to express my appreciation to all our school safety guards in Winchester and a very special thanks to Tony Gigliotti. He's always there willing and smiling as he assists the kids across our very busy intersection at Mt. Vernon, Highland and Mystic Valley Parkway.

I leave for work a half hour before my children leave for school and I know I have nothing to fear because Tony is there.

A few mornings when the children were real late for school, Tony stayed on till they crossed the intersection safely.

Needless to say this is a very important job and do we sometimes take it for granted. As a child we use to take our chances at crossing busy streets. I think this is one of the most important improvements in our school system.

There is much more to say on the subject but for the time being I can rest assured that all is well when Tony is there.

Consider Patchwork Tour To View Colorful Crafted Quilts

BY ELIZABETH
Star Correspondent

The colorful colonial craft of patchwork quilting has blossomed on the New England countryside in myriad varieties.

On an early summer tour I found patchwork-inspired bags, dresses, pillows, belts, shirts, hangings, not to mention the antique and contemporary quilts virtually spilling out of shops in Northampton, Stockbridge and Tanglewood area of Massachusetts and in Southern Vermont.

Crowds attending the country crafts fair at Lincoln's Decordova Museum last weekend flocked to watch contemporary quiltmakers at work under tents on the spacious estate grounds.

Some quilters worked with vivid Scandinavian printed fabrics for bold quilts and modern wall hangings. Others worked on traditional designs, piecing and patching the patterns of colonial ancestors.

The craft fair marked the opening of Decordova's spectacular contemporary quilt and woodworking exhibition titled "Bed and Board." It will be on view until September. The museum is located in Lincoln Center near the corner of Trapelo rd. and Bedford St. on Sandy Pond rd.

For a pleasant "old and new quilts" day trip for Winchesterites, I suggest stopping to see the summer-long showing of choice antique American quilts 1750-1900 called "Hand and Eye" in Lexington.

The exhibition is co-sponsored by the Lexington Bicentennial Committee and the just-opened Museum of Our National Heritage. The modern multi-million dollar private gallery which opened in April is located just minutes from Winchester at the corner of Massachusetts ave. and Rte. 2A heading toward Concord. There is no admission charge and it is a good spot to take out-of-town Bicentennial guests and vacationing relatives.

Continue on to Lincoln and the spectacular Decordova hilltop estate on the shores of a lake. There is a charge for the museum, no charge to stroll the picturesque grounds marked here and there with outdoor sculpture.

Quilting is an old art that came with the colonists to America. It flourished in the new world where entertainment and travel were limited and winters were long and dull. Developed from necessity by the scarcity of materials, these decorated quilts lent touches of bright color and eye-catching design in otherwise drab furnishings of frontier and rural homes.

Several periods of quilting are identified before the introduction of power machines and the industrialization of the needle trades: colonial, Revolutionary, pioneer, Civil War and Centennial.

Patchwork is only one type of quilt but it has become an American folk art reflecting the history of America. It has come a long way from the time when frugal housewives salvaged scraps and remnants and sewed them into pieced and appliqued designs.

Patchwork quilting, at its heyday in 1775 and 1875, became a social institution which produced many quilt forms. Albums, family scrapbooks, and presentation quilts were among the many types. Designs became more and more complex and involved. As many as 4000 separate pieces might be used. Quilt patterns were like ballads. As they traveled from place to place the origin became lost and the creator anonymous.

Vocational School Places 228 Seniors

Placement of tradespersons who recently graduated from Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational High School Wakefield, dropped 2.5 percent from last year, according to William J. Coutanche, placement counselor.

Eighty-eight and one-half percent of this year's graduates were placed compared to 91 percent a year ago.

Northeast placed 228 of its 257 seniors while in 1974 it placed 225 of the 247 member graduating class.

With an increase of 10 students in class size three more students were placed this year than last.

Included in the figures are graduates continuing their education, which reflects a marked increase this year.

While 12 graduates went on to further education in 1974, Coutanche reports 27 going on to school this year.

Placed in jobs in their trade areas this year were 168 or 65.3 percent.

Placed in jobs outside their trade area were 21 or 8.1 percent, 27 or 10.5 percent are continuing their education.

Twelve or 4.6 percent are entering military service.

Not counted in the placement figures are graduates seeking own employment, 29 or 11.5 percent.

Kay Cardin Treated At Farewell Lunch

The Winchester Country Club was the setting for a farewell luncheon in honor of Kay Cardin, president of the Winchester SPCA for 16 years.

According to Harriett Connor, it was a gala affair, with some 80 friends, mostly members, paying warm tribute to Kay Underneath the gaiety there was a note of sadness, for the Cardins are leaving Winchester to make their new home in Florida, and Kay has been the heart and guiding spirit of the local humane group for many years," said Mrs. O'Connor.

Speeches were made. Those at the head table and women who had served behind the scenes in the kennel and dog pound were introduced.

Seated with Mrs. Cardin at the head table was Area Sidebotham, of the M.C. Barbara Mantia of Sudbury, incoming president, dog officer Nick Moleu, Sandy Alla, Mary Knox.

The members presented Mrs. Cardin with a purse and a card the entire gathering had signed. Her acceptance talk was "witty, gracious, and a reflection of her affection for the animals and for her friends who gave her the party," said Mrs. O'Connor.

Mrs. Sidebotham introduced Yvonne Brown of Medford who daily helps at the cat ward at the Semetaria Animal Hospital; Bicki Larson who volunteers each day to work at the dog pound, cleaning cages, feeding dogs, walking them; Phyllis Collings of Medford, who has worked closely with the Winchester group and is now opening her own kennel.

Also present was Gertrude Adams of Wellesley, founder and mainstay of dog orphanage there.

The end of the program was enlivened by comments from members, little jokes, and shared pleasures, and everyone had a chance to view the lovely corsage and centerpiece Sandy Alla and Elaine Delaney had created for the occasion, said Mrs. O'Connor.

said "the town is taking away benefits." They contend that Bunker Hill Day is being deleted from their contract as a holiday. Other benefits concern longevity, special duty pay and rights granted to protect vacant positions in the bargaining unit.

Morgan told The Star Monday during the placard walk that he and Saunders had just had an informal meeting with selectmen but they were not discussing the contract negotiations. He refused to say what they talked about but indicated in an earlier session on the contract there was a 3-2 vote "to keep things as they are now."

Morgan said nine out of 10 public works employees are residents.

He told The Star to notice their orderly conduct and lack of derogatory remarks.

He said the employees "are just trying to show the townspeople what's happening."

In conclusion Morgan said municipal law says "we can't strike, but by gosh we can picket."

Fire Truck, Boat Attempts Rescue

The body of a 14-year-old Stoneham boy was found in Horn Pond, Woburn, Tuesday after a fruitless search of the pond the night before.

A Winchester Fire Department rescue truck and boat and auxiliary lighting truck were sent to Horn Pond Monday night to help find William Walker who was reported missing for five to seven hours before a search got underway at 7:30 p.m.

The firemen returned at 11:55 p.m. with no luck.

Scuba divers recovered the body at 11:15 a.m.

Two friends said William had attempted to swim to Horn Pond Island from Strawberry Cove. A third of the way out he said he was fine.

He told them he was returning to shore. Two hours later they swam back to the cove and found the boy's clothing piled on the shore.

WSA Officer To Continue

Ralph Hatch will continue as president of the Winchester Seniors Association. He was renominated to the post at the organization's annual meeting recently.

Nebraska Bride

Joyce Bryan Is Bride Of Daniel Strout

Branching palm trees and bittersweet orange tapers formed the setting for the wedding of Joyce Marie Bryan and Daniel Telfer Strout, both of Lincoln, Neb., at a two o'clock wedding recently.

Dr. Otis Young received the vows during the double ring ceremony at the First Plymouth Congregational Church in the presence of 200 guests.

Parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ward G. Bryan of Holdrege, Neb., and Mr. and Mrs. Russell B. Strout of 49 Lorena rd.

"The Wedding Song" and "Time in a Bottle" were sung by guitar soloist, Jeff Kosen, of Lincoln.

The organist, John Levick, played "Trumpet Voluntary" by Jeremiah Clarke, as the bride was given in marriage by her father.

She wore a gown designed by her and her mother, made of ivory quiana nylon with cutout sleeves, softly gathered bodice and skirt, fastened to a satin empire waistline and satin stand-up collar.

Satin formed the band on the bottom of the dress. A jacket with long sleeves and bridal hood was trimmed in wide ivory lace and seed pearls. Her detachable train fell two and one-half yards.

Her bridal bouquet, ivy greenery, hung to the floor interspersed with stephanotis and orange straw flowers. The top was made of two matted roses given to the parents of the bride and bridegroom during the "Toccata" recessional by Charles-Marie Widor.

Maid of honor was Carol Bryan, sister of the bride. She wore a bright orange linen weave knit gown and cutout sleeves, roll-type collar and A-line skirt.

The bridesmaid, Gloria Roettger of Omaha, was attired in identical dress.

Carrying baskets of flowers matching their gowns, they acted as train bearers.

MDC Beaches Are Open For Summer

Metropolitan District Commission beaches are officially open for the summer. The MDC parks and recreation division recently erected signs to point out areas at which lifeguards will or will not be on duty.

According to MDC parks and recreation director Robert B. Williams, persons should look for signs designating sections in which lifeguards will be assigned.

Mischiefs Bays League Champions

The Winchester Mischiefs won the girls C division of the Boston Area Youth Soccer (BAYS) league in the final playoff last Sunday.

They beat a bigger Wellesley team by 3-1 in an exciting game. The play was even for the first 15 minutes, but on a strong Mischief attack Ann Porell was able to score with a hard shot from the wing.

Carol Donahoe added another goal a few minutes later with a high shot from 20 yards.

The Mischiefs maintained their 2-0 lead to half time, and they looked in control of the game. Wellesley came out much stronger after the break. After 10 minutes of strong pressure, they scored a good goal with a very hard shot from twenty yards. The Mischiefs, however, recovered rapidly and Ann Porell scored again within two minutes. This gave the Winchester girls a good cushion and demoralized Wellesley, and the rest of the game became a formality.

Besides the scorers for the Mischiefs, Julie Sullivan played well in goal. Diane Strazzullo and Kathy McGovern played well in defense, and Jennine DeBenedictis played a good game at half back.

The team completed an unbeaten season. They scored 58 goals to the opponents 10 with Carol Donahoe the leading scorer with 14 goals.

Beacons Lose To Needham, 1-0

The Winchester Beacons played Needham in a one game playoff for the Class B championship of the Boston Area Youth Soccer League.

The setting was an exciting one, a game played just before the professional soccer game between the Boston Minutemen and the New York Cosmos (featuring the legendary Pele) at Nickerson Field last Friday night.

The crowd was large and vociferous, but the outcome was a disappointing 1-0 loss.

The teams were evenly matched. The only score came on a penalty kick with 8 minutes remaining in the game. On penalty kicks the overwhelming advantage is with the kicker as he kicks from 12 yards out without opposition except the goalie who must guard his 8 ft. by 8 yd. goal alone.

The ending was difficult to accept as the Beacons had finished a successful 9-0-1 season.

Pintos Lose In Semifinal Play

The Winchester Pintos lost the girls Boston Area Youth Soccer (BAYS) LEAGUE B division semifinal playoff to Wellesley II by a 3-0 score last Tuesday.

The Wellesley team was fired up for this game, whereas the Pintos were still recovering from a tough game against Bedford two days before.

The Pintos gave up an early goal and just could not struggle back.

Wellesley passed the ball well and when they scored their second goal, it was just too much for the Pintos. Wellesley took their victory by never letting the Pintos settle down, and they were deserving winners.

For the Pintos, Lindsay

James, Liz O'Brien and Cathy Heffernan played well.

The Pintos squad this season included Kelly Gately, Lindsay James, Gail Oram, Dawn Adams, Kathleen Driscoll, Christine Driscoll, Lisa Lavey, Afaf Georgis, Sandy Sequeira, Caroline Ellis, Diane Donahoe, Michelle Demars, Ann Williamson, Terry Bergin, Lisa Rogers, Cathy Heffernan, Libby White, Nancy Dean, Terry Ferrari, Barbara

Winchester, Lexington In Tennis Championship

The suburban men's tennis league reports on basic pairings for the playoffs in each of their three division-sections.

Representing division 3 in the C section is the Winchester C-1 undefeated sextet, led by co-captains and doubles partners, Vandy French and George Easton.

The C-1 team won all five matches during the season, 2-1, 2-1, 3-0, 3-0, 3-0.

The Lexington team in division had to play a tie-breaking match to enter the final.

On Tuesday, on the William S. Packer Courts, the championship match will be played, starting at about 6 p.m. Contending for Winchester, in addition to the French-Easton team, will be doubles combinations from Jon Stahleford, Howard Abbott, Ted Martin, Tom Worthen and Herb Anderson. The latter team also won all five of their matches.

Runner-up in the recent Winchester High School student-faculty tennis tournament, French expects a hard fight against the Lexington team, but he feels his combinations will prevail to move into the finals against the winner of the Division 2 vs. Division 4—Wightman Tennis Club vs. either Needham.

Merchants Defeated By Wakefield, 9-4

Wakefield recently blasted the Winchester Merchants 9-4, but not without a big scare in the last inning.

After playing down for six innings, Mike Lynch singled, Phil Allen, Albion Cordice (who had a triple in the second, but was out by a country mile trying to stretch it into a home run) and Charlie Ciccone walked.

Chig Beard, who doubled in the third, singled home two more runs, bringing in Jim Kurly to relieve the firing Bob Osgood.

Kurly slammed the door on Winchester, getting three of the next four batters for the save.

Ron Sen, former Wakefield pitcher, started for Winchester, but was in a struggle from the first. Three errors helped Wakefield to three unearned runs to start. They left the bases loaded in the first, fourth and sixth innings, and two in the second, third and fifth.

Sen was in trouble all game, and was finally relieved by Tom Ferris in the fourth, with two runs in and one on. Ferris walked six in this one and two thirds in the next.

Jim Hough came on in the sixth after a walk and three singles, and stopped the Wakefield attack by striking out the first batter and getting two of the next three on a pop up and another strikeout.

Wakefield bombed Winchester pitching for 14 hits and were constantly on the bases. Bob Osgood pitched a no-hitter against Winchester until the top of the seventh, the only consolation for the local team.

Visor Division Hornets Beat Crown Division Eagles

by James R. Stewart

In a well-contested showdown the Visor Division Hornets and the Crown Division in Little League gave evidence why they were champions of their respective sections. Before a good crowd of spectators at Ginn Field last Wednesday the Hornets won the contest, 8-4.

Coached by Brooke Green, the Hornets, emulated General George S. Patton, the Army's "Green Hornet", as they charged through the opposition with a determination not to be denied.

The Hornets took an early lead and built upon it as the game progressed. The Eagles tried valiantly but could not come up with the clutch hits when they were needed. Their efforts did them justice as champions of their division.

This was the final game of the Winchester Cap League season. Many of the 250 or more boys who played will most certainly be seen in the major little league, next year, as the Hingham or Wellesley, depending on the outcome of their elimination match.

The Winchester team records are as follows:

Team	Matches	W	L
A	3	2	1
B1	4	3	1
B2	3	4	0
C1	5	0	0
C2	2	3	0

With five teams in the league, Winchester necessarily divided up their top players and showed to good advantage against other clubs who had but one or two teams in play.

The Winchester Tennis Association sponsors these teams.

Dodgers End Season With 13-6 Record

The national Major League Dodgers recently ended up in second place with a 13-6 record by edging the first-place Yankees 6-5 in baseball play.

John Wiseman lined a three-run double to left, enabling Steve Dionne to score the winning run from first, narrowly missing Al Pontes tag at home plate.

Mark Ockerbloom pitched the victory over Jim Gibbons.

Players are 10, 11 and 12-year olds. This year's version of the Dodgers was a well-balanced unit, featuring a strong array of hitters, good pitching and a tight fielding defense.

Shortstop Mark Ockerbloom anchored the infield and led the team in extra-base hits and runs-batted-in.

Third baseman Collin Green enjoyed an outstanding season with a .550 batting average, and led the team in hits and runs.

Another .500 hitter, outfielder Steve Dionne, led the team in slugging percentage and was high on the list in every batting statistic.

Power hitting first baseman Alan Christy and catcher Kurt Lawson had fine seasons at the plate and in the field.

Outfielders John Wiseman, Brad Houlihan and Bob Tolentino consistently produced timely hits and good defensive plays.

Ten year-old slugger Ricky Donlon delivered extra-base hits while compiling a .400 batting average.

The mound corps featured a pair of hard-throwing 12-year-olds, lefthanded strikeout artist Jim Macdonald and righthanded control specialist Richard Landmark.

Manager is Gerry Dionne. Coaches are Tony Christy and Gerry Prager.

Top Five Teams Enter Playoffs

Winchester United finished the BAYS League season, 13-14 boys' group, by downing Newton 2-1.

The Winchester boys took control of the match early on a long hard drive by Willy Muggia that beat the Newton goalie by a wide margin.

The defense was led by Michael Worth, Bob Horn, Peter Ruggles and Don Layton. Goalie John Brosnan allowed only a penalty shot to penetrate the Winchester nets.

United finished their season with a four win, three tie and three loss record.

Members of the team included John Brosnan, Mark Cincotta, Ed Doherty, Jim Fallon, Jim Fasis, Michael Fiorillo, Jeff Goodman and Dave Guthrie.

Also Bob Horne, Don Layton, Mark Lovetto, Willy Muggia, Rich Pantallo, Daryl Parker, Jim Philippi, and Baron Pittenger.

And Peter Ruggles, Andrew Schneller, Brad Shay, Tom Stoddard, Chip Terpko and Michael Worth.
